62 Persons, 100 Firms Named as Avoiding Tax By Legal 'Loopholes'

Mellon, Lamont, Raskob, duPonts Cited in Congress Inquiry.

'Millions' Saved By Holding Firms

Fishers, Sloan, Many Others Are Listed by Revenue Bureau.

By Sidney Olson.

The names of the country's men of great wealth, whose legal use of a three-sided loophole in the tax laws has cost the Government millions of dollars in revenue in the past three years, according to the Treasury, were paraded before the joint Congressional tax avoidance committee yesterday.

Among 62 individuals and 100 corporations listed was Andrew W. Mellon, the 82-year-old former Ambassador to Great Britain, and Secretary of the Treasury in the administrations of three Presidents, Harding, Coolidge and Hoover, and equally famous both as a financier and a patron of art.

So was his daughter Ailsa, now wife of David K. E. Bruce; and so were Thomas Lamont, partner of J. P. Morgan; John J. Raskob, capitalist, director in General Motors and vice president of E. I. duPont de Nemours Co., former chairman of the Democratic National Committee; eight members of the duPont family, headed by Pierre S. duPont; four of the "Fisher Body" Fisher brothers of Detroit; four heads of the Scripps-Howard newspaper chain; Alfred P. Sloan, jr., chairman of General Motors Corporation; Jacob Ruppert, brewer and owner of the New York Yankees, baseball team; Duncan Phillips, of Washington, founder of the Phillips Memorial Gallery and authority on art subjects.

Publishers Named.

The newspaper publishers mentioned included Roy W. Howard, chairman of the executive committee of Scripps-Howard; Robert P. Scripps, controlling stockholder of Scripps-Howard; William W. Hawkins, Scripps-Howard board chairman; Thomas L. Sidlo, comptroller and general counsel, Scripps-Howard; Paul Block, also a newspaper chain publisher, and William Dewart, publisher, New York Sun.

Three types of deductions under Section 351 of the Internal Revenue act were used by these individuals and the others of 1,300 companies analyzed to save $2,638,307 last year, according to Internal Revenue Bureau Commissioner Guy T. Helvering.

Although the cases have been the subject of much Treasury discussion, Helvering said, the view of the legal experts was that all the devices used by the personal holding companies were "entirely legal." The citation of the cases was merely to show the need "to make the law so rigid that this type of thing won't be profitable any more," he added.

The device studied yesterday was the use of personal holding companies as an "incorporated pocketbook," in Helvering's words. He said an analysis of 4,516 personal holding companies in the detail in which the 1,300 were scrutinized would show a tax reduction of $9,237,000.

He declared forcefully, however, this figure of nearly $10,000,000 represented "just a fraction" of the amount of tax avoided within the period covered and "just a small fraction" of the revenue which has been diverted from the Government by this device.

Helvering first named specifically 17 personal holding companies with a total 1934 net income of $4,882,824.47. These organizations, through the use of three deductions and by transfers of capital, shown as capital losses on sales and exchanges, only had to pay $43,973.35 in corporate taxes. Without this section of the law the 17 creators of the companies would have had to pay a sur-

Inquiry's 'Tax Avoider' List

The following is a summary of the persons named yesterday by Internal Revenue Bureau Commissioner Guy T. Helvering as tax avoiders through the use of personal holding companies, their 1934 or 1936 adjusted net incomes and taxes paid. On 1936 incomes the words "recomputed tax" means Treasury estimate of tax if income undistributed:

Paul Block, 60, New York City, publisher of seven newspapers in Pittsburgh, Duluth, Toledo, Newark and Milwaukee; through Consolidated Publishers, a personal holding company which had a 1934 income of $1,100,278, paid neither corporate tax nor personal holding company surtax, saved $585,000 in taxes.

Roy W. Howard, 54, of Sacramento, Calif., second largest stockholder and chairman of executive committee of Scripps-Howard newspapers and chairman of board of United Press; president-editor, New York-World Telegram; 1936 adjusted net income, $501,904; tax reported, none, recomputed tax, $79,933.

Robert P. Scripps, 42, of West Chester, Ohio, controlling stockholder, Scripps-Howard newspapers (30 corporations); through personal holding company with 1934 income of $173,599, paid neither corporate tax nor surtax, saved $59,840 in taxes 1934; in 1936 with personal holding company income (adjusted net) of $268,885, reported tax liability of $5,875.

E. W. Scripps (deceased in 1926), father of Robert P. Scripps. A personal holding company in his name reported net income in 1934 of $1,705, 405, but paid no corporate tax and only $67.04 personal holding company surtax, saving payment of $449,134 in 1934 taxes; and in 1936 reported adjusted net income of $2,511,920, with tax liability of $51,017.

William W. Hawkins, 54, Pelham, N. Y., chairman of the board of Scripps-Howard Newspapers, chairman or director in 36 corporations, half-owner of the Tennessee Co. and principal owner, the W. W. Hawkins company, both personal holding companies. (James Hammond, 45, of Memphis, publisher, is also half-owner of Tennessee company). The Tennessee company, with 1934 income of $96,925, paid no corporate tax, no personal holding company surtax, saving $26,462 in taxes. The W. W. Hawkins company, with 1934 income of $154,453, paid no corporate tax, and $251 in personal holding company surtax, saving $36,000. This company had an adjusted net income in 1936 of $252,245, with no tax liability, with a recomputed tax liability of $24,029.

Thomas L. Sidlo, 49, of Cleveland Heights, Ohio, lawyer, law partner of Newton D. Baker; financial director, comptroller, and general counsel, for Scripps-Howard Newspapers and United Press; director of 17 corporations, and clubman; charged with tax evasion in 1934 by the Department of Justice in criminal proceedings; through his personal holding company with 1936 adjusted net income of $72,987, reported no tax liability; recomputed tax liability, $7,988.

D. C. Supply Bill Adopted By Conferees

Senate Accepts Slash of $750,000 in Appropriations.

Anacostia Span Fund Eliminated; Per Diem Workers Get Leaves.

By James D. Secrest.

With record speed and unusual amity, Senate and House conferees reached an agreement on the 1938 District supply bill, and so assured its passage before the end of the fiscal year, July 1.

Carrying out his intention of yielding on many money items to lighten tax burdens, Senator Thomas, chairman of the Senate sub-committee, consented to the slashing of some $750,000 from the Senate increases.

While the total of the appropriations had not been calculated last night, it was estimated that they will aggregate between $45,750,000 and $45,850,000.

The major construction item stricken from the bill was the $325,000 added by the Senate to begin building a $2,000,000 Pennsylvania Avenue Bridge over the Anacostia.

While not restoring the $40,000 allowed by the House for repairs, the conferees provided $10,000 to insure maintenance of the bridge.

Transfer Approved.

Transfer of the Tuberculosis Sanatoria and Gallinger Hospital from the welfare to the health department was agreed to, although it will have to be accepted by the House Monday.

The change in administration had been proposed originally by the House subcommittee, but had been eliminated from the bill on a point of order. The Senate restored the proviso.

Chairman Collins, of the House sub-committee, accepted the decision of the Senate against transferring jurisdiction of all school playgrounds to the community center and thus reducing the playground department's allotment to a handful.

He obtained an agreement that the District Commissioners will be instructed to draft a plan during the next fiscal year for consolidation of all recreational facilities under a single agency.

Assured Leave Pay.

Some 3,000 per diem employes were assured the holidays and leaves when the House managers did not insist upon restoration of a proviso limiting their pay to time worked.

A House proviso prohibiting the reallocation of salaries of District employes to effect pay increases was restored, but the minimum to which it is applicable was raised from $2,000 to $2,600.

The Senate prevailed in striking out a proviso that school teachers might not perform clerical services outside their classrooms, but it conceded on another proviso that the average salaries of school librarians shall not exceed that of employes of the same grade in the public library.

An agreement was reached that money should be allowed for 54 new public school teachers.

While the Senate consented to the deletion of a substantial amount of its school increases, it prevailed, however, in its reallocation of the Troops Guard Ohio Workers; Johnstown Martial Law Lifted; Girdler Calls Murray a 'Liar'

Won't Sign 'Racketeer' Contract Unless Forced, He Tells Senators.

Steel Head Assails C.I.O. 'Communists'

Clashes With McKellar, Guffey; Chicago Police Defend Shootings.

By Robert C. Albright.

Republic Steel Corporation's chairman, Tom M. Girdler, red of face, baldish and belligerent, told a Senate committee yesterday he would never sign a contract with John L. Lewis' Committee for Industrial Organization unless he is forced to do so by law.

Fireworks crackled from the moment the steel executive, whom Lewis has called a "madman," aggressively took the witness stand.

In three hours' testimony, he called Philip Murray, steel workers' organizer, a "liar." He said Senator Joseph F. Guffey, of Pennsylvania, "doesn't know what he is talking about." He said Lewis is "irresponsible" and his organization "communistic."

Clashes With Senators.

"I'm trying to tell this committee I won't have a contract with an irresponsible, racketeering communistic body like the C. I. O.," Girdler shouted, after hot clashes with Guffey and Chairman Kenneth McKellar.

"Until they pass a law requiring me to do it, I am not going to sign."

With strike-beset Ohio's steel industry, the committee's verbal panorama included recent scenes of Chicago rioting. An assistant corporation counsel and two Chicago police captains defended Memorial Day shootings at Republic's South Chicago plant, in which ten were killed.

Capt. James L. Mooney, who commanded 200 police against about 2,000 demonstrators at the riot scene, insisted "we had to do what we did." He declared police fired after bricks and other missiles had been hurled by the pickets.

Capt. Thomas J. Kilroy, second in command, testified neither Mooney nor himself joined in the shooting or gave orders to fire. He said police in the rear "fired into the air," and other officers pulled their guns only after they were knocked down by the pickets.

Preceding them on the stand came William V. Daly, assistant corporation counsel for Chicago, who presented sworn affidavits from policemen at the riot scene, and read from the Illinois ordinance he declared justified the police action.

"There is no more authority there for police to shoot down citizens than for me to be Pope of Rome, which God forbid," inserted Chairman McKellar. "Do you have any law in Illinois which punishes a man for committing murder? Do you think they had authority to shoot?"

Refuses to Call Farley.

"Absolutely," replied Daly. "If some of us had been there, we would have gotten even more excited."

"Then I'd hate to live in Chicago if that is the law there," said McKellar.

Tempers that had flared throughout the hearing reached the breaking point in a tilt between McKellar and Senator H. Styles Bridges (Republican), of New Hampshire, at the close of the session.

Bridges sponsored the resolution for investigation of strike interference with the mails that led to the Postoffice Committee's inquiry. The New Hampshire Senator insisted Postmaster General Farley be called before the committee Monday.

McKellar bluntly refused to call Farley when Bridges declined to say

Union Plans Resistance as Earle Announces Mill May Reopen.

Ohio Plants Open To Loyal Millmen

A new crisis flared suddenly last night in the "battle of steel" with the complete collapse of peace negotiations, the recall of troops in Pennsylvania and a sudden about-face by Gov. Martin L. Davey of Ohio.

The latter ordered Adj. Gen. Emil Marx to see that steel workers "who want to return to their employment shall enjoy the privilege without being molested."

This was in marked contrast to the original order last week when he sent more than half of the State's troops into the Mahoning Valley to maintain the "status quo."

Earlier in the day Gov. George H. Earle suddenly ended martial law in the Johnstown area effective at 7 a. m. today, and announced the strike-bound Bethlehem Steel mill was free to reopen after that time. His action came as unexpectedly as his move Saturday in rushing troops into the city to close the great seven-mile-long Cambria plant to "avert bloodshed."

Meanwhile, moving to forestall any effort to reopen the mill, James Marks, head of the strikers, declared the "union will resist to the best of our ability." At the troops departed they left a situation more acute and uncertain than when they were hurried there by Gov. Earle to prevent what he called a situation fraught with the possibilities of bloodshed.

"Man-to-Man" Parley Urged.

The Pennsylvania Guardsmen had just begun to move out of the Johnstown area when President Roosevelt's mediation board, in a statement issued in Cleveland, declared "a man-to-man" discussion in a conference of steel executives and union leaders was the only hope of settling the strike. The board disclosed that a settlement plan had been rejected by the four independent companies, Republic, Youngstown Sheet & Tube, Bethlehem and Inland Steel. A proposal for union elections in the plants also was refused, the board said. The board's public appeal was made in the face of a statement by the companies declaring "we understand today's conference is the final one."

Earlier yesterday officials of the strike-beset companies had bolted the board's conference with the blunt assertion "the C. I. O. has placed itself above the law of the land."

While hope of settlement dimmed, tension increased throughout the great steel-producing centers. At Warren, Ohio, a C. I. O. proposal for a general sympathy strike collapsed. At Youngstown a back-to-work movement gained impetus with a direct appeal to President Roosevelt asking his help in reopening strike-closed mills.

Mayor Lionel Evans of Youngstown in his telegram asked the President to end "unlawful conditions" so that the plants might reopen under the protection of National Guard troops.

Davey Changes Stand.

Columbus, Ohio, June 24 (AP).—Gov. Martin L. Davey issued orders to Adjt. Gen. Emil Marx tonight to see that steel workers "who want to return to their employment shall enjoy the privilege without being molested." He issued the order to the commander of Ohio military forces after citing "failure" of a Federal Mediation Board to settle the current strikes.

"The right to work is sacred," said the Governor. "The right to strike is equally valid. Those who want to return ot their employment shall enjoy that privilege without being molested. Those who wish to remain on strike certainly are entitled to do so, and to continue any and all lawful practices. * * *"

This was a marked modification of the original troop order which specified that a "status quo" should be maintained; that those who were already at work might continue, but that no others might do so until

France, Reich Rush Warships To Spain Coast

Paris, London Ready to 'Defend Interests in Mediterranean.'

By the Associated Press.

Paris, June 24.—France matched concentration of a German battle fleet in Spanish waters today with naval movements and coast defense rehearsal in the Mediterranean.

Led by two heavy cruisers, a French warship fleet anchored at Bone, Algeria, due south of the Italian Island of Sardinia after secret night maneuvers.

The movement lent strength to the declaration of French officials that France and Great Britain would be compelled to defend their interests in the Mediterranean if Italy and Germany attempted to patrol the Spanish coast without authorization of the international "hands off Spain" committee.

In addition to the two heavy cruisers, the fleet which anchored at Bone included four destroyers and five submarines, all of the French Mediterranean squadron. The ships arrived at Algeria after a night of maneuvers with French colonial coast defense batteries and infantry units.

Paris and London, officials warned, could not remain indifferent if Italy and Germany made forceful use of their warships in Spanish waters.

Reich Watches and Waits.

Berlin, June 24 (AP).—The German government adopted an attitude of watchful waiting tonight in the Spanish crisis, but apparently bolstered its naval strength in the troubled area.

Two of the Reich's three pocket battleships were on Spanish duty together with four of its six light cruisers.

(Two German cruisers and five destroyers passed Gibraltar into the Mediterranean tonight, apparently from off the Portuguese coast.)

This would put two thirds of Germany's most formidable men-of-war in Spanish waters. Officials declined to estimate the actual percentage of the fleet away from home.

Numerous smaller fighting craft remained at their bases. Three outmoded ships of the line were kept at home.

Rome, June 24 (AP).—Informed Italian sources said tonight the international nonintervention com-

'Further Study' To Extend Visit Of Van Zeeland

Belgian's Talks With Hull, Roosevelt Involve Trade Problems.

By Franklyn Waltman.

Conversations between Prime Minister Paul Van Zeeland of Belgium, and Secretary of State Cordell Hull, yesterday reached such a point that several subjects discussed required "thinking over" and were adjourned until next Tuesday.

This was revealed last night by the Prime Minister, who explained that, contrary to his original schedule, he will come back to Washington from New York for further talk with Secretary Hull next Tuesday. He will go to New York tomorrow. Originally, his final departure from the city was scheduled for tomorrow.

Significant Move.

Dr. Van Zeeland declined to specify the subjects which, as he put it, "required thinking over" and which will bring him back. Nor was there any definite indication that any specific course of action on the part of this country will come out of the discussions slated for Tuesday. Nor did he indicate whether the "thinking over" would be done by him or by the President and Secretary Hull.

But it was regarded as highly significant that the Prime Minister should alter his plans for a second visit to Washington, especially as he spent a large part of yesterday, in two conferences, in conversations with Hull and also had a further conference with President Roosevelt after Wednesday's extended discussions.

This turn of events was regarded as of even greater significance in view of the authoritative information that the prime minister earnestly feels—and presumably told the President and Secretary Hull—that American co-operation was essential for the economic appeasement of Europe. It is his view that the importance to Europe—and also to the United States—of such co-operation cannot be exaggerated.

But the form which it is proposed this essential American co-operation should take was not made clear, except that it has to do with the removal of obstacles to the flow

Controversy Over Pilsudski's Tomb Goes to Pope Pius

Warsaw, June 24 (AP)—President Ignace Moscicki today referred to the Vatican a controversy over the tomb of Marshal Joseph Pilsudski in the hope Pope Pius would take action to end what has become a troublesome domestic crisis for Poland.

The trouble arose when Prince Sapiehs, Archbishop of Krakow, had the body of Poland's hero removed from the crypt in Wawel Castle Cathedral, burial place of Polish kings in Krakow, in which it had lain since Pilsudski's funeral in 1935. It was placed in the adjoining "Silver Bell Tower."

The dispute yesterday led the cabinet under Gen. Felicien Slawog Skladkowski to offer its resignation, which the president refused. Polish leaders hoped the dispute would be settled before King Carol of Rumania arrives for a visit of state next week. One explanation of the Krakow archbishop's act was that he did not wish to receive Carol, head of the Rumanian orthodox church.

Untaxed Liquor Bill for Capital Given to House

Act Designed to Prevent Yearly Revenue Loss of $150,000.

Designed to prevent the loss of $150,000 annually from unpaid liquor taxes, a bill was introduced into the House yesterday which would prevent out-of-State liquor dealers selling to Washingtonians without first obtaining a $1,500 license and paying the 50 cents a gallon tax.

According to Representative Paul W. Shafer (Republican), of Michigan, a member of the House District Committee, New York wholesalers are the principal target of the bill he sponsored. He pointed out that liquor shipped from New York to Washington for personal consumption is not subject to either New York State or District taxes. Consequently, he added, District dealers are being undersold.

Shafer said about a dozen New York firms circularize wealthy families here, quoting prices far below those offered by local dealers. One Washington hostess is reported to have bought $10,000 worth of tax-free champagne in that manner for an elaborate party.

The Michigan representative's bill would require all firms shipping liquor in excess of one gallon into the District direct to the consumer to take out a $1,500 wholesaler's license and also pay the 50 cents a gallon District tax.

He believes most of the firms soliciting business here will comply with the measure, because "they are not of the type that would attempt to violate the law."

Pick Diplomats By Blood Types, Japan Is Urged

Tokyo, June 24 (AP).—Dr. Tsunemasa Niigaki, medical adviser to the foreign office, urged the government today to pick its diplomats by blood type—the "O" kind.

Dr. Niigaki explained there were four distinct types of human blood, "A," "B," "AB," and "O." He added that only "superior" men like Premier Prince Fumimaro Konoye, who possesses "O"-type blood, are fitted to fight Japan's diplomatic battles.

"These men combine level-headedness with quick, unerring decision, perseverance and a gentle mien cloaking an iron will," said Dr. Niigaki.

"Unlike fortune-telling, the blood-type test is completely scientific."

U. F. W. A. Picks Goldschmidt as Vice President

Railroad Inquiry Aide Is Appointed by New C. I. O. Affiliate.

By Scott Hart.

Arthur Goldschmidt, administrative officer of the Senate Interstate Commerce Committee's investigation of railroad financing, yesterday became provisional vice president of the United Federal Workers of America, the new C. I. O.-Government personnel organization. Jacob Baker, recent New Dealer, submitted his resignation last week to become president.

This appointment was one of several announced yesterday as the U. F. W. A. prepared to move from temporary offices in the Tower Building to permanent quarters in the Transportation Building, Seventeenth and H streets. The appointments were:

More Appointments Coming.

Eleanor Nelson, secretary-treasurer. She has been assistant director of public information, Woman's Bureau, Department of Labor.

Organizers—Henry Rhine, formerly research economist for WPA; Janet Gaines, formerly with the Legal Division, Resettlement Administration; Elizabeth Hale, Daniel C. Kessler and Walter Krimont. The latter three have been identified with New Deal agencies of the Government.

Within the next two weeks announcement will be made of additional organizers to be drawn from the classified service throughout the country, it was announced.

Appointment of a policy board—which will determine the general policy of the organization—"will be made as the organization develops," it was said yesterday. "They will be representative of all groups and all parts of the country."

Immediate Start Expected.

The organization will deliberately make applications for charters a simple matter. First, organizations will submit a letter, expressing a desire to affiliate. These will give essential facts, such as a list of the officers, the number of members and the area or department covered. All applications are being accepted by the national organization, and subject to the approval of the Committee for Industrial Organization.

The organization expects to be installed immediately and to develop an intensive organizational campaign for all unorganized Fed-

Insull Beds Draw Low Bids at Sale To Help Creditors

Chicago, June 24 (AP).—Samuel Insull's four-post mahogany bed, described as having cost the one-time utility magnate $2,500 and in which he slept during the 13 weeks a year he occupied his skyscraper penthouse, sold at auction today for $325.

A similar English Sheraton-style four-post bed in his wife's bedroom brought $250 in the opening session of a two-day sale of fine English furniture, Oriental rugs, paintings and china ordered by the court to apply on one group of creditor claims totaling $19,089,000. Other articles sold at correspondingly low prices.

While a husky-voiced auctioneer exhorted the crowd wedged into the ten-room penthouse atop the Chicago Civic Opera Building, the 78-year-old former millionaire was before Federal Master in Chancery Jacob I. Grossman.

There cross-examination of Insull was concluded in a $40,000,000 suit filed by note-holders of Insull Utility Investments, Inc., against Insull and other officials of the company. The action grew out of the collapse four years ago of Insull's utility empire.

Lady Astor Castigates Newspapers of U. S., Praises Roosevelt for Refusal to 'Hate Back'

By William V. Nessly.

Lady Nancy Astor, fiery, swift-spoken Virginia-born member of the British Parliament, yesterday nominally gave White House reporters an informal interview.

But the interview, far from following the usual weighty lines of such meetings of press and Presidential callers, became, from the very start, a firm, though good natured, castigation of the American press, ridicule for the attitude taken by a majority of newspapers toward the New Deal, and then a plea that reporters would be "merciful" toward her in their stories, "since, after all, I'm a politician and have got to go back home."

Emerging from President Roosevelt's office after a "general chat" with the Chief Executive, the American peeress took on a look of horror as she found herself surrounded by the correspondents. Waving her hand as if she would brush them aside, she declared:

"What I think of the American press would never do to print. When I pick up American newspapers after last November and find them saying the same things they said for months before that time—well they're wrong now just as they were wrong before."

She had called on the President, she said, to tell him how fine it was that "a man so hated can keep so free from hate," and to commend him for "not hating back."

Quickly turning to the labor strife in this country she ridiculed the furor it has created. England went through it all back in 1918, she said, and came through it.

"Capital is organized," she declared heatedly, "and labor is going to be organized. Let it be done by the decent people."

"Who are the decent people?" a reporter ventured.

"That isn't for capital to decide," she shot back. "Let labor decide it for themselves."

"Do you remember the 1920 steel strike?" she asked. "This is a picnic compared to that one. Why, you're having far fewer strikes now than in those days, but you're making more of them, that's all."

Then she turned again to the American press.

"I can see your headlines now."

Roberta Jonay Makes Debut; Mrs. Roosevelt in Audience

By the Associated Press.

New York, June 24.—Roberta Jonay, the St. Petersburg (Fla.) dancer, who got her chance through the interest of the wife of the President, made her professional debut at a Park avenue hotel tonight to Guy Lombardi's rendition of one of the President's favorites, "Blue Danube Waltz."

Mrs. Roosevelt, who had a son graduating from Harvard today, arrived mid-way of the program and joined in the final applause. Then, when Roberta had joined her party, she suggested the costume for a dance depicting a Hungarian beggar girl was so beautiful that the 21-year-old girl should use two hands instead of one in flourishing the skirt.

"And mother made it," Roberta said of the costume.

Mrs. Roosevelt became interested in the dancer through her connection with the Neighborhood Theater conducted here by Mrs. Rita Morgenthau, sister-in-law of the Secretary of the Treasury. Accepting the suggestion, Roberta remarked that Mrs. Roosevelt "has been so helpful with suggestions from the spectator's standpoint all along."

The girl added that she already has prospects of engagements in Chicago and Philadelphia after her two weeks here.

Mrs. Roosevelt, dressed in formal

Veteran Delayed In Suicide Effort, Drowns Himself

Leaving his wife and four young children, Samuel P. Herold, shell-shocked war veteran, yesterday took his life by drowning in the shallow water off Hains Point.

Herold, a 42-year-old employe of the War Department, had been severely wounded and shell-shocked in the big August drive of 1918 during the war. Only a year ago he had been treated for his war injuries at Walter Reed Hospital.

He drowned himself in the waist-deep water, police said, after two passers-by argued with him for nearly an hour. Ernest C. Marlette, 1736 Eighteenth street, discovered Herold standing in the water, preparing to drown himself. Marlette hailed a motorist and sent him for the police. Meanwhile he talked with Herold, the conversation ranging from the Braddock-Louis fight to life's responsibilities, in a futile effort to delay the suicide until help arrived.

When police came they found Herold's body floating in the shallow water. Marlette is unable to swim, and did not venture into the water to restrain Herold. Efforts to revive him were unsuccessful.

Civil Service Wins and Loses On 2 Measures

Rail Retirement Act Signed, Patronage CCC Bill Goes to Roosevelt.

Supporters of the civil service yesterday had chalked up one victory over legislative assaults on the merit system, but at the same time were engaged in fighting several other attempts to open up portions of the Government service to patronage.

The substitute railroad retirement act, minus a provision which had been heatedly opposed by backers of the civil service, was signed into law late yesterday by President Roosevelt. The act, sponsored by Senator Wagner (Democrat), of New York, and Representative Crosser (Democrat), of Ohio, provides a revised pension system for the 1,100,000 railroad workers, and takes the place of the old measure whose enforcement has been attacked in the courts by the carriers. The revised act, providing pensions up to $120 monthly, was worked out by representatives of the roads and the 21 rail unions, eliminating likelihod of another such court attack.

House Votes Tax Measure.

At the same time the House yesterday passed and sent to the Senate a substitute excise tax measure to finance the pensions. It provides for a tax of 2¾ per cent of an employe's pay, with the railroad contributing a similar sum. The rate will increase gradually until in 1949 it is 3¾ per cent of the pay roll on each of the parties. The old tax, whose collection was enjoined, was levied at the rate of 3½ per cent on each party.

Civil service advocates won a considerable victory when there was removed from the retirement bill the provision that employes of the Railroad Retirement Board, after one year of service, could obtain a civil service status by taking a non-competitive examination. The Civil Service Commission had strenuously opposed the provision. In its place was left a clause that the board, in employing its personnel, "shall give preference over all others to persons who have had experience in railroad service," if they are otherwise qualified. A study of this provision is to be made to determine its full effect on the normal operation of the civil service law.

Opposed to CCC Bill.

At the same time Civil Service advocates suffered what was held to be one of its most serious blows in years, when the Civilian Conservation Corps extension bill was sent to the President by Congress with clauses that will keep outside the civil service the thousands of employes of the corps.

The House completed Congressional action on the bill by agreeing to several Senate amendments accepted by a conference committee.

Such employes of the CCC are at present within the civil service. The act extending its life opens all positions to patronage.

Other measures before Congress which, at present, exempt personnel of contemplated agencies from the civil service, include farm tenancy and crop insurance bills.

Polar Tank Bases Sought for Planes

Moscow, June 24 (AP).—Dr. Otto J. Schmidt, leader of the Soviet North Pole expedition, tonight disclosed a proposal for a chain of "amphibian tank" bases for Moscow-United States flights across the polar wastelands.

Dr. Schmidt and other members of his party are expected to fly tomorrow to Moscow from Archangel on the last leg of their return flight from Rudolf Island, base of operations for the polar venture.

Pilot I. P. Mazuruk was left at Rudolf Island, some 560 miles from the North Pole, for rescue work if necessary.

Dr. Schmidt said the polar expedition has shown that planes can land freely on polar ice and carry out unlimited scientific work.

"Automotive amphibian tanks are a means of transport on polar ice," he said. "They could break through or travel across solid ice floes which ice breakers cannot penetrate because they would waste too much fuel."

Navy Lets Contracts For Four Submarines

Contracts for the construction of four submarines were awarded yesterday, Acting Secretary of the Navy Charles Edison announced. Two of the submarines are to be built by the Electric Boat Co. of Groton, Conn., at a cost of $3,477,000 each. They are to be delivered at New London, Conn., in 29 and 31 months respectively.

The other two undersea craft, on which estimates of cost are not available are to be constructed at the Portsmouth, N. H. Navy Yard.

New Faces in Congress

New Legislator Sponsored Ohio's Idle Insurance Measure

Hunter Blames Steel Industry for Defeat of First Bill Introduced 20 Years Ago; Only Hobby Is Fishing Excursions.

By Liam Lenihan.

The sinister forces opposing the onward march of labor in the far-flung steel strike are the same sinister forces that set their faces against Ohio's proposed unemployment insurance bill of 20 years ago, according to John F. Hunter, 40-year-old representative from Toledo, sponsor of that law that finally was put on the statute books.

"I accuse the steel industries," he said dramatically. "On their heads rests responsibility for the bloodshed that has staggered the Nation."

Turning from the dynamite-laden steel situation to the President's proposal to reorganize the Supreme Court, Hunter unhesitantly scored the "improper method" of adding justices to safeguard social legislation.

"An amendment is the only way out," he commented. "Such an amendment would give Congress sole right in matters dealing with labor and social security. I do believe the Supreme Court as it stands is packed. I do not believe, however, any such methods now under discussion should be resorted to unpack it."

Biographical: Ohio's Democratic Representative was born in Ford City, Pa.; was educated in the public schools of Toledo and received his LL. B. from St. John's University in 1918; was admitted to practice before the Supreme Court of Ohio the same year; served in the World War and returned to go into practice. In 1932 he was elected to the Ohio House of Representatives and two years later to the State Senate.

Hobbies: While not busy as a member of Executive Expenditures and Pensions Committee he whiles away the time fishing.

Party Members Join President Today on Island

A third of the Democratic membership of House and Senate will gather around the President today and let bygones be bygones—maybe—on tiny Jefferson Island, a spot in the Chesapeake

First of a series of three Democratic Congressional delegations will motor to Annapolis this morning and take boats for the scene of the peace meeting, guests all of the Jefferson Island Club.

There will be fishing, swimming and skeet shooting—mint juleps, beer and a shore luncheon—and, just possibly, a little serious talk.

The rally has been heralded as a Democratic "social," but the President will do some man to man talking with anyone who has something to say. And if members speak their minds about his court plan, they will say plenty.

President Roosevelt, "honor guest," led the pilgrimage last night. He left the White House at 8 o'clock for Annapolis, to pass the night aboard his official yacht, the U. S. S. Potomac.

Only a selected few will spend the full three days on the island, as the President receives his Democratic Congress in thirds, today, tomorrow and Sunday. Guests for the entire week-end include House and Senate chieftians—Senate Majority Leader Robinson, president of the club; Senator Key Pittman, of Nevada, Senate President pro tem; Speaker Bankhead and Majority Leader Rayburn.

If the guests go in for serious talk it is likely to center in this small group, which, with the President, may determine not only what will be done with the court plan, but the fate of other controversial major measures ranging from wages and hours, and Government reorganization to the farm program.

Mellon Is Recovering From Bronchitis Attack

By the Associated Press.

Sources close to Andrew Mellon said yesterday the 82-year-old former Secretary of the Treasury is recovering from an attack of bronchitis.

They said he is confined to his apartment here, but is "up and about most of the day" and receiving friends.

He has suffered from a recurring bronchial ailment for the last two years, they said, and was taken ill about two weeks ago.

House Action Forecast Soon On Crop Surety

Cooley Reports Sentiment Growing for Measure Like Senate's.

By Russell Smith

Early action by the House on crop insurance was forecast yesterday by Congressional leaders, following a conference of Secretary of Agriculture Henry A. Wallace and Harold D. Cooley, of North Carolina, chairman of the House agriculture subcommittee in charge of this legislation.

Sentiment favorable to passage of a bill similar to that already approved by the Senate has grown steadily the past fortnight, Cooley reported.

Representative Clifford R. Hope, of Kansas, ranking Republican member of the agriculture committee, concurred. Hope said candidly he had not been sympathetic toward the bill when the sub-committee began its hearings.

"These hearings have demonstrated to me pretty conclusively," he said, "that the bill has been carefully drawn and that the department is prepared to undertake such a program."

Cooley said, contrary to reports and despite the desperate drive of the American Farm Bureau Federation for general farm legislation, there is little prospect for Wallace's ever-normal granary plan being written into law at this session.

Cooley announced Wednesday's witnesses will conclude the subcommittee's hearings. He said the sub-committee will meet shortly, probably next week, to draft a report to the full committee. A recommendation to the House by the latter is expected soon after.

The farm tenant bill is scheduled for House passage next week.

There is little evidence, however, of any greater willingness to undertake the general farm bill. Proponents of such legislation continued their drive last night, however, when Senator James Pope (Democrat), of Idaho, author of the Senate crop insurance bill, appealed to farmers to demand its enactment.

"If Congress waits a year or two before taking these steps," he said, "the depression of farm prices will be at hand." He warned prices of farm products may "tumble below cost of production."

A. F. L. Is Favored In Fortune's Poll

New York, June 24 (U.P.).—The American public "overwhelmingly" believes the American Federation of Labor is a better bargaining agent for labor than John L. Lewis' Committee for Industrial Organization, according to a quarterly survey which will be published tomorrow by Fortune Magazine.

The survey, described as a "scientific sampling" of public thought, is the first Nation-wide poll of opinion on the controversial issue.

The survey also showed a slight margin in favor of leaving the Supreme Court undisturbed.

The survey showed that 29.8 per cent of those polled favor the American Federation of Labor, while only 10.8 per cent favored the C. I. O. Of the remainder, 53 per cent were hostile or indifferent, while 6.4 per cent favored both union movements.

The survey also revealed that 41.9 per cent favor a third term for President Roosevelt, while 51.4 per cent are against it.

That 74.4 per cent disapproved of sit-down strikes and 16.9 per cent approved of them.

Barrie Buried in Village His Book Made Famous

Kirriemuri, Scotland, June 24 (AP). Sir James M. Barrie, creator of Peter Pan, was buried today in a rhododendron-lined grave near those of his father, mother, brothers and sisters in the Kirriemuir Cemetery.

Hundreds of villagers waited outside St. Mary's Episcopal Church during services for the author who made this little weaving village famous as the "thrums" of his Scottish tales.

Municipal Bankruptcy Bill Passed by House

By the Associated Press.

The House passed and sent to the Senate yesterday the Wilcox bill to open bankruptcy courts to debt-ridden municipalities and other local government units. The standing vote was 123 to 16.

The measure would legalize debt settlement plans approved by holders of two-thirds of the aggregate amount of the indebtedness of such a government unit.

Mediation Board Statement

By the Associated Press.

Cleveland, June 24.—The text of a statement by the steel mediation board proposing a settlement of the Great Lakes steel strike follows:

"The strikes in the steel industry began May 26. Our board was appointed June 17 and held its first meeting in Cleveland Saturday, June 19.

"Our conferences and discussions, held almost continuously since the following Monday morning, with the representatives of both sides, meeting separately, have thus far failed to produce a basis of adjustment, though the issues have been clarified. We feel that the public is entitled to a statement of the situation as we now see it, and of the terms upon which we think the struggle could be settled with fairness to both sides.

Oral Agreements Denied.

"The question at stake is no longer whether an oral agreement with the union should be put in writing, but whether an agreement at all should be made. All four companies have stated that however often they might meet with representatives of the union and whatever the number of men represented by the union, they would make no agreement with it, orally or in writing. All four have denied that they ever made any oral agreement with the union, and three of the four have stated that if an oral agreement were to be made they would not object to putting it in writing. The sole question therefore is whether an agreement should be reached."

"The form of agreement presented to the companies prior to the strike was identical with that signed by most of the other steel companies. It provides for no increase in wages or decrease in hours. On the contrary, wages and hours are to remain as they are during the life of the agreement, which runs to February 28, 1938. While the companies state that they object to certain phrases in the agreement, it is clear from our discussions, as well as from the negotiations with the union prior to the strike, that the differences could be speedily settled in joint conferences, if there were any willingness to try to reach an agreement.

Contracts Successful.

"We have looked into the operation of some of the plants where the union has had a contract, including one particularly called to our attention by the employers. The responsible executives in form us that, considering the novelty of the arrangement in their plants and the inexperience of the men in union affairs, it is working reasonably well. The success depends largely upon the leadership in the particular plant.

"We appreciate the problems of management, but we think that the companies in refusing to make any agreement are taking an unwise position. Nothing can be clearer today than that management and organized labor, when it really represents the wishes of the men, have got to learn how to live together, to reach agreements and to abide by them when made. At the same time, the extent of the union's actual membership and its right to speak for the employes, has not conclusively been demonstrated. Under these circumstances we proposed to each company this settlement:

"The making and signing of an agreement with the union, to become effective only if the union wins an election; the calling off of the strike and the return of all the men to work; the holding of a secret ballot election in the company's plants by the National Labor Relations Board; the agreement to go into effect if the union wins, and to be torn up if the union loses."

Proposal Rejected.

"The companies rejected this proposal. We believe that the union would accept it or some variation of it.

"Under these terms of settlement both sides would yield something, but not more than we think they ought to yield. The union would have to take its chances on an election. If, in the case of any company, a majority rejected the union, the union would have no contract. If, on the other hand, the majority voted for the union, its contract would stand.

"The heads of the four companies have not, either during the strike or before it, ever met the union representatives, and have thus far declined to join them in conferences with us.

"I cannot but believe that the bitterness and suspicion which separate the two sides would be allayed by a man-to-man discussion around the conference table, and that the only hope of settlement lies in such a meeting.

"We now publicly urge the heads of the four companies to accept our invitation, to meet at once with the union representatives and our board, and to discuss terms of settlement and the future relations of management and employes."

Speedy Peace Asked.

"We urge each company and the union either to accept the terms of settlement which we have proposed, or to work out other terms by mutual agreement in joint conference as speedily as possible.

"We shall remain in session until we have definitely ascertained whether or not such a joint conference can be arranged.

"We have been pressed to inquire into the circumstances surrounding the killing of some 12 men and the wounding of many others, and to investigate the numerous reports of lawlessness, intimidation, violations of civil liberties, and other acts which the members of this board and all other citizens rightfully condemn. But to investigate these matters with any thoroughness and fairness would require weeks, if not months, of time, and powers of subpena, which we do not possess. We were appointed to promote a settlement and not to prosecute or apportion blame. We appeal to both sides to act with us accordingly."

Jobless Count Believed Backed by Roosevelt

A proposal for a Federal census of the unemployed reached the Senate yesterday, accompanied by a hint President Roosevelt favors it.

Chairman Black (Democrat), of Alabama, of the Education and Labor Committee, suggested the survey, which would be financed from the Administration's $1,500,000,000 relief fund. Black told reporters he had discussed the proposal with the President, and added, "I don't believe he will oppose it."

Five Trustees Of National Art Gallery Named

Mellon, Duncan Phillips Head Group Chosen by Regents of Smithsonian.

The board of regents of the Smithsonian Institute yesterday appointed five trustees for the National Gallery of Art. The action came after the board had approved the acceptance by the institution of a gift of a collection of paintings and sculptures, brought together by Andrew W Mellon.

Named to serve as trustees for the terms indicated are:

Andrew W. Mellon, of Pittsburg, donor of the collection, multimillionaire and one-time Ambassador to the Court of St. James, for the term expiring July 1, 1947.

Duncan Phillips, of Washington, for the term expiring July 1, 1943. Phillips is the founder, president and director of the Phillips Memorial Gallery here. He is the author of a number of books on art, director of the American Federation of Arts and a life director of the Museum of Modern Art in New York.

David K. E. Bruce, of Brookneal, Va., lawyer and diplomat, for the term expiring July 1, 1945. He is the husband of Mr. Mellon's daughter, Ailsa.

S. Parker Gilbert, of New York, for the term expiring July 1, 1941. Gilbert, a partner in J. P Morgan & Co., New York, was Assistant Secretary and Undersecretary of the Treasury during the administration of President Harding.

Donald D. Shepard, of Pittsburgh, for the term expiring July 1, 1939. Shepard is a trustee of the A. W. Mellon Educational and Charitable Trust and has been associated with the donor in working out plans for the National Gallery. Graduate of George Washington University, he served in the foreign service of the Department of State 1915-1924 and on the legal staff of the Treasury Department 1924-1927. Since then he has devoted his time to business and the practice of law.

In addition to these five general trustees, the terms of the statute provide that the Chief Justice of the Supreme Court, who is chancellor of the board of regents of the Smithsonian Institution; the secretary of the institution, the Secretary of State and the Secretary of the Treasury shall be ex-officio members of the managing board of nine trustees, acting with the five general trustees. Chief Justice Charles Evans Hughes, Charles G. Abbott, Cordell Hull and Henry Morgenthau, jr., are the incumbents.

A further gift of $5,600,000 as an endowment for the National Gallery will be made by the donor under a separate trust agreement now being prepared, the board was informed. Income from this gift will be used for administrative expenses and for further acquisitions of works of art.

Construction of the $11,000,000 building to house the collection is now under way. It is expected to be completed in two years.

Pirates Bold Just Racketeers, Extensive Research Discloses

Bucknell Professor, at George Washington for Summer, Plans Book, Explodes Myths of 'Zounds' and ' 'Ods Blood.'

Zounds and 'Od's Blood! There was no romance to it after all.

Buccaneering was just a business. And the pirates who sailed the Spanish Main were men of trade whose systematic methods and efficiency would not be shamed when compared to the efficiency of modern business.

Visiting Prof. Cyrus Karraker, of the George Washington University summer school, told these things as he checked over some old treasure charts and eighteenth century sea maps in his study yesterday. He said there is much confusion abroad today about pirates. He said the best you could say for them from an adventure standpoint was that they operated outside any government—except their own. But if they got caught they knew more about bribing their way to freedom, than fighting it out.

Legend Blasted.

And driving blind-folded captives off of gang planks at the point of cutlasses and pistols, the professor added, is something that pirates never did.

When he was a boy, Karraker said he read all the romantic tales about the swash-buckling ways of privateers—and liked them. It wasn't until he was getting out of college that he learned the stories were mostly nonsense. Delving into the subject of treasure hunting, he delved into old records and documents—found it was all a racket—or a business.

The pirates had a kingdom all their own on Madagascar Island, off the east coast of Africa. At the height of their activity, about 1697 to 1720, they had a king—King Baldridge by name.

Baldridge went about plundering in a most systematic way. He studied the routes over which the jewel, spice and gold laden ships of European traders sailed to India and the East. He also kept an eye on the rich Arabian cargoes in the Red Sea. He knew which vessels were well convoyed, and which were unprotected. He preferred attacking the weaker ones.

Loot Hoarded, Sold.

Loot was brought to Madagascar in an orderly way and stored there. At regular intervals it was placed aboard outbound pirate vessels, shipped around the Cape of Good Hope—to America. Merchants up and down the Colonial coast welcomed the pirates and bought the stolen wares. It was a big business. There are families today whose fortunes were founded on trade with pirates, Karraker says.

The English government tried to put a stop it it. They spent thousands of pounds in en effort to stamp the pirates out, but made little headway. The small ships of the outlaws continued to sail up American rivers, deposit their illegal cargoes and run back to Africa.

The most the British could do—until after the first quarter of the eighteenth century—was to sink a few treasure ships. And that, together with the shipwrecks that tossed precious minerals and jewels up on the coasts of faraway isles, led to another development—treasure hunting.

Just Business.

There was hysteria in those days—hysteria about treasure hunting, just like there was in the gold rush days of 150 years later.

"But that became a business, too," said Prof. Karraker, "companies were formed to conduct treasure hunting expeditions. All kinds of get-rich-quick schemes were foisted on the public. Some people got rich quick, many of them lost their investments."

The $1,500,000 treasure find on Silver Bank on the northern coast of San Domingo, now called Hispaniola, was the subject of Karraker's first book a couple of years ago.

The important thing is that it was all a business—that men invested their money in treasure hunts, just as they might in oil fields today.

A business, too, is the job of getting the low-down on the old buccaneers and their treasure. Karraker, who teaches history at Bucknell, has spent all his spare time for six years in libraries and museums in Philadelphia, New York, London, and now the Library of Congress.

Book in the Making.

He's always wanted to go on one of the treasure-hunting expeditions—there are still plenty of them being organized—but has never found anyone who would take him.

Information he is uncovering now will be used in a book which he will call "Colonial Speculation and Racketeering." A chapter will be devoted to pirates, another to treasure hunting.

While pirates, as a result of all this study, can no longer be the romantic heroes they once were, Karraker said yesterday, he wanted to credit them with making history come alive for him.

"When I find there were men in the eighteenth century who carried on much as men do today, I have a feeling that I have run up against a real thing. Many of the heroes of history, even of American history, don't live because they are surrounded with tradition and legend," he said.

And the pirates would be, too, if we thought of them in the conventional light. But that was false. Pirates were plain men who weren't above paying out some of their gold to a magistrate to let them out of jail.

Why they didn't even say "Zounds" and "'Od's Blood." They used the same strong words that landlubbers used.

eral workers "and any groups that wish to join."

No initiation fees will be charged during the period of intensive organization. Dues have been fixed for the provisional organization at 75 cents a month. Of this, 50 cents will go to the national office.

The national organization is now receiving applications from interested groups. It was said yesterday that "the volume of mail has been such that the officers are a little uncertain as to how many applications are in. A steady stream of representatives of organized groups and individuals who wish to organize locals in the departments in which they work is flowing through the temporary offices," it was stated.

Applications are about evenly distributed between Washington and the remainder of the country, it was said.

Pittsburgh Settles Newspaper Strike

Pittsburgh, June 24 (AP).—Tom Williams, secretary of the Pittsburgh Newspaper Publishers Association, announced settlement tonight of a strike of mailing room employes whcih had caused all three local papers to suspend publication.

William said the vote to return to work was "overwhelming" and that the strikers would return under their old contract, which the publishers had asserted was to continue until January 7, 1938.

Police Speed Lincoln's Death Investigation

Officers Study New Tip, Search Musty Files for Original Report.

Under a cloak of impenetrable mystery—well almost impenetrable—the Washington Police Department yesterday swung into action on a 72-year-old murder case, the assassination of Abraham Lincoln in Ford's Theater on the night of April 14, 1865.

The new investigation centered in the musty cellar of the District Building, where old police records are stored.

Here might have been seen Detective Sergt. Frank Brass, a member of the headquarters pickup squad, stumbling in the gloom over old books and fighting off cobwebs as he sought the original police report on Lincoln's death.

Brass was assigned to look for the report because a man in New York wrote a letter to Maj. Ernest W. Brown, superintendent of police. This man, whose identity has been withheld, told Brown the copy of the police report in the Lincoln Museum at Ford's Theater is not a true copy.

Why the New York man made such a charge, whether be belongs to the group that still is asking, "Who killed Lincoln"—these were questions that remained unanswered. Maj. Brown said he wanted to wait to reveal the contents of the letter until the investigation was "completed."

In any event, Maj. Brown's historical sense has been aroused, and presumably Sergt. Brass today will return to his search in the District Building cellar.

Yesterday Ira Gullickson, the official police photographer, made a photograph of the copy of the police report on Lincoln's death, now on exhibition at Ford's Theater, so that if the original is found comparisons may be made.

So far as experts on Lincolniana hereabouts could recall, this is the first time any question has ever been raised concerning the police report on Lincoln's death.

But for 72 years controversies have been raging around most other phases of the crime. There are, for example, those who deny John Wilkes Booth, the assassin, was killed by soldiers who pursued him into Virginia. Some members of this school argue that Booth had a "stooge" and that it was he who was burned when the barn caught fire.

In the southwestern part of the United States, in a sideshow, one may see the body of a man purported to be that of Booth. The exhibitor says Booth, escaping after the assassination, taught school in the West and lived for many years. To which most students of Lincoln reply, "Rot."

Then there is a controversy over the four conspirators who were hanged here in Washington after the assassination, with many contending some of them should never have gone to the gallows.

A recent book implied that Stanton, Lincoln's Secretary of War, was to blame for the assassination, and the result was another fierce controversy.

black, with high front and low back, was accompanied tonight by Ernest K. Lindley, Washington representative of the New York Herald Tribune; her daughter, Mrs. Anna Roosevelt Dall Boettiger, and her husband, John, publisher of the Seattle, Wash., Post-Intelligencer, and Earl Miller, personnel director of the New York State department of correction, who, in the face of romantic reports connecting him with Roberta, was described by the dancer as "merely a good friend," met when she was introduced to Mrs. Roosevelt at Hyde Park.

French, British Ready to 'Defend Interests in Mediterranean.'

mittee in London is searching for new methods to control the civil war and also retain Italian and German co-operation.

Proposals being discussed among the principal European powers, it was stated, are designed to satisfy Italy and Germany, which yesterday withdrew from the four-power naval patrol to keep foreign fighters and munitions out of Spain.

But while tension showed signs of easing, Premier Benito Mussolini and King Vittorio Emanuele signed a decree making Tripoli a new naval base, commanding passage to the Suez Canal.

The new center will have a squadron strong enough to control the Libyan coast, the route of Great Britain's "empire life line."

New nonintervention proposals were reported under discussion while Italian warships patrolled the Spanish coast with orders to retaliate in case of attack by the Spanish government.

Although Italy was said to have no intention of returning to the control patrol as yet, informed sources declared she would welcome "the appearance of a new spirit in the nonintervention committee, taking into consideration the dangers of Bolshevism."

London Strives for Peace.

London, June 24 (AP).—The British government and especially its foreign secretary, Anthony Eden, worked vigorously today to allay Europe's latest war scare and to distract attention from a convergence of the powers' warships toward the Spanish danger zone.

While Germany sent more naval craft into the Mediterranean, France maneuvered fighting ships between Algeria and Sardinia and Italian warships patrolled Spanish coasts, the British admiralty, directing the largest fleet of all, remained silent.

It declined to disclose the dispositions of Britain's naval strength around Spain, while its spokesmen discounted the reported massing of German and Italian fleets in the Mediterranean.

Eden told the House of Commons that reports of German naval movements "should be received with great reserve."

Nevertheless there remained much uneasiness over the possibility of independent action by Italy and Germany against the Spanish government.

This, it was understood in authoritative quarters, had caused the British Ambassador in Berlin, Sir Nevile Henderson, to warn Germany yesterday that Britain would "regard most seriously" any hostile action against Valencia.

Authoritative sources said the British government held assurances that neither Germany nor Italy would take such individual naval action. Both powers, it was stated, were content for the present to withdraw their ships from the international patrol of Spanish coasts.

This action they took yesterday when Britain and France refused to join them in a naval demonstration against Valencia, which Berlin had demanded as punishment for an alleged submarine attack against the German cruiser Leipzig.

Eden spent much time in conference with other cabinet members to prepare a "full dress" debate on foreign affairs in the House of Commons tomorrow.

That discussion was expected to produce a statement of the government's policy toward the European-Spanish crisis and crystallize British sentiment concerning what course should be followed if Italy and Germany intervene in Spain.

Spain Fears Blockade.

Madrid, June 24 (AP).—Spanish government spokesmen declared tonight they feared Germany and Italy were preparing to blockade their ports.

Reports that the two nations are sending additional warships to the Spanish coast "to protect their interests" clearly indicate neither country intends to keep hands off the Spanish civil war, these spokesmen said.

Loyalist Ship Sunk.

Port Vendres, France, June 24 (AP). The insurgent cruiser Baleares bombarded and sank the Spanish government freighter Trinidad seven miles off the French coast today.

Another Spanish government vessel, the Carmelita, which was accompanying the Trinidad, escaped into French territorial waters.

The Trinidad's crew of seven, which attempted to flee in a lifeboat, was captured and taken aboard the 10,000-ton Baleares.

Basques Beg for Planes.

By the United Press.

Hendaye, Franco-Spanish Frontier (Friday), June 25.—Gen. Franco's Fascist armies early today launched a "furious attack" upon Basques defending the border of Santander Province.

More than 200 bombing planes and scores of tanks led the assault.

The loyalist war office, which received a frantic appeal from Santander, for 50 war planes to prevent Franco from becoming absolute master of northern Spain, announced Santander's Basque defenders and insurgent troops were locked in a terrific combat along a 6-mile front.

The rebels, it was admitted, obtained complete domination of the industrial zone west of Bilbao and drove on toward the rich mining region along the Santander-Viscaya frontier, where fighting raged early today.

Rev. Maguire Gives Support To 'Sit-Downs'

Worker's Property Right to Job Emphasized At Institute.

Numerous justifications for sit-down strikes were offered at yesterday's Institute on Industry at the National Catholic School of Social Service.

The Rev. J. W. R. Maguire, well-known as a mediator in Midwestern labor disputes, declared that a worker has a property right to his job. He is assured of "life, liberty and the pursuit of happiness," and he can have none of these without his job.

Further, the factory may be considered as an extension of a man's home, and "a man's home is his castle," he said. Before the industrial revolution, manufacturing was done entirely in the home. Factories came in for reasons of convenience and economy but effected no basic change in the relationship between the worker and his work, he added.

Father Maguire quoted a worker as saying during a sit-down strike that he and his fellow-employees were not occupying their employer's property; they were occupying their jobs.

Less Hardship.

Miss Elizabeth Christman, secretary of the National Women's Trade Union League of America, also favored the sit-down strike. For practical reasons, it is more convenient for the worker and for the employer than mass picketing tactics, she said.

"I've had to get up at 5:30 on a cold January morning in order to go on duty at 6:15 without any breakfast, and I know," she said emphatically. She is in favor of the new system which causes less hardship for the picketers.

From the employer's standpoint, the sit-down is less destructive to his property. Sit-downs are more orderly and less violent than other type of labor protests, she believes. They also eliminate scabs, who are usually inexperienced in the job given them and cause damage to the machines.

In contrast, she told of the sit-downer who shivered before an open window, having wrapped his overcoat around his machine to keep it in good condition until he went back to work.

Discipline Stressed.

Both speakers stressed the discipline prevailing among the sit-downers in every instance. Father Maguire labeled it "the most ladylike and most effective" type of strike.

Speaking on "The Ethics and Conduct of Strikes," the mediator-priest blamed much of the violence incident to labor troubles on the employer himself. He has known factory-owners to instigate shootings in order to gain police or military protection for their plants. He has also seen police and pickets join forces to put down violence.

Violence caused by striking unions is not only unjustified but is bad tactics, he believes. On the whole, peaceful strikes are won and violent strikes lost.

The Right Rev. Msgr. John A. Ryan lectured on the methods by which wages are determined. Last night he led an informal discussion on "Rights and Wrongs in Industry."

Round table discussions were also held on "Low Wages and Other Economic Factors Related to Family Life," led by the Rev. Edgar Schmiedeler, of the National Catholic Welfare Conference, and "Wages of Women Workers and the Cost of Living," led by Miss Linna E. Bresette, field secretary of the conference's Department of Social Action.

'Further Study' To Extend Visit Of Van Zeeland

Belgian's Talks With Hull, Roosevelt Involve Trade Problems.

of world commerce. Thus it might take two general forms: The lowering and elimination of trade barriers or the easing of the flow of credit and existing financial restrictions.

Agree on First Form.

As for the first of these two possible forms, there was apparently little or no difference of opinion between Dr. Van Zeeland and Secretary Hull. The two statesmen had not talked five minutes yesterday morning when it became obvious they saw eye-to-eye on that aspect of the world situation. The Belgian is as strong an advocate of lowering tariffs and wiping out quotas and trade restrictions as Secretary Hull is.

Thus it was more likely that the subject in the Van Zeeland-Hull conversations which required further thought and exploration was on the financial or monetary side of the situation. Any speculation along that line must necessarily be cautious, as were the public expressions of Secretary Hull and Dr. Van Zeeland on that aspect of the discussions.

This mysterious topic or topics might have to do with a further extension or a perfection of the tripartite monetary agreement of last September. In view of the financial crisis in France, the worth of that undertaking remains to be demonstrated, although it has contributed a marked degree of stability to world currencies and foreign exchange for almost nine months. It may well be that further developments in France are necessary before conversations along this line could be completed.

May Study U. S. Aid.

On the other hand, the Van Zeeland-Hull conferences may have been adjourned until next week to permit exploration of informal proposals for American financial assistance to European countries, notably Germany, as a quid pro quo for more generous treatment, through a reciprocal agreement, of American exports and some curbing of armament plans.

Indeed, a New York Times cable from Basle last week reported that the Prime Minister came here equipped with a plan whereby the United States would deposit, at a rate of interest, some of its idle gold with the Bank of International Settlements in order that loans might be made to European countries needing such assistance. The authenticity of that report remains to be determined and it is not known whether such a plan figured in Dr. Van Zeeland's conversations here.

But whatever the subject requiring further conversation between the Belgian statesmen and American officials, it may be said on the highest authority that it does not concern the convocation of a general economic conference. Such an undertaking is definitely out of the picture at this time.

Dr. Van Zeeland concurs in the view of American officials that the time is not ripe for such a conference and that it would be dangerous to risk another failure in that direction. Thus for the present all efforts will be devoted to bilateral conversations and exploratory spade-work as to what can be done to help the present world situation. The Belgian brought word that few responsible statesmen believe that a general economic conference could be made successful at this time.

No Need for Speed.

Nor is it believed that there is any need to rush matters now. The prospect of war in Europe has decreased perceptibly during the last year and tension gradually is diminishing, although an unforeseen incident might at any time rekindle the old war threat.

The prime minister, after a lengthy discussion with President Roosevelt and Secretary Hull Wednesday night in the White House study, rose early yesterday. He began a conference with Secretary Hull at 9:30 a. m. which lasted 2 hours and 20 minutes. At its conclusion he returned to the White House for a further brief talk with the President.

He lunched as the guest of honor of Secretary and Mrs. Hull and was given an opportunity on that occasion to converse with some of the Cabinet members and State Department officials. Later in the afternoon he again went into conference with Secretary Hull. He dined last night as the guest of James C. Dunn, chief of the European Division of the State Department, and Mrs. Dunn, and thus was enabled further to talk with American officials charged with conducting foreign relations.

Speaking of his morning conference with the prime minister, Secretary Hull confined himself to a general outline of the discussion. He explained that the conference had been devoted to a general discussion of the world economic situation. He said no effort had been made to reach any decisions or conclusions. He reported, however, a close agreement of viewpoints between himself and the prime minister regarding the necessity for a restoration of foreign trade and the soundness of such a policy as a preserver of world peace. He indicated war debts had not been mentioned and said that at that time he knew nothing about the reported Basle plan.

Dr. Van Zeeland, prevented from meeting the press by the length of his conferences with Secretary Hull until early last night, explained he had no formal statement to make, but that he was able to give a few personal impressions gained from his contact with the American officials. He likewise said his conversations with Secretary Hull were concerned with the world economic situation and with the possibilities for removing obstacles from commercial intercourse among nations.

He said he had found Secretary Hull not only ready but anxious to have the United States co-operate with the rest of the world in restoring prosperity and promoting peace by an improvement in trade between nations. He explained his conversations with the President and Secretary Hull had been "open-hearted" and that actually the conferees had been engaged in "thinking aloud."

Satisfied With Results.

Irrespective of what may follow, Prime Minister Van Zeeland expressed satisfaction with the result of his visit, and said that he, for one, had a clearer and better understanding of American problems, what this country has done and is willing to do on the world front.

It was at this point that he said several subjects had been discussed between him and Secretary Hull which "required thinking over," and that consequently there would be another meeting between them next Tuesday—"after time has elapsed in which to reflect on many things of importance." He added that the change in his plans would not interfere with his original intention to leave this country next Wednesday.

The prime minister will speak at a luncheon of the National Press Club today and he also will address the Foreign Policy Council in New York on Monday. In those two addresses he may elaborate his own views and reveal further details of what has transpired during his visit here.

Addason paid $115 corporate tax in 1934, no surtax, and saved $26,500. Penn paid no corporate tax, no surtax and saved $76,585 in taxes.

Daughter of Mellon.

Ailsa Mellon Bruce, of New York City and Syosset, Long Island, daughter of Andrew Mellon and wife of David K. C. Bruce; through a personal holding company, the Coalesced Company, reported an adjusted net income in 1936 of $5,360,461, with no tax liability, and a recomputed tax of $332,621, according to the Treasury.

Thomas W. Lamont, 66, banker, of Palisades, N. Y., member of the firm of J. P. Morgan & Co. since 1911; through Beech Corporation, personal holding company, reported adusted net income for 1936 of $757,174, with tax liability of $27,107. His wife, Mrs. Florence Corliss Lamont, through her personal holding company, reported 1936 adjusted net income of $271,459, with a tax liability of $117, with the Government's recomputed tax, $32,209.

Mrs. Willys Named.

Isabel Willys, wife of John N. Willys, manufacturer, diplomat, once chairman of the board of Willys-Overland and former Ambassador to Poland. Willys, 64, married her in 1897. Her personal holding company, reporting an adjusted net income in 1936 of $12,396 (with a Treasury loss disallowance of $137,010), gave her a tax liability of $1,585, with a recomputed tax of "about $25,000."

Alfred P. Sloan, jr., 62, chairman of the board of General Motors Corporation, director in duPont, Pullman and Johns-Manville companies, at home in New York City; and his wife, Mrs. Irene Jackson Sloan, through four personal holding companies, in which each owned various proportions of stock, reported an adjusted net income in 1936 of $2,955,138 with a tax liability of $281,759, as against a recomputed tax of $514,448.

Charles Hayden, deceased last January, banker, copper magnate, railroad director, officer in 70 corporations, through two personal holding companies, showed 1936 adjusted net income of $626,532, with tax liability—$127,251, and tax liability recomputed for one section of $155,028.

Banker Is Listed.

Jeremiah Milbank, 50, of New York City, banker, corporation director, clubman, through a personal holding company showed 1936 adjusted net income of $218,937 with tax liability of $38,394, against recomputed liability of $50,542.

William S. Paley, 36, of New York City, president, Columbia Broadcasting System, through a personal holding company, reported 1936 adjusted net income of $104,563, with tax liability of $4,057, with a recomputed estimate of $11,690 as his liability if net income were undistributed.

Jacob Ruppert, 69, of New York City, four-term Congressman (1898-1907), brewer, dog fancier, racing stable owner and owner of the New York Yankees, baseball team, reported 1936 adjusted income of $379,031, with tax due of $9,381, against a recomputed estimate of $25,929.

Raskob Reports "No Tax."

John J. Raskob, 58, of New York City and Centerville, Md., capitalist, of duPont and General Motors Corporation boards, former national chairman of the Democratic National Committee, reported no tax payable on a net income for 1936 of $121,943, adjusted through "losses" on sales and exchanges to his company of $600,959, as against a recomputed tax liability of $123,924. However, the personal holding company used by Raskob is partly owned also by Pierre duPont, 67, of Wilmington, Del., chairman, E. I. duPont de Nemours company and director of General Motors.

D. W. Dietrich, 70, of Philadelphia, deceased last year, reported a 1934 net income of $293,274, paid no corporate tax nor personal holding company surtax and avoided payment of $60,000 in surtax.

The Fisher brothers, of Detroit, makers of the famed Fisher bodies, including Fred J., 50, oldest, vice president of General Motors, director in 17 corporations; O. D., O. W. and D. R., through the use of a personal holding company each, reported net incomes in 1934 and 1936 (lumping all totals) of $1,045,493; paid taxes amounting to $181,803, and avoided taxes that could have amounted to $263,902 at the minimum.

William T. Dewart, 62, of New York's Park avenue and Greenwich, Conn., publisher of the New York Sun, used the New York Sun, Inc., to report a 1936 adjusted net income of $198,842, with no tax liability due to a $300,000 "loss" by sale and exchange of stock, as against a recomputed Treasury tax estimate of $8,745 as the maximum exemption.

C. C. duPont Leads Family.

In the duPont family, C. C. duPont, through the Delaware Realty and Investment Co., led the rest of the family in adjusted net income for 1936, with $7,784,041. By paying out dividends to the extent of $7,776,000 he avoided the personal holding company tax, although recomputed estimates on undistributed income would have placed the tax at $1,247. One Treasury list of this table placed this income to Pierre duPont, instead of C. C. duPont.

The remaining duPonts, Col. H. A., R. C., Mrs. W. duPont Ross, Mrs. Ethel H. duPont, Paulina, Pierre and F. V., showed a total net adjusted income in 1936 of $769,818, paid a personal holding company tax of but $3,021 and could have paid a recomputed estimate if income undistributed, of $119,244.

Duncan Phillips, 51, of Washington, D. C., founder, president, of Phillips Memorial Gallery, and author on art subjects, showed an adjusted net income for 1936 of $1,568,928, paid no personal holding company tax, against recomputed tax estimates of $14,849.

tax of $1,638,023. As it was, only two companies paid the surtax, totaling $25,587. If the companiess had but one stockholder, he said, and were without other income, they would have paid the Treasury another $1,612,436.

La Follette Interested.

Senator Robert M. La Follette (Progressive), Wisconsin, then asked the bureau to furnish more information of the previous tax records of these companies; asked for a report on major losses of personnel through the "graduation" of Bureau experts to private practice as tax-advising lawyers; and suggested to the bureau that they refer to secret testimony on income-tax evasion given before the Senate Finance Committee in 1936 for further "tips" on tax evaders.

Representative Frank Crowther (Republican), New York, took exception to the statement that the names of 44 owners of 50 personal holding companies, besides the first 17, had been chosen "purely at random." Helvering stuck to the statement, but at intervals throughout the rest of the session Crowther could be heard audibly muttering in sarcastic tones, "At random hey? Eight duPonts on the list! Purely at random!"

The duPonts listed were Mrs. Ethel H. duPont, Pierre, C. C., F. V., Paulina, H. A., R. C., and Mrs. W. duPont Ross.

Block "Avoidance" Denied.

New York, June 24 (AP).—Paul Block newspapers, through Daniel Nicoll, associate publisher, released tonight a letter from a New York attorney which they claimed showed there was no tax consideration connected with organization of Consolidated Publishers, Inc., listed in Washington today among tax avoiding holding companies.

The attorney, Mark Eisner, in the letter, addressed today to Paul Block, publisher of newspapers in Toledo, Ohio, Pittsburgh, Pa., Newark, N. J., and Milwaukee, Wis., pointed out the company was formed in 1926, "when the term 'personal holding company' was unknown to tax laws."

He said the company was formed solely at the behest of bankers to handle collateral and stock sales in connection with loans in expansion of Block's newspaper holdings, and was continued only because its outstanding obligations still remained in the hands of the public.

Gets Term for Evasion.

New York, June 24 (AP).—David Oppenheim, vice president and general manager of the Yvette Co., beauty shop operators, was sentenced to a year and a day in jail and fined $20,000 today after he was convicted on a charge of evading Federal income taxes.

The company, also convicted, was fined $20,000.

Hamilton Pleads For Va. Navy Yard

By the Associated Press.

Representative Norman R. Hamilton, of Portsmouth, Va., asked Secretary Swanson yesterday what would constitute the "'full share of work' you have before and have now specifically promised" to the Norfolk Navy Yard.

Hamilton's letter to the Secretary, inserted in the records of the House Naval Affairs Committee, replied to the Secretary's letter explaining why he denied the committee's request that all navy yards be allowed to bid on one of the two new battleships to be laid down next year.

At the time the committee's request was made, it was planned to assign one ship to a private yard and one to a navy yard. Since the request and the Secretary's reply, however, private bids were rejected and both ships assigned to navy yards, one to Brooklyn and one to Philadelphia.

Farley Forecasts Court Plan Victory

Boston, June 24 (AP).—Postmaster General James A. Farley today predicted "a court plan satisfactory to the President would be passed in this session" of Congress.

He declined comment on a statement by Gov. George H. Earle of Pennsylvania that he would support President Roosevelt for a third term.

Evidence in six cases of alleged interference with the delivery of United States mail in strike-torn Ohio had been investigated thoroughly by the United States attorney and postal inspectors in that State, he told newspapermen.

Harvard Shifts Pound.

Cambridge, Mass., June 24 (AP).—Harvard University tonight announced the appointment of Roscoe Pound, Carter professor of general jurisprudence and former dean of the Harvard Law School, to a university professorship under Harvard's new plan of roving or interdepartmental professorships.

Congress Will Restore $60,000,000 AAA Cut

By the Associated Press.

Congressional conferees agreed yesterday to restore the $60,000,000 cut by the Senate from the $500,000,000 fund for AAA payments next year.

Chairman Smith, of the Senate Agriculture Committee and one of the conferees for the Senate, said the conferees had signed an agreement on the big agriculture appropriation bill carrying in excess of $90,000,000.

The conference agreement wiped out the biggest victory achieved this session by the Senate economy bloc.

funds between white and colored schools.

Initial appropriations for the Thomas Jefferson Memorial High School and the Northern High School were kept at the figures reported to the Senate. This means a reduction of $100,000 in each instance.

The House agreed to the change in the location of the proposed public health center and allowed the colored schools $17,500 for the site of the Jones Elementary School. This amount was then appropriated for the purchase of land for a new colored school in the vicinity of First and Pierce streets northwest. The Senate had voted $35,000.

The department of vehicles and traffic was restored to the general fund, although its transfer to the highway fund is proposed in the pending omnibus tax bill, but the trees and parking division and the maintenance of curbs and gutters were placed on the gasoline fund.

Insurance Inspector Provided.

The House prevailed in restoring an item of $4,600 to employ a fire insurance expert to investigate rates in the District after Collins had shown the conferees figures to prove that losses amounted to only 31 per cent of premiums in recent years.

The Senate was forced to recede on its amendment to split the costs of the District Court and the Court of Appeals between the Federal and District Governments. Collins insisted that its acceptance would constitute a betrayal of the House, which in effect had rejected the Jacobs report recommending a similar division of costs.

Collins prevailed in limiting the administrative cost of the Public Assistance Division to 10 per cent of the appropriation.

Thomas succeeded in restoring the office of superintendent of licenses to the assessor's office. The House had moved it to the office of superintendent of weights.

The children's receiving home was retained as the House managers agreed not to press their plan for substituting a system of boarding homes.

Increases were allowed for the workhouse and reformatory, the National Training School for Girls, and the Industrial Home School for Colored Children, although additions for personnel services were eliminated or reduced.

Collins prevailed upon the Senate conferees to allow $5,000 for the auditor's office "for examination of estimates, appropriations, and for other purposes."

A proviso restricting the issuance of Congressional auto tags to those persons designated in the act of December 19, 1932, was restored to the bill upon insistence of the House managers.

Among the Senate increases stricken out by the conferees were the following:

Building inspection division, $1,500; coroner's office, $1,440; Public Utilities Commission, $7,500; surveyor's office, $1,000; suburban sewers, $25,000; Metropolitan Police, $5,520; Fire Department (pay), $13,100; National Capital Parks, $6,380; and Police Court, $14,850.

Roosevelt to Hear Home Owners' Plea

Amelioration of home owners' troubles will be proposed to President Roosevelt during the three-day series of conferences at Jefferson Islands beginning today, the Home Owners Association of Oklahoma said through its president, Mrs. Milton Roe Sabin, here last night.

The association's plea for a moratorium on foreclosures by the Home Owners Loan Corporation, pending amendment of present law, will be presented to the President by the Oklahoma Senators, Mrs. Sabin said.

Formal Discharge Read for Married Annapolis Student

Annapolis, Md., June 24 (AP).—Rear Admiral David Foote Sellers, superintendent of the Naval Academy, today officially notified the midshipmen of the discharge of Charles A. Nash, jr., Saginaw, Mich., from the Naval Service.

Nash's commission as an ensign was revoked by the Navy Department when it was learned he had married Mrs. Beulah Kathleen Woolard Nash, of Norfolk, Va., while still a midshipman.

The following order, issued by the admiral, was read to the midshipmen at supper formation:

"Having married in violation of Naval Academy regulations and having on June 3, 1937, sworn falsely to a statement on the beneficiary slip form N-Nav-521, the commission of Ensign Charles Alden Nash, jr., United States Navy, was revoked * * *."

Canterbury Hits Easier Divorces

London, June 24 (AP).—The Archbishop of Canterbury, who led the opposition to the marriage of his former King, Edward VIII, to a twice-divorced woman, attacked "hotel bill" divorces today as "a sort of constructive perjury."

Speaking in the House of Lords on a bill designed to "modernize" English divorce laws, the Archbishop said:

"Adultery is being treated with a levity which is really shocking to any sort of moral sense."

Press Assailed By Lady Astor In an Interview

Peeress Lauds President for 'Not Hating Back;' Asks 'Mercy.'

the said. "'Lady Astor Slams America; Goes Back on the Land of Her Birth; Anglicized, She Does Not Understand Conditions.'

"But," she admonished, "don't say 'British Peeress Came Back to Criticize'—because tain't true."

Of the strained European situation she said: "If England holds her head and Germany doesn't do anything foolish, we'll get out of this." Then, she added:

"If the British empire and the United States remain together, not to rule the world but to keep it steady, the more likely is the world to become stabilized. That is the only chance."

Her mood varying between seeming consternation and bursts of laughter as more questions were fired at her, Lady Astor continued:

"Why don't you ask what I think of bringing the Basque children to America?"

"Why don't you ask it yourself?" a reporter rejoined, "you're doing quite well."

Another burst of laughter and then:

"Why I was working in the interests of children when some of these people, so active now, didn't know children existed. I was opposed to bringing the Basque children, war refugees, from Spain to England, and to bring them 3,000 miles farther, across the ocean to America, would be more unkind."

She said, in response to a question, that it will be "a long time" before there is a woman president in America, "but why anyone should want to be President is beyond me."

A woman on the Supreme Court? It would be "only justice."

"But I want women to remember that it is the countries where women are free," she remarked, "that the countries are stable, as in England, the United States and Sweden. But in those countries like Italy, Spain and Russia, where the women are told to breed, you have the most appalling things going on."

For Secretary of Labor Perkins she has "great admiration," she said, adding that "I intend to tell her so."

"Will the President's good neighbor policy click?" she was asked.

A laugh came with her reply: "Well, look at the good neighbors in Europe now." But she added that the policy will succeed, "because it's right."

Asked for comment on the romance of the Duke of Windsor and the former Wallis Simpson, she quoted the response, "Do you think I'm a cheese?"

Moving toward the door, she appealed to her interviewers to be merciful in what they wrote, considering her status as a "politician."

"All will be sweetness and light in what we write," one assured her.

"Sweetness and light," she murmured, shaking her head as if in amazed disbelief—"sweetness and light."

Lady Astor plans to sail Wednesday on her return to England.

Pye Succeeded By Richardson As Leahy Aide

Former Assistant Chief Will Head Destroyers, Scouting Force.

Rear Admiral James O. Richardson, United States Navy, has relieved Rear Admiral William S. Pye, United States Navy, as assistant chief of Naval Operations, the Navy Department announced yesterday. Early in July Rear Admiral Pye will assume command of destroyers, Scouting Force, the command relinquished by Rear Admiral Richardson June 7.

Born at Paris, Tex., Rear Admiral Richardson was graduated from the Naval Academy in 1902, and served as navigator of the U. S. S. Nevada during the World War. In 1924, while serving as assistant chief of the Bureau of Ordnance at the Navy Department, he was promoted to captain, and placed in command of Destroyer Division 38 of the Scouting Fleet. The previous year Rear Admiral Richardson was commander of the South China patrol during troubled conditions in China. He was ordered to Washington again in 1928 and placed in charge of officer personnel in the Bureau of Navigation. Two years later he was placed in command of the heavy cruiser U. S. S. Augusta, and served in that capacity two years.

After attending the Naval War College, at Newport, R. I., for a year, Rear Admiral Richardson returned to Washington as budget officer of the Navy Department. In August, 1935, he was placed in command of Cruiser Division No. 6, and the following September was transferred to duty as Chief of Staff, Commander-in-Chief, U. S. Fleet. Rear Admiral Richardson had been serving as commander of destroyers, Scouting Force, since June 25, 1936.

Rear Admiral Pye, who has been Assistant Chief of Naval Operations since June 1, 1936, was born in Minneapolis, June 9, 1880. Shortly after the World War Admiral Pye served in the War Plans Division of the Office of Naval Operations, and again from 1924 until 1927.

Graduating from the Naval Academy in 1901, Rear Admiral Pye served during the World War as Intelligence Officer of the Atlantic Fleet and also as Tactical and War Plans Officer. He was awarded the Navy Cross for his service during the war.

Appointed to head the United States naval mission to Peru in 1929, Admiral Pye served in that capacity until he assumed command of the U. S. S. Nevada four years later. Rear Admiral Pye was appointed Director of War Plans at the Navy Department in April, 1935, and served a year in that position, before becoming Assistant Chief of Naval Operations.

2 Boys Burned Setting Fire to Grasshopper

Council Bluffs, Iowa, June 24 (AP).—A flaming grasshopper, set afire by two small boys, turned on its tormentors today, sent one to a hospital and the others to his home suffering from burns.

Authorities said the boys, Walter Rude, 9, and Clifford Snipes, 8, caught the grasshopper, partially embedded in a ball of putty and poured gasoline on it, meantime carelessly drenching their clothes.

They applied a match to the grasshopper. In flames, it leaped into the air, first landing on Walter and then on Clifford.

Colored Youth Given Life Term for Attack

Norfolk, Va., June 24 (AP).—Louis Napoleon Riddick, 19-year-old colored youth, was under life sentence today on a charge of attempting to attack a white woman at Pungo.

Circuit Judge B. D. White, who passed sentence yesterday in the Princess Anne court, granted a 60-day stay, however, when Defense Attorney O. C. Davis announced he would seek a writ of error from the Virginia Supreme Court of Appeals.

Davis said he would base his petition to the supreme court on "excitement" and "threatened" mob violence after the colored youth was arrested.

Senate Almost Votes Increase In Income Tax

Finally Downs Amendment, Sends 'Nuisance' Bill to Roosevelt.

By the Associated Press.

Senators marched up the hill of steeper income taxes yesterday—and then marched right down again.

First, the Senate surprised all observers by approving, 35 to 31, a La Follette proposal to assess higher-bracket taxpayers an additional $278,000,000.

This was not in accord with the no-higher-taxes ideas of Administration leaders, who got busy quickly. They succeeded in getting the Senators to reject the proposal, 42 to 29.

Senator La Follette (Progressive), of Wisconsin, had offered it as an amendment to a bill extending $650,000,000 of "nuisance" and other taxes for two years. As soon as the income tax excitement died down, the Senate quickly approved the $650,000,000 measure without a record vote, and sent it to the White House.

Levies Listed.

Among the levies continued are those on gasoline, electricity, lubricating oils, telephone and telegraph messages, toilet preparations, pipe line transportation, mechanical refrigerators, matches, sporting goods, radio sets, fur articles, firearms, brewers' wort, chewing gum, cameras and lenses, automobiles and automobile accessories.

Import taxes on crude petroleum, coal, coke, copper, lumber, paraffin and gasoline also were extended, as was 3-cent postage.

La Follette argued that it is unlikely that the budget "can ever be balanced by reduction of expenditures." He said taxes should be boosted because incomes are rising and the country is well able to begin meeting accumulated obligations.

Pledge Consideration.

To get the Senate to reverse itself on the La Follette surtaxes, Administration leaders virtually had to promise to consider them next year. They argued this was not the time to make such an important change in the tax structure.

Switches on the second vote included Senators Davis (Republican), Pennsylvania; Herring (Democrat), Iowa; Johnson (Democrat), Colorado; McGill (Democrat), Kansas; Pepper (Democrat), Florida; Schwartz (Democrat), Wyoming, and Truman (Democrat), Missouri.

When La Follette stepped forward with another proposal to collect $100,000,000 by lowering personal income tax exemptions, the Administration chiefs were on guard. This idea went down before a volley of noes, although there were many ayes.

Amendments Overruled.

Senator Vandenberg (Republican), of Michigan, sought to modify the corporate surplus tax, declaring the burden of debt-ridden corporations should be lightened. His amendment was defeated.

"There is a critical situation in small industry with respect to this tax," Vandenberg warned. "You may say wait another year, but it will put the tombstone on the grave of many small industries that cannot survive."

Senator Russell (Democrat), of Georgia, sought to abolish the 3-cent postal extension, but in vain.

Fear of Revolution Paralyzes Soviet With Panic, Editor Says

Dread Is Nation's 'Black Bread' as Bitter Internal Struggle Threatens to Flare at Any Time, He Asserts.

By the Associated Press.

New York, June 24.—Soviet Russia is paralyzed with panic induced by fear a smouldering "undercover revolution" will flare into open revolt, Grove Patterson, editor of the Toledo (Ohio) Blade, said today on his return from a tour of 14 European countries.

"Fear, fear, fear—they eat it and sleep it," he said. "It is the black bread of Russia."

Patterson expressed belief the Soviet Union was engaged in a bitter internal struggle that would test its government to the utmost. He saw the physical health of Joseph Stalin as the fulcrum upon which the fate of the "counter revolution" is balanced.

Officials Live In Dread.

"The panic that rules Russia, a mass hysteria that has every man in high place living in dread, stems from the primary panic in Stalin himself.

"Stalin still apparently has the army. Whether his government stands is in large measure dependent on whether his health can stand up under the strain. If he dies, it is doubtful whether any successor could suppress the discontented, old-order bolsheviks without open civil war."

Patterson said he found the Russian people living on a higher level than on his two previous visits, but that they were still the "poorest and worst-dressed people in Europe.

"Politically, they have suffered immeasurably. They are the most restricted people in the world. The guarantees in their now constitution of free press, free speech and free assembly are paper mockeries.

Many Disappear.

"The prisons are full of those who dare to be unsympathetic with the actions of the Soviety party, and the graveyards are full of those who try to do anything about it.

"Nowhere have I seen anything like the frank terror that I saw there," he added. "Stalin is replacing the men in high positions of whom he is in fear with friends of his. The men replaced usually disappear. No one knows what becomes of them—no one but the secret police."

Patterson said government papers, operated under rigid censorship, kept the Russian masses in almost complete ignorance of the situation.

"The whole secret of the power of the dictators who make slaves of the Russian people and who keep the people of Germany and Italy from having any say in their government lies in the control of the means of publicity. It is complete and absolute."

7 British Soldiers Slain by Tribesmen

Simla, India, June 24 (AP).—Seven British soldiers were killed and 34 injured today in an army drive against the rebellious Fakir of Ipi, leader of the Waziristan tribes in India's northwest frontier province.

The Fakir's warriors suffered heavily from a combined aerial and land attack.

(A punitive expedition of 3,000 British troops, mostly Indians, was sent to the area, bordering on Afghanistan, last December, after a new outbreak by the rebellious tribesmen.)

Dr. E. P. Lowe Dies; Yellow Fever Expert

New Orleans, June 24 (AP).—Dr. Edmund Peyton Lowe, 77, retired physician, author and world traveler, died today.

Dr. Lowe probably was best known for his fight against yellow fever in the epidemics of 1897, when he himself was stricken, and 1905.

He served as agency physician of the Southern Ute Indians in southwest Colorado from 1887 to 1893.

Cosmopolitans Honor Service Of Rev. Buck

Chaplain Is Presented With Certificate; Leaves for Chicago in September.

Solemnity and humor blended at the farewell party given the Rev. Calvert E. Buck by the Cosmopolitan Club at the Carlton Hotel yesterday. President Arthur W. Defenderfer, Frederick J. Rice, Edward J. Gainer, Col. William McCarty and others joined in paying tribute to the man who has been chaplain of the club for seven years and who leaves shortly for Chicago.

Rice, on behalf of the club, presented Dr Buck with a certificate of appreciation. Dr. Buck paid high tribute to the club, declaring it "the most genuinely friendly group of men with whom I have ever been associated."

Rice then reversed his role and came back as a messenger bearing alleged greetings from Il Duce and presenting, on his behalf, an automatic and a sword, "on account that the parson is going to Chicago and that Al Capone might be coming back."

Dr. Buck, who has been superintendent of the Episcopal Eye, Ear and Throat Hospital for ten years, was born in Washington. He was famous as a sandlot ball player before he decided to become a minister. He was educated at the Union Theological Seminary, Alexandria, where he was graduated with doctor of divinity degree. Dr. Buck leaves about September 1 to become rector of the Church of the Atonement, one of the largest Episcopal churches in Chicago.

The New Bandwagon.

Gov. Earle of Pennsylvania is nothing if not agile. Charged with using the labor situation in his State as a stepping stone to the Democratic nomination for the Presidency, he has turned on his accusers with the flat statement that he is "not running for anything."

This is good as far as it goes. But the Governor's final and unqualified indorsement of President Roosevelt for a third term leaves the impression that he is willing to soar to any possible heights by clinging to the tail of the President's kite. Apparently the Roosevelt Before Chicago Club, which was able to give its members a privileged position in the years following March 4, 1933, now has a successor in the Roosevelt Before 1940 Club. And of this bandwagon George W. Earle is organizer, flag-bearer and drummer.

The President should be flattered. It is more likely, however, that he will be embarrassed by the suggested renomination. At a moment when the cry of personal dictatorship is being voiced with such vehemence, one of his principal supporters is busily engaged in pouring oil on the flames in the curious belief that it is only incense.

But George W. Earle is a politician, not an innocent. He knows exactly what he is doing. For in urging the renomination of the President, he shows that his New Deal heart is still in the right place, that at a time when so many other lieutenants and erstwhile disciples of the man in the White House are getting off the reservation his own loyalty remains unquestioned. Should not such fealty be rewarded at the proper time?

By this astute strategy the Pennsylvania Governor avoids the barbs and bludgeons that would be certain to come his way should he admit his own candidacy so far in advance of the 1940 convention. Apparently he wants the President to receive all brickbats of this sort until that happy day when the Chief is ready to step aside for the crown prince of the New Deal.

For the President, Gov. Earle's enthusiasm means only another headache. Certainly it will hardly make for peace and harmony in the divided ranks of the Democratic Party to have it said, as Mr. Earle put it, that there are "no men in the Democratic Party or any other party who reach knee-high stature mentally and morally to Franklin D. Roosevelt." Such statements only rub salt into already highly irritated wounds. So the President may feel like echoing the old and heartfelt cry: "Save me from my friends."

International Dynamite.

Great Britain, it is reported, has sent to Berlin a stern warning that she "would regard most seriously" any act of reprisal against the Valencia government for the alleged attack on the German cruiser, Leipzig.

This stiffening of the British attitude toward the Fascist powers is a welcome if belated development. For months the governments at London and Paris have stood by helplessly and watched the nonintervention agreement flouted by Germany and Italy. To keep the war from spreading the Fascist powers have been permitted a practically free hand in Spain, so long as they went through the motions of participating in the futile labors of the London nonintervention committee and formally denied that they were actually waging war on the Spanish Loyalist regime.

Even now the Fascist powers are remaining on the London committee. But it is an ominous circumstance that they have withdrawn from the sea patrol of Spanish waters, that they have, at the same time, increased their naval strength in the western Mediterranean and that they are not concealing their readiness to take action against the Valencia government if and when they feel it necessary to do so. Their cynicism toward London and Paris has been on a par with their ruthlessness toward the loyalists, a ruthlessness displayed in full measure in the wanton exhibition of Nazi Schrecklichkeit at Almeria several weeks ago and at Guernica somewhat earlier.

Only a strong stand by the democratic powers is likely to dissuade the Fascist dictators from playing with the international dynamite which has been piling up in Spain. Should the democratic powers decide in the present critical situation, to hide their heads in the sand, the disaster they are so desperately seeking to avoid may overtake them. For what, in essence, Hitler and Mussolini want, is permission to make war on Loyalist Spain without interference or objection. Such a license might easily lead to the complete destruction of what is left of the feeble structure of peace in Europe.

The Robinson Bill.

Although an improvement upon the original omnibus bill designed to give effect to the President's recommendations, the Robinson reorganization bill introduced into the Senate this week still requires extensive modification to make it acceptable. In the first place, it covers too many unrelated or but loosely related proposals. The House Reorganization Committee has accordingly decided to divide the measure into four bills—the only method of procedure that encourages intelligent and thorough examination of the various features of the reorganization program on their merits.

There is no doubt about the need for a reformation of the chaotic executive system that has just grown, with consequent overlapping and duplication of functions. The complexity of the problems resulting from this planlessness calls for cautious, deliberate action. There is no pressing emergency to justify a hasty metamorphosis of the existing administrative establishment at executive behest. Indeed, it is doubtful whether a long-range program of such importance ought even to be presented to a Congress distracted by the pressure of more immediate issues and already showing signs of impatience at the prospect of a prolonged summer session.

Numerous defects in the Robinson bill have already been discovered by commentators who are well disposed toward the reorganization plan as a whole. It is noted, for instance, that recent changes curtailing the President's powers to abolish governmental agencies and reorganize the independent regulatory agencies do not go far enough. Despite amendments, he would retain a large degree of personnel and budgetary control over the independent agencies which might be used virtually to destroy their independence.

The generally commendable proposal to extend and strengthen the classified civil service is also seriously weakened by liberalizing exemptions. Thus, all division and bureau chiefs would become Presidential appointees, while positions regarded by the President as policy determining in character could be removed from the classified civil service. These changes are regarded by advocates of the merit system with extreme disfavor because they would increase the amount of high-grade spoils and interfere with the development of a career system within the service.

Provisions in the bill transferring many powers exercised by the General Accounting Office to the Budget Bureau and setting up a General Auditing Office would entail far-reaching changes in the financial management of the Government. Any proposal which would emancipate the executive branch from the independent control now exercised by the General Accounting Office should be weighed with extreme care. A theoretically strong case can be presented on behalf of centralization of financial administration in the hands of the Executive, as well as for segregation of the functions of control and auditing. But when the executive agencies display a tendency to spend recklessly and to resent legislative control over the direction of expenditures, doubts naturally arise as to the wisdom of removing existing curbs.

The proposal to create six new administrative assistants to the President likewise arouses mixed feelings. Aid of this sort is undoubtedly required for our overworked Chief Executives, but it is by no means certain that six men drawing $10,000 per year each should be commissioned to "perform such duties as the President may prescribe."

Numerous other controversial questions suggested by the Robinson bill, as well as those mentioned, are much too important to be dealt with in an omnibus measure railroaded through Congress under Administration pressure. If the bill should pass in its present form, Congress would have certain cause to regret its hasty action, especially as it would have no way to review executive orders. The bill does provide that executive orders in furtherance of reorganization plans shall be placed before Congress and shall not become effective for 60 days. But if Congress should disapprove, and legislate accordingly, a two-thirds vote of both houses would be required to overcome a Presidential veto.

Seal After Sharks.

The District small-loans law, which dates back to 1913, is a dead letter. Its limitation of interest rates to 1 per cent monthly makes this type of lending virtually profitless. As a result, Washingtonians needing emergency funds are forced to turn to loan sharks operating illegally in the District or in neighboring States where they are permitted to charge as high as 42 per cent annually.

For at least seven years District officials have been trying to persuade Congress to enact a new small-loans act. A bill drawn by former Corporation Counsel Prettyman has been the most generally indorsed throughout the city. It would permit licensed lenders to charge interest of 2 per cent per month, with small additional charges on loans under $35 for 30 days, on character loans and the like. Two arguments have been raised against it, one that its rates are too high and another that they are too low.

Certain Congressmen declare that an interest rate mounting to 24 per cent per annum should never be sanctioned by the law. In contrast, the Russell Sage Foundation, which is working for uniform small-loan legislation, asks for a rate of 3½ per cent monthly, or 42 per cent per annum, to conform with the prevailing rate in Virginia and Maryland.

The net result is that the District continues without a practical small-loans law. In this predicament, Corporation Counsel Seal purposes to change his strategy and try for an amendment to the existing act. He proposes to seek authority to investigate the procurers who now serve as go-betweens for illegal or out-of-State loan sharks and their hapless Washington victims, some of whom are known to be paying interest as high as 50 per cent annually. If he succeeds in this, it will be some gain. Perhaps it will even pave the way for the eventual enactment of an adequate law. An exhibit of the bleeding devices used by Washington procurers should effectively illustrate to Congress the results of its own unreasonable attitude toward small loans.

Public Opinion And The Strike.

A significant clearing of the atmosphere was evident in the strike area yesterday. While the deadlock between steel companies and the Committee for Industrial Organization remains, the threat of anarchy in several communities has perceptibly diminished. The movement to repel all coercion and violence, and to restore the normal rights of both disputants, made notable headway.

Gov. Earle's decision to end martial law in Johnstown appears to have been dictated by the wishes of the community and overwhelming public opinion in other parts of the country. It is generally conceded that Gov. Earle should have used the power of the State to restrain irresponsible groups threatening to invade Johnstown instead of depriving peaceful workers of their job. Whatever may be said as to the propriety of his emergency order under threat of a C. I. O. invasion, however, continuation of the lockout forced by the State would have been utterly unreasonable.

As the Governor points out, the most important consideration at the moment was the preservation of peace and order. His apparent willingness now to protect workers who wish to return to their jobs will go a long way toward silencing the widespread criticism which resulted from the lockout he imposed on the Johnstown plant for four days after the emergency had passed.

Still more significant is the collapse of the general strike movement at Warren. C. I. O. leaders have not explained their decision, but there is good reason to believe that the walkout designed to paralyze an entire county failed for want of public support. Union leaders had maneuvered themselves into a thoroughly untenable position. They were threatening to strike against the Government. It was not any decree from an "economic royalist" which had aroused their ire, but a court decision limiting picketing to a peaceful basis.

Incidents of this sort have cost the C. I. O. heavily in terms of public support. Millions of citizens who would like to see collective bargaining established in every plant in the land quickly withdraw their sympathy from any organization which attempts to take the law into its own hands and to force acceptance of its terms by threats of violence. The applause won by Tom Girdler before the Senate Postoffice Committee should be sufficient warning to the C. I. O. that policies involving public disorder carry their own penalties.

Incidentally, the collapse of this threat should be a lesson to public authorities who are inclined to yield to unreasonable demands when violence is threatened. At Monroe, Mich., a proposed invasion was quickly abandoned when the town decided to protect the rights of its citizens. At Warren the general strike threat proved to be a bluff. With National Guardsmen on duty, there seems to be no difficulty and no risk of bloodshed in maintaining law and order.

Even the Federal Government has apparently decided that the Postoffice Department has been buffeted about long enough by the strike. In spite of Mr. Farley's willingness to reject mail that the strikers do not want delivered, the Department of Justice insists that if mail is once accepted for delivery by the postoffice, it must go through. To some extent Attorney General Cummings is fencing with a dummy, but even that is some improvement over the Government's former complete acquiescence in strike blockades.

In each case public opinion appears to be a strong factor in the changing attitude. There is little sympathy with the stubborn and arbitrary labor policy followed by the steel companies involved in this strike. But there is still less sympathy with strike methods which deny nonunion men the right to work and which openly challenge public authority. Unless the C. I. O. is ready to heed the current groundswell of resentment, its strike may serve chiefly to demonstrate the futility of trying to win advantages for labor by methods that alienate public support.

"Every man's ambition is to marry a good cook, a witty companion, a skillful housekeeper and a devoted mother," declares a writer. Yes, it seems that men are naturally inclined toward polygamy.

The only one who will ever get any general and respectful attention by blowing his own horn hasn't blown it yet. We refer to Gabriel.

"I am alarmed by the swim suits the modern girls are wearing," declared a minister whom it doesn't take much to alarm.

There is no more desperate fighter than one who is afraid his opponent will think he's afraid.

Congressional Privileges.

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: What will our Congressmen do next? They want to saddle the burden of the expense of the District government on the voteless people of the District. The Bible says that charity begins at home.

This democracy was supposed to be founded on the principle of equal justice to all and special privileges to none, but our office-holding class seems to think that the Government exists just for them. They are the special privileged class. They want to be exempt from everything except special privileges. Why should they have 20 cents per mile for travel any more than any other Government employe when he is traveling on Government business? Why should they have free doctors and free hospitals when this is denied to other Government employes? Why should they appropriate the people's tax money to pay their funeral expenses when they die and deny this to other Government employes? Why should their salary be exempt from taxes any more than the income of any other citizen?

I believe that the people should rise up and demand that their Government be operated on a basis of equal rights to all and special privileges to none. A Congressman has already introduced a bill to build homes for Congressmen.

The Closed Fidelity.

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: Thank you for the letters you have printed about the closed Fidelity. Some 32,000 people have lost their money in this and the Park bank and that represents a goodly number of Washington's adult, active population.

The worst part is that many of those who lost out in the Park bank switched to the Fidelity and lost twice! It's too bad some pressure cannot be brought to bear on those handling the affairs of the Fidelity to help right this unjust and perhaps tragic situation for so many of our citizens!

Philatelists' Cry.

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: Stamp collectors (over 3,000,000) in our loved U. S. A. are weary of the endless repetition in U. S. stamps—same men, same men over and over and overdone! Repetition teaches no lesson, save, perhaps, paucity of brains and ideas in stamp planners!

Why not, as other nations, have more views of America's great buildings, for instance—Treasury, State, War and Navy, Commerce, Archives, Library of Congress, Supreme Court? Instead of being belittled with a lot of scroll and platitudinous curlicues that mean nothing, let us have the splendid dignity of our great Government buildings—filling a stamp to its perforations—just the great buildings you and I helped to build;

George and Benjamin—we love them—but "enough is enough!" Presidential stamp issues are "done to death." Philately demands better stamps for its millions of dollars expended in stamp collectors' albums!

We three million and a half U. S. stamp collectors want stamps!—with beauty, history, American grandeur on them. JOHN LOTHROPPE.

St. John's College.

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: As president of the Alumni Association of St. John's College, Annapolis, I wish to express our appreciation of the support that you have given St. John's during the period of the change of administration, and especially your favorable comments upon the election of Dr. Stringfellow Barr as president.

St. John's College, as you have pointed out, was one of the early pioneers in higher educational activities, and indicative of the work which St. John's has done, a great number of her alumni have achieved outstanding success in the commercial world, in professional lines, and many as public officers.

During recent years it will have to be admitted that St. John's has been facing difficulties. At the present time I believe that these difficulties have been largely overcome and that St. John's is now in position to again take the lead among the smaller colleges in America.

Dr. Barr is of the type that any college would be proud to have as its president. With his ability as an educator, his power to win the respect and friendship of a student body, and his ties and connections with the University of Chicago, and persons interested in that university, I believe that he will take the lead in instilling new life and new interest in the college, and that within a few years it will be one of the most distinctive small colleges in this country.

Though St. John's College is a Maryland institution, it is and has for years been closely connected with interests in the District of Columbia. Dr. Charles C. Marbury, of this city, has for years been on its board of governors. More recently Mr. Paul L. Banfield, of the Landon School, Bethesda, Md., has been elected to the board of governors, as also has Mr. Francis Pickens Miller, of Fairfax, Va. Though Bethesda and Fairfax are not strictly within the territorial limits of the District of Columbia, they are in effect within the limits of its actual activities and influence.

Red Rider Repeal.

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: In reading Father Kelly's letter of June 12, I was not a bit surprised at his reactionary attitude toward the repeal of the "Red rider," a law that tended to choke to death the very democracy he pretends to champion.

My parents are devout Catholics; I, too, was reared as such. At the time I had nothing to say but be obedient, but as the years matured my intellect it broadened due to the fact that I persisted in seeking the truth like that truth the "Red rider" would shut from my mind.

Democracy's life blood is liberty and truth. And whenever the pretenders who wish to chain us to a cross of Fascism and call that carnage of innocent children in Spain the will of God, it is time for all Americans to know the truth. Truth is a potent poison to reactionaries.

Appreciation.

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: In the name of the Federation of Business Men's Associations of the District of Columbia, I wish to thank you for the manner in which you have handled our stand in the transit dispute.

This organization, as business men, is in no way averse to the traction company or any other utility receiving a fair return on its investment. The businessmen do object, however, to increased costs for lesser service. And it is our belief that better service can be rendered at the fare awarded the transit organization by the Public Utilities Commission at the time of the merger. THEODORE S. GRAPE,
President, Federation of Business Men's Associations.

Comment On "Steel's Arbitrary Stand"

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: Your editorial in The Post of June 23, "Steel's Arbitrary Stand," conveys the impression that Steel has taken an arbitrary and unjustifiable position in refusing to sign a written contract with the C. I. O.

It is admitted the Wagner law does not, in words at least, require the signing of such a contract, but it is argued that if one agrees verbally he should sign a written agreement. The argument is sound, but it is based upon the proposition that there is, first an understanding which has been expressed in words. Such an understanding does not exist in the present Steel controversy.

It is conceded that C. I. O. does not represent a majority of the workers in these struck plants. Just tell your readers one good reason why Steel, at the request of a minority, should force its unwilling workers to join C. I. O., or permit C. I. O. to bargain for the unwilling majority. Tell your readers, if you will, why C. I. O. has not called for an election under the Wagner act in these struck plants. Tell your readers why, where a majority in a plant desire to work, the workers of the plant should force them to pay an initiation fee and monthly dues to an organization which they do not want. Tell your readers why State troops should be used to prevent a majority of the workers from following their usual occupation.

Your editorial admits that experience in the automobile industries shows that "C. I. O. is woefully deficient in responsibility." You are doubtless aware that after signing a contract with Motors which contained a provision that strikes would not be permitted, some 200 strikes occurred in General Motors within 82 days.

Would you sign a contract with me to deliver a million copies of your paper tomorrow morning, and would you print those papers when you knew I could not pay for them?

The present issue is this: In order to work must a man's employer sign on the dotted line with the C. I. O.?

I come from the country. My friends and acquaintances are workers either in store, factory, or on the land. They indulge in little artificial reasoning. They believe in the doctrine "In the sweat of thy face shalt thou eat bread." They are amazed and bewildered by the spectacle of the armed forces of a State driving men from their work, but they are in no wise uncertain as to the injustice of such procedure.

May I suggest you send one of your bright young men a thousand or two thousand miles out into the country; let him talk with the men and women who produce, who work; get away from Washington, into which the taxpayers' money flows so freely and is spent so extravagantly, and it is possible you may get a different idea of the real issue which must be correctly decided before these labor troubles are permanently settled.

CLARE E. HOFFMAN, M. C.
Washington, June 23.

(The editorial in question did not criticize the steel companies for refusing to sign a contract with the C. I. O., but for their refusal to make any effort to iron out their difficulties with organized labor.—Editor.)

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: I wish to felicitate you for your able and truthful editorial, "Steel's Arbitrary Stand" and the cartoon, "I Won't Stand for It" of June 23. I am sure that through these you have expressed the opinion of all informed working people, as well as a genuine 1937 Americanism.

The film of the strike massacre at the Republic Steel Corporation's Plant, Chicago, is now being featured throughout England. The News Chronicle of London, after complaining that the film had been cut so that the police revolvers could not be heard or the gas bombs seen, comments:

"But what one does see is enough. There are heaps of injured strikers lying on the ground, truncheons whirling like windmills gone mad, rising and falling—rising and falling, striking mercilessly at fleeing humanity, beating senselessly at men and women already prone."

A Mule Smells A Snake

A FEW years ago we wrote something about a cardinal's singing.

Whereupon the Raleigh Times said a cardinal couldn't sing, it merely whistled—and in a monotonous manner. We wondered if there were any possible comeback, and feared not, since we knew nothing about a cardinal's voice and had used the word singing because we supposed it was a proper word to use about the sounds made by all birds.

Just then a stanch champion of the cardinal appeared unexpectedly in the person of Josiah William Bailey, not yet then United States Senator. He wrote a long article for the Weekly in praise of the cardinal's voice. It was a most melodious singer, he declared. Not only did he present the evidence of his own ears; he quoted bird scientists, and poets as well. We don't know that he convinced the Raleigh Times. Perhaps not. But that didn't matter; he took the debate off our hands, and we were well pleased.

And now we have again been chided by the Times for what it says is a gross error in natural history. It was chronicled in those columns last week that young Carl Pridgen killed a blacksnake, put it in a tin bucket and got on the mule he had been plowing, to ride, and that the smell of the snake so excited the mule that it ran away, dragging the youth along the ground and injuring him severely.

* * * *

"We suspect that the Weekly has been made the victim of a nature fakir," says the Times. "There exists a mortal hatred for a snake in all types of animal life, but it is yet to be proved that a mule's sense of smell is acute enough to start it on a stampede because its nose has detected the odor of a serpent. * * * As for running away, the mule never does so on pure impulse brought on by hysteria."

It was Dr. B. B. Lloyd who had told us about Pridgen and the mule. We sought him out, showed him the editorial in the Raleigh paper, and said, "What about this?" Dr. Lloyd was brought up on a farm and has continued to be a farmer since he became a physician, and so he has had a lot of experience with mules.

He fairly snorted as he read. That his report on a mule's behavior should be questioned made him more indignant, we believe, than if somebody had impugned his standing in the medical profession.

* * * *

"I offer here and now to lay a bet with the man who wrote that article," he said. "I'll bet him $50 that if he puts a snake in a bucket and gets on that mule, the mule will run away with him. He's all wet—that runaway happened just exactly as I told it to you. A mule has a sharp nose for a snake, alive or dead, and when he smells one it scares him half to death."

We consulted E. E. Cate, another man with a long farming experience, when we met him going through the print shop yard. He said:

"Sure, horses and mules and cows all smell snakes, and when they do it frightens 'em. Their sense of smell is the only protection they've got against snakes when they're grazing along creek beds and where the grass is thick."

"There's no doubt at all about a mule's smelling a snake and getting scared by it," said Carl Durham in Eubanks' drug store. I remember having the same sort of experience as the one you wrote about when I was a boy on my father's farm about 30 years ago. I got on a mule with a blacksnake I'd killed—only I had it in my hand instead of a bucket. That mule was about 20 years old and you wouldn't have thought he was able to run. But when he got a whiff of that snake he bolted and I couldn't hold him."

"'Did he throw you?" we asked Mr. Durham.

"No, but the only reason he didn't was that I threw away the snake. I've seen a horse or a mule, many a time, take off across a field, badly frightened, after smelling a dead snake that somebody had thrown in a fence corner."

Blind Justice.

In his term of nine years each of the seven judges of the Illinois Supreme Court sits as its chief justice for at least a year in the order of rotation. Tomorrow Judge Farthing, totally blind since he was 12, becomes chief justice. His rise to such a post in the face of what seems an almost invincible disability illustrates the power of a steadfast will.

Beaten, he announced, on the morning after, his candidacy for that office in 1933. In that year he was elected. In the meantime he had served as county judge and as master in chancery. While sympathy may have had something to do with his success, his associates on the bench have a high opinion of his legal ability. That his mind's eye should find its way easy through the jungles of the law is no wonder, but by what delicacy of art or extreme refinement of the sensitiveness common to the blind does he shave himself bloodlessly "with an old-fashioned, straight-edged razor, guiding the blade in long, sure strokes down his lathered cheek?"

This is a bitter reproach to us dubbers who find even safety razors capable of occasional gashes. Chief Justice Farthing will have to direct the business of the Court on the bench and in conference. Who has a better sense of direction? When he first came to the courtroom he had to be guided in and out. He soon learned to steer himself and walk alone and quickly. How does the sightless chief justice keep track of the business of the Court?

No Licenses In Illinois.

Chicago.

ILLINOIS, as you might have supposed, is one of the eight backward States in the happy American Union whose motorists are not required to meet any tests as to their physical or mental fitness or mechanical ability, but may just hop in and drive.

A legless or armless man, a paralyzed man, a known lunatic, a person totally blind or one who has never before sat behind the wheel of a car has a legal right to pull out into the traffic in town or country, because there happens to be no license law on the books.

The subject is one of particular interest at the moment, because there is a bill up in the Legislature providing a rather mild form of regulation which is about to be licked because of a politicians' wrangle over the patronage or jobs or graft which the new bureau would provide.

It isn't much of a law, to be sure, because it gives the superintendent of highways permission to issue licenses without examination to all applicants who ask for them prior to next New Year's day. That would protect the driving privilege of all those who are driving now, and, indeed, of all others who think they might want to drive at some future time but feel bashful about their qualifications. It is a typical Illinois law, designed to do the least possible good while providing the maximum number of jobs for politicians under the circumstances.

• • • •

ORIGINALLY the bill provided that administration of the law should be placed in the hands of the division of highways of the department of public works and buildings. The director of public works and buildings is F. Lynden Smith, who was Gov. Horner's campaign manager in his fight with Ed Kelly, the Mayor of Chicago, so the jobs, under that proposal, would be Horner's jobs to be distributed by Mr. Smith.

The bill carried an appropriation of $750,000 to set up the bureau, hire special highway police and examiners and so forth, and was passed by the lower house of the Legislature.

When it went to the Senate, however, it was amended to turn over the new department to the secretary of state, who is Mr. Kelly's fellow, and the appropriation was cut to $375,000—just half. I did hear why the appropriation was reduced, but it is a long story, and you need only be assured that economy was no part of the reason—or, more likely, you don't need telling.

So now the bill is back in the House again, and the boys are trying to get together on a political compromise; but the time is short, and the probability is that they will disagree and leave their subjects still unprotected from crazy drivers of all kinds—which would be no great hardship, because the people are used to the hazards of the road.

However, for the safety of citizens of other States it might be a humane act to point out the backward States in this respect. They are Illinois, Florida, Louisiana, Mississippi, Missouri, Oklahoma, South Dakota and Wyoming. When you see a car in traffic bearing license tags from one of those it is prudent to remember that the driver may be an imbecile, more or less blind, an absolute novice or otherwise dangerous to life, limb and navigation.

• • • •

WYOMING did pass a license law this year, but it was disqualified on a technicality. Tennessee and New Mexico passed valid laws and withdrew from the dwinding company of the backward States, but unlicensed and unqualified drivers from Illinois and the seven other primitives still have the privilege under reciprocal arrangements of driving cars in such progressive States as New York, New Jersey, Connecticut and the rest.

There is, needless to say, no indignation among the citizens of Illinois. The public, personally, does not want to be bothered by regulation and the necessity for carrying license certificates. And, anyway, from long experience, the citizens quickly spotted the proposed act as no attempt to reduce the dangers of the road but merely as a bill to provide jobs for deserving Democrats administering, in the quaint, discriminating Illinois manner, a law intended to do no public good.

Even if by some political miracle the bill should pass, it would be well to remember that it doesn't actually compel Illinois drivers to take any mental or physical test and then give them plenty of road room wherever the Illinois license is seen.

A French City

By William Lyon Phelps

Pronounced "Lon."

Give it the pronunciation (French style) of Lon. There are many interesting things in this city in northeastern France for American tourists to observe this summer, but there is one feature which is certainly not generally known, and which I hope Americans will not miss.

Laon has a marvelous collection of autographs, which many believe to be the most remarkable in the world. There are more than 4,000. A particularly interesting one is "G. Washington," and written under that great name is "From the Marquis de Lafayette; 28 Dec., 1783." Hence this paper has the two autographs together.

• • • •

There are two autograph signatures of Henry I, King of Haiti, 1818 and 1819. But while there are only a few autographs of Americans, there is a marvelous collection of European ones. With one or two exceptions, all the French kings are represented, going back to the tenth century. Many English sovereigns accompany them, one of them as far back as the fourteenth century. Napoleon and his marshals and famous generals; Sir Hudson Lowe, his hated jailer at St. Helena, and also the Duke of Wellington.

• • • •

Pere Marquette was born in Laon, which gives it a special interest for Americans.

But what I like best in the old city is the cathedral. The place of gargoyles on the towers is taken by the projecting stone figures of cattle, and were put there to commemorate the patient, faithful oxen of the Middle Ages, as a tribute to their work in drawing the stones up the hill for the cathedral.

Such a tribute to animals in medieval times is as remarkable as it is charming, and I do not know of any other cathedral in the world that gave the oxen this recognition.

Highways For Bicycles

Official recognition has been given in Westchester County, N. Y., to the return of the bicycle. The country is said to have the finest parkways, recreation centers, bridle paths and public golf courses in the country. Now the county commissioners are considering the building of bicycle paths along the parkways and through the woodlands. As things are, the bicyclists are not permitted to ride on the parkways. Their presence is regarded as too dangerous. One of the results is that the bicyclists bound for the golf links must ride far and wide to get there.

The building of bicycle paths may, however, be looked upon with foreboding by some of the cyclists. At the turn of the century such ways were provided for those who rode a-wheel, and shortly thereafter the bicycle went into hiding, save as it was used by the youngsters. Therefore the superstitious among its devotees may wonder whether this will be a case in which history will repeat itself. Perhaps not. The motor car drove the bicycle from the roads, but the bicycle came back. There would seem to be in this later bicycling era nothing to rival the car as the enemy of the wheel.

That being the case, it is probable that provision will be made to give the bicyclists their own highways, wherever that is feasible. If bridle paths, why not bicycle paths?

Anglo-Japanese Talks In London

England Shocks China By Meeting Tokyo Delegates.

By Mark J. Ginsbourg.

Special Correspondence of The Post.

Shanghai.

ORIENTAL political winds are fickle. A month ago, John Bull was China's stanchest friend, her sole protector from the guiles of Nipponese empire builders. Today, the Chinese are glumly watching Anglo-Japanese negotiations for the division of their country into spheres of influence.

The opening of the London conversations, although predicted from time to time in the past few years, was a painful surprise for the Nanking government. Cannily, Tokyo inaugurated the pourparlers at a moment when Great Britain and China were completing an ambitious program of joint economic development of South and Central China. Genuinely alarmed, Nanking has now shelved these plans until the London talks are brought to a conclusion.

Japan's turn London-ward, just as her previous change of heart toward China, was a feather in the cap of Mr. Naotake Sato, the newly appointed foreign minister.

Foreign Office Tool Of Army Until Recently.

UNDER HIS predecessors, Mr. Koki Hirota and Mr. Hachiro Arita, the foreign office became a plaything in the army's hands. North China was virtually proclaimed an annex to Manchoukuo. Anti-Chinese uprisings in Inner Mongolia were described as a Mongol crusade against communism. Relations with Soviet Russia were brought close to a breaking point. British peace overtures, made by London's special envoy to the Orient, Sir Frederick Leith Ross, were scornfully rejected.

Boldly, Tokyo declared itself the sole arbiter of Oriental destinies, and in all seriousness justified its actions by "Japan's" mission as the stabilizing power in East Asia.

The net results of this policy was a powerful wave of anti-Nipponese feeling in China, leading to an understanding between the government and the Communists. Moreover, Britain and Russia went a-courting Nanking—both with signal success.

The Japanese diplomats and businessmen in this country quickly sensed the significance of the new trends. And shortly afterward it dawned upon the omnipotent army that a mailed fist makes no customers. Therefore, when Mr. Sato was asked to become foreign minister he had no difficulty in receiving assurances that the army would support his plans to change those methods in China, policies elsewhere.

Sato First Smoothed Over "Keelung Incident."

WITH THIS pledge, Mr. Sato set out to woo John Bull. His first act was to settle the famous "Keelung Incident" by tendering apologies to the British government. Thus, after many, many months of fruitless dickering, three British sailors received satisfaction for alleged torture at the hands of Formosan police, who accused the seamen of not paying their taxi fare.

Next step was a strict, albeit unofficial, ban on all press and public utterances regarded as offensive to Britain. A curious illustration of the extent to which this campaign of enforced goodwill went was supplied by a recent raid on a Korean gambling den. When it was learned that the captured gamblers included two Britons, Japanese news organs were "advised" not to mention the matter, as it could give rise to ill feeling.

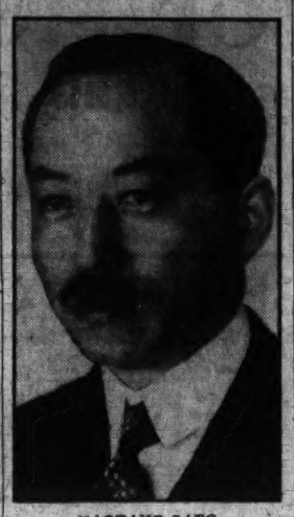
Mr. Sato himself missed no opportunity to emphasize Japan's undying love for Great Britain. In his first interview with foreign correspondents on May 6, Mr. Sato described Anglo-Japanese friendship as "one of the main pillars of world peace."

In declaring that "the presence of Prince Chichibu at the coronation ceremonies in England will powerfully contribute toward enhancing more than ever the mutual cordial sentiment that has always characterized the intercourse between the two nations," Mr. Sato merely confirmed the belief that Japan's "Prince of Wales" was dispatched to London to serve as a goodwill envoy.

An economic mission, headed by Mr. Kodama, the guiding genius of the vast Okura financial empire, was dispatched to London to seek a readjustment of Anglo-Japanese trade relations. Especial stress in the forthcoming conversations in London is expected to be placed on the question of Anglo-Japanese rivalry in China.

Ambassador In London Opened Informal Talks.

WITH THIS prelude of goodwill, Mr. Sato instructed Ambassador Shigeru Yoshida to open informal negotiations with the British government. The talks apparently began early last month, and thus far have been progressing smoothly, mainly because no concrete issues have yet been discussed.



NAOTAKE SATO.

Japan's aims in the pourparlers are fourfold:

1. She is anxious to check the current Sino-British rapprochement, which is stimulating China's opposition to Japan and strengthening the position of British traders vis-a-vis their Nipponese competitors.

2. By winning John Bull on her side, Japan hopes to break the currently growing friendliness between London and Moscow. Japan's strategy in Asia is always dictated by her fear of Russia. This was true in the recent change of Japan's attitude toward China. This must be true again in the London talks.

3. Tokyo craves a recognition of her new gains in North China. It hopes such a recognition would weaken China's resistance to Japanese plans, and would inspire the careful Japanese capitalists to invest in North China.

4. Sadly isolated after her withdrawal from the League, Japan is desperately seeking powerful friends on the Pacific. Such friends she must have, if the war with Russia, which her jingoists are constantly predicting, is to be victorious.

A friendly Britain would mean to Japan the difference between certain defeat and a possible victory in a war with the Bolsheviki. With John Bull on their side, the Samurai are assured of the neutrality of the British Dominions and the United States, of ready supply of war materials from India, Australia and The Netherlands East Indies.

British Conservatives Sympathetic Toward Tokyo.

THE BRITISH attitude toward rapprochement with Japan is infinitely more complex. The Conservative faction now in power—such men as Samuel Hoare and Neville Chamberlain—are traditionally friendly to Japan.

The reasons for this benevolence are difficult to analyze. The sentimental element in them is probably as important as a belief that Japan's methods—admittedly borrowed from Joseph Chamberlain's England—help to maintain the status quo in the Pacific, thus indirectly benefiting Great Britain.

But there are other reasons, infinitely more significant. British investments in China today reach $1,000,000,000, as compared with Japan's $600,000,000 and the United States' $200,000,000.

This immense amount is secure only as long as peace reigns in China. Sino-Japanese friction is a direct threat to British investments if it causes political unrest in China. London, therefore, is ready to make important concessions to Tokyo if it receives assurances that the Japanese army in China would be muzzled.

British economic interests in Manchuria and North China are insignificant. London, therefore, would readily recognize Japan's pre-eminence in North China in exchange for a similar recognition of its own dominance in Central and South China.

The Chinese describe this as "splitting China into spheres of influence"—a game that has been played in China by great powers with considerable skill and success for decades.

British Seek Only Heavy Goods Markets.

REALIZING her inability to compete with Japan in the manufacture of cheap consumption goods, such as cotton cloth, galoshes and paper, Britain is willing to let Japan control the Chinese market in these commodities.

Britain, however, wishes to have her share of the market for production goods, such as locomotives, machinery, ships, steel, rails—in the manufacture of which she excels. Moreover, London has vast funds which it would willingly invest in China, if it were sure that Japan would embark on no ventures on the Asiatic mainland.

Possibly voicing the views of the Conservative government, the London Times declared on May 3 that "Britain is fully prepared to recognize the obvious fact of Japan's special position in China, but she cannot view with sympathy attempts to consolidate that position by methods too often employed in the last six years."

The evolution of a strong, friendly and prosperous China is the first step toward a solution of Japan's internal problems and most of her external ones, said the Times, and continued that, single-handed, Japan can do much to assist China's development, but in the economic sphere China and Japan need the co-operation of other friendly and interested powers.

Hitherto, a certain waywardness in Japan's actions has been a bar to co-operation with these powers, the Times declared. Once deeds have proved that her intentions toward China are as honorable as she protests they are, Japan will not lack sympathy and assistance from Great Britain, "nor can it be supposed that America would be slow to collaborate."

Japan's geographical position and her economic structure, the Times concluded, entitle her to the lion's share of China's markets, but the lion's methods are not the best way to get it.

If the London talks end in an Anglo-Japanese accord—which is doubtful—Japan will achieve all her secret aims, Britain would for a few years reign supreme in Central and South China, and Nanking would be assured of a brief respite from Japanese aggression.

If the pourparlers fail, Great Britain, curiously enough, appears to be the sole loser, for in agreeing to negotiate with Japan, she has already sown seeds of suspicion in the heart of her newly won Chinese friend.

China's Credit Hopes Lie Only With Two Powers.

MEANWHILE, China is in a quandary. Fear as she may the Anglo-Japanese negotiations, she clearly realizes that the huge credits she needs can apparently be obtained only from these two powers.

Dr. H. H. Kung, Nanking's able finance minister, is now in London, where he is undoubtedly seeking loans. These he will most certainly not receive until Great Britain obtains a clear idea of Japan's intentions. And until Dr. Kung's pleas for funds are either rejected or accepted, China can only grind her teeth and wait.

China's uncertain attitude is well illustrated in the following editorial, which appeared in a leading Shanghai daily. Said the journal:

"Far Eastern peace depends entirely on the maintenance of the territorial and political integrity of China and the economic recovery of this country. How can Japan expect permanent peace in the Far East if she does not change her policy toward China?

"But let us suggest that the London discussions will bear tangible results. Should China be displeased? No. There should be no undue alarm and we will not make any expression by word or deed to show that we are displeased.

"We will answer such results with firmer determination and harder work for the Nation. China today is self-confident. She will not tolerate any further invasion of her territory and she will depend on her own energy to strengthen and improve her political and economic status. She will welcome assistance from foreign countries which have no ulterior motives, but she will not submit to terms which will restrict her actions.

"After all, the problems affecting China should be solved by China and not by any other nation. No matter what agreement may be reached abroad, it will in no way have any bearing on this country."

Philippine Trade Crisis Is Feared

By the United Press.

The National Foreign Trade Council has warned an abrupt termination of preferential trade status for the Philippines in the United States market might result in a serious Far Eastern crisis.

The council recommended that, in the interests of both the United States and the Philippines, the Commonwealth be accorded preferential treatment similar to that given Cuba under the Administration's reciprocal trade policy.

Testifying before the joint preparatory committee on Philippine affairs, now studying economic adjustments necessary for the islands' eventual political independence, E. P. Thomas, president of the council, said:

"The Philippine-American Trade Association is authority for the statement that if Philippine products are made dutiable by the United States, total exports from the islands, estimated upon the basis of 1935 figures, would decline by at least 70 per cent."

C.I.O. Organizing Tobacco Workers

A drive to organize some 100,000 tobacco plant workers was started yesterday by the Committee for Industrial Organization, headed by John L. Lewis.

Local industrial unions will be organized first, officials said, with their probable consolidation later into a national union.

Two organizers already have been assigned to the work, which will be directed from the Richmond, Va., offices of John H. Shuttle, regional director of the C. I. O. It is intended to cover all the tobacco manufacturing centers.

Engineers Lead Idle Estimated at 7,000,000

Johnsonburg, N. J., June 24 (AP).—Unemployment in the United States was estimated at 7,000,000 today by W. H. Rastall, formerly chief of the industrial machinery division of the United States Department of Commerce.

Most of the unemployed are from the engineering industries, he told the seventh annual economics conference of engineers, sponsored by Stevens Institute of Technology and the Society for the Promotion of Engineering Education.

Making Hay

Von Neurath's Change In Plans.

GERMAN Foreign Minister Von Neurath has unexpectedly and indefinitely postponed his scheduled visit to London to talk things over with the British. Europe seems to fear that this unceremonious move presages another bold move by Hitler on the international chessboard—perhaps toward Spain, perhaps toward Czechoslovakia, perhaps toward the Ukraine, perhaps toward Danzig and the Polish Corridor.

Hitler's potential opponents in international affairs seem just at present in no position to offer much opposition. The Soviet Union is rent by internal dissension, and with the recent execution of eight of its highest command, the Red Army may be temporarily discounted as a diplomatic asset. The Blum ministry has been forced to resign, and France is in the throes of another financial crisis. Great Britain has just changed prime ministers, the new one lost prestige by withdrawing a finance bill in order to prevent its defeat, the Simpson affair left the institution of the Crown just a wee bit shaky, and the British rearmament program is only beginning to get under way.

And the Reichsfuehrer has shown a keen aptitude for making hay while the sun shines.

HE OCCUPIED the Rhineland when the ties between Paris and London had become loose because France wouldn't back Great Britain wholeheartedly against Italy in Ethiopia. Just so, Japan had gone ahead in Manchuria when the threat of German rearming, to say nothing of the economic and financial havoc wrought by the depression, had inclined the European powers to stick closely to their own knitting.

To take advantage of your neighbor's troubles is a well recognized technique in international affairs. The United States found that out during the Civil War, when France disregarded the Monroe Doctrine to set up a puppet emperor in Mexico. Washington, fully occupied against the Confederacy, was in no position to protest until the hostilities were over; then France got out of Mexico in a great hurry.

• • • •

IN 1866 the Italians used the war between Prussia and Austria to seize Italian territory held by the latter. Four years later the Franco-German war gave the Italians the opportunity to occupy Rome, which the French were defending for the Pope.

In 1905 Germany asserted herself successfully against France in Morocco while France's ally, Russia, was being badly beaten by Japan. When Germany again asserted herself in Morocco six years later, Russia was stronger and France was supported firmly by Britain also; on that occasion the German demonstration was unsuccessful.

In 1908 Turkey was in the throes of a revolution. Austria-Hungary took the occasion to annex outright the two Turkish provinces, Bosnia and Herzegovina, which by international treaty Vienna was allowed only to administer. The annexation was a slap at Serbia, whose defender was Russia, but Russia was still feeling the effects of the Russo-Japanese war. In 1911 unrest again ruled in Turkey, and it was in this year that Italy proceeded to declare war and occupy the Turkish province of Tripoli in north Africa.

• • • •

WHILE TURKEY was still at war with Italy, the Balkan states, except Rumania, found the time ripe to make war on Turkey. When the Balkan allies then quarreled among themselves, and war was waged on Bulgaria, Rumania also entered the lists against Bulgaria. So did Turkey, to regain some of her losses in the First Balkan War. In the meantime Austria-Hungary had again feathered her nest at the expense of Serbia.

When Germany gave Austria-Hungary carte blanche against Serbia in 1914, Great Britain was having trouble in Ireland, France was torn by the Caimette-Caillaux trial, and St. Petersburg was undergoing a severe strike which might spread into open revolution. But on that occasion Germany overestimated the deterring effect of her neighbor's troubles.

Traffic Rules For Pedestrians.

Mexico is introducing traffic regulations on sidewalks. White lines have been painted to mark the proper lanes for pedestrians. The idea will have to be taken up in this country, too, if only to straighten out the north and south bound traffic of men wearing "On Strike" placards.

• • • •

This is the era of strict regulation, and we might as well start regulating all pedestrians. They have felt slighted by the regulators for the past year or two.

• • • •

Look into the face of men and women walking around any city and what do you detect? A look of disappointment, a note of resentment, a feeling that they have been denied something. Their eating, sleeping, drinking and thinking have been regulated; but nothing has been done about their walking!

• • • •

The people of America won't truly be happy until the voice of authority does something about their sidewalk habits. They won't feel right until they are told how to walk, where to walk and what to do in a walking crisis.

• • • •

At present even the better walkers are in a state of chaos. How many walkers of moderate speed know whether they should move over and allow swifter walkers to pass? How many know what to do when seized with a desire to make a "U turn" in a crowded street?

• • • •

How fast should a man be allowed to walk anyhow?

• • • •

What constitutes a reasonable speed for a woman walking with an armful of bundles?

• • • •

What should be the legal speed for those commuters who rush down the aisles of suburban trains carrying rakes, hoes, sickles, pitchforks and other dangerous weapons?

• • • •

And take the grave problem of parking. If a man has nothing to do, should he be allowed to stand on a sidewalk and stare into a modiste shop window or should the law require that he go stand in a regular parking space at 15 cents an hour?

• • • •

These are matters that demand the attention of our legislating bodies. We are surprised they have managed to skip them so long.

A $2,500 verdict has been handed down against a Connecticut dentist whose golf ball hit a fellow player. The dentist possibly made it all the more exasperating by announcing, "Now I'm not going to hurt you at all."

One island is hardly big enough to hold all the distrust, suspicion, disgust and bitterness now raging within the Democratic Party. Old Seth Bisby says that if the President wanted to assemble it all under one tent he should have held the three-day peace party and fish bake on the Thousand Islands.

3 Astronomical Finds Presage Evil for Earth

Storms on Jupiter, Mars Believed Result of Record Sun Spots.

By the Associated Press.

Denver, June 24.—Three discoveries that presage trouble for the earth were reported to the American Association for the Advancement of Science here today.

They are:

One, a huge, new spot on the planet Jupiter, which is the beginning of a mysterious storm there; two, a remarkable change on the face of Mars which looks like fine dust sweeping the planet; three, record-breaking sun-spot storms on the sun.

Jupiter's storm and Mars' dusty haze have no effect on the earth. But they coincide with the sun storms, which directly affect the earth's rainfall and communications, and may have some connection with the present changes on the sun.

Jupiter's spot, a dark patch perhaps the size of North America, south of the planet's equator, was discovered within the past month at the Lowell Observatory, Flagstaff, Ariz., and announced today by E. C. Slipher.

Could Swallow Earth.

The spot lies in what astronomers think is an outer shell of clouds that include ammonia and methane, and that hide the surface of Jupiter. Occasionally in years past a similar single spot has appeared in Jupiter and has been followed by a cluster of spots indicating storms big enough to swallow the entire earth.

This new spot has no connection with Jupiter's famous "big red spot," which is seen permanently. The new storm spot is in the same hemisphere, however.

The change in Mars' face also was announced by Mr. Slipher and was commented on by other astronomers. It was disclosed by photographs of Mars taken in blue light. Mars has become much brighter recently, as seen in these blue photos.

The brightness could be due to all the fogs and storm clouds dissolving, leaving the planet's entire "air" crystal clear, or, as astronomers think more likely, to dispersion of fine dust over most of Mars' face. The dust would reflect more light.

Record in Sun Spots.

The sun-spot storms were reported from Mount Wilson by Seth B. Nicholson and Elizabeth Sternberg Mulders, read by Alfred H. Joy, of the same observatory.

The present spots, they said, are running about 150 a day and will increase in number until January. Then within the first four months of next year the earth may expect their full force, with prospects of breaking all spot records for this century and possibly exceeding 1870, which in astronomical records holds the top for great groups of spots.

One all-time record already has been broken this year. This was the most vicious and longest magnetic storm on record. It was due to a group of sun-spots. Dr. Joy showed these spots today on a lantern slide, coal black markings that were twisted out of semblance of sun-spot tendency to roundness.

The photo showed the spots not only twisted into streamers but doing a snake dance. There were a dozen huge spots and apparently scores of little ones.

Vicious Magnetic Storm.

Dr. A. G. McNish, of the Carnegie Institution, Washington, said the magnetic storm from these spots had the greatest intensity and longest duration on record, from April 24 to 28 inclusive.

There have been three greater magnetic storms in the sun's recorded history, but none so vicious. Radio and telegraph, he said, was disrupted time after time.

The coming sun-spot maximum promises to be bigger and raise more havoc than any for several decades, and in addition the radio networks which the sun can upset and the telegraph wires it can put in trouble are more extensive than during any previous sun-spot period.

One benefit is expected—more rain. But the astronomers cannot predict whether it will fall on dust bowls or on places that already have too much moisture.

Hearst Promotes Arthur Newmyer

New York, June 24 (AP).—Hearst newspaper interests announced tonight that Arthur G. Newmyer, who has been publisher of the New York Evening Journal, has been appointed an assistant general manager of the chain and that William Randolph Hearst, jr., will be publisher of the reorganized Journal and New York American.

The younger Hearst has been publisher of the American, which announced last night its daily paper would become a part of the Evening Journal and the Morning Mirror. The New York Sunday American will be continued.

Newmyer came into the Hearst organization from New Orleans, where he was associate publisher and part owner of the Item-Tribune. Before going to the Journal he managed Hearst's Washington Times.

Coast Jurist Settles Undressing Controversy

Los Angeles, June 24 (AP).—Superior Judge Emmet Wilson issued a temporary order yesterday restraining Producer Dwain Esper from marketing any play or movie entitled "How to Undress Before Your Husband."

The action, however, does not prohibit distribution, under a different title, of his film starring Elaine Barrie Barrymore. The court order was made in the suit of Producer E. K. Nadel who claims exclusive rights to the title.

N. H. Women Give Fund to Bishop Freeman

Concord, N. H., June 24 (AP).—Richer by $1,800, the Right Rev. James E. Freeman, Bishop of Washington, returned today to his summer home at Sorento, Me.

The money was contributed yesterday by 44 New Hampshire women, who attended an invitation tea at St. Paul's School here for the benefit of the Washington Cathedral.

8 Protestant Leaders Seized By Nazi Order

Intent to Force Elections With Pastors in Prison Denied by Ministry.

By the Associated Press.

Berlin, June 24.—The arrest of seven pastors and one lay member of the Council of Brethren, representing the confessional movement in the Protestant Church which is opposed to Nazi control, was reported tonight.

The Confessional Synod was not informed of the charges, but it was assumed they were violation of a decree prohibiting the public reading the names of persons who had left the church.

These arrests, made yesterday, increased to 15 the number of Protestant churchmen taken into custody this week. A confessional legal adviser was arrested Monday and five pastors and a woman secretary Tuesday.

Those taken yesterday were the Revs. Friedrich Mueller, Boehmer and Von Raabenau, of Berlin; Beckmann, representing the Rhineland; Luecking, Westphalia; Rentdorff, Mecklenburg; Iwand, East Prussia, and Herr Perels, their legal adviser.

The Nazi ministry for church affairs denied there was any intention of forcing church elections at this time while pastors are under arrest. A spokesman insisted the elections would not be held before autumn.

(Reichsfuehrer Hitler ordered the church last February 15 to choose its own synod in elections after the Reich Evangelical Council set up by Nazis to co-ordinate the Protestant Church resigned.

(On March 23 Hans Kerrl, head of the ministry for church affairs, declared a truce, reconstituting the Evangelical Church governments as prior to February 15 pending the election.)

Optimists Return From Convention

Washington members of the International Optimists returned yesterday from their convention in Cincinnati were optimistic over the immediate prospects of the group and over the election of a Canadian, William J. Tamblyn, of Toronto, to the presidency next year.

The Washington lodge sent a delegation of 30 of its members and their wives to the two-day international convention held in the Netherland Plaza Hotel from Monday through Wednesday.

Four vice presidents elected by the convention to assist Tamblyn were Theodore F. Poiree, Los Angeles, Calif.; Ravee Norris, of Richmond, Va.; Solon Featherstone, Wichita Falls, Tex., and Thomas O'Keefe, Detroit, Mich.

Washington Optimists boasts a membership of 125, an active history of 19 years, and two years ago Henry Schaffert, real estate man, of 7300 Alaska avenue northwest, was international president of the organization.

Bob Burns Says:

When I was a boy the men teachers had to be careful about what boy they whipped because they would probably have'ta whip the boy's father, too.

I remember one teacher who use'ta pull my right ear when I was unruly, but I was afraid to tell papa because of what he might do to the teacher. Finally one day, papa noticed my right ear was red and I had to tell him what had caused it. Papa was furious. With fire in his eyes, he grabbed a pencil and paper and he wrote a note to the teacher.

He said, "Dear Sir, I notice you have been pulling my son's right ear until it sticks out an inch and a half further than the other one. It looks terrible! For goodness sakes, pull on the other ear for a while!"

Events and People.

A letter signed, "From his many friends," comes to us and reads as follows: "Friday, June 25, will be the birthday of a popular young Democrat. He is John J. Culliton, former first vice president, Young Democrat Club of America; organizer and former chairman, Pennsylvania Democratic Club of Washington; former administrative assistant, NRA, and employed now with the Postoffice Department under the Third Assistant Postmaster General. He will leave today on a two-weeks' vacation in Atlantic City, stopping over at Philadelphia to register for the fall elections.

Bernice Kraus announces that the Agriculture Dramatic Club will stage an amateur vaudeville show at 8 o'clock, June 29 in the department auditorium. "There is talent galore among the Department of Agriculture workers, and the amateurs will be given a chance to stage their stunts," the announcement says. The audience will join in community singing and in selecting the performers for awards. Bud Barry, N. B. C. announcer, who officiated at the last Junior League Follies, will be master of ceremonies. Among those who have indicated they will appear are: Lillian Finkelstein, Soil Conservation; Ray Sooy, AAA; Laurence Matthews, Soil Conservation; Gordon Barnes, Resettlement Administration, and Lois Rankin, AAA.

The Tacomis Club, social group in the Tariff Commission, had a swell time at its annual picnic at Annapolis Roads Club yesterday. There were various sports, including, tennis and swimming, and all of this topped off by a chicken dinner and dancing. R. W. Pinto was chairman of the committee on arrangements.

The FCA announces that rooms 358 and 600 are available, upon proper requisition, for conferences and meetings of any division. There is considerable demand for these rooms and it is necessary that reservations be made as far in advance as possible in order to avoid conflict in dates. Arrangements for reservations should be made with D. A. Right, room 525.

The annual meeting of the Farm Credit Club will be held Wednesday, June 30, at 4:15 p. m. in room 358. Members have been asked to save the date.

Probation Chief.

The Civil Service Commission announces open competitive examinations for positions of chief of probation and parole service, $5,600 a year; supervisor of probation, $4,600 a year, and assistant supervisor of probation, $3,800 a year, in the Bureau of Prisons, Department of Justice. Applications will be accepted not later than July 19.

Sour note, appearing in the "Government Organizer, official voice of the Inter-Union Council: "The Soft Ball League of the District Department of the AFGE faces a gloomy future. Until now, the league could compete with the cream of the athletic crop. They were, in short, no sissies.

"But unforeseen circumstances are robbing the league of its glory, and of its chance to show off prowess on the soft ball field—for the field permit was originally obtained in the name of WPA Lodge, which has been suspended from the AFGE by the executive council!" We will only add that many are the ramifications and complications of that recent stew, which now, happily, seems to be settling down.

A dozen toads, accompanied by R. G. Oakley, Department of Agriculture scientist, are en route to Guam aboard a Navy vessel to do battle against insects on the tiny island. The scientist collected the toads in Hawaii, where they proved their fitness of devouring countless insects.

Recent appointments in the FCA are as follows: Charles H. Lewis, of Natchez, Miss., mail room; Staunton Calvert, of St. Louis, finance and research division; Annie Belle Lucas, of Columbia, S. C., finance and research division, and Vivian L. Hughes, of Muncie, Ind., telephone section.

3,000 Scouts Set to Move Into Tent City

Troops From D. C. and Nearby States Will Plan Reception.

1,000 Chosen as Guides for Jamboree; Training Is Under Way.

In order that they may have advance training in "how to be host to 30,000," approximately 3,000 Boy Scouts tomorrow will move into the 350-acre tent city erected along the Potomac for the National Scout Jamboree—which opens Wednesday.

The vanguard will be made up of Scouts from the District of Columbia and from troops in Maryland, Virginia, Delaware and Pennsylvania. To them will be given much of the responsibility for making delegates from other States and countries feel at home, and also the task of greeting all incoming contingents.

Another group which will have extra duty during the Jamboree is that composed of the 1,000 District Scouts who have been selected as guides for the visitors. Serving as guide to convention delegates is one of the usual ways in which a Scout does his "good deed a day." It is unusual, however, for him to act as guide for his own buddies. Training for this special duty is already under way.

D. C. Group to Occupy Tents.

To make the Washington welcome to the big 10-day encampment even more apparent, 100 District Scouts will live in Jamboree tents—ready with information and friendliness at any time.

Foreign Scouts will be tented together and near them will be tents of the approximately 1,000 United States Scouts who will attend the International Jamboree in Holland, after the show here is over.

The Jamboree Journal will be printed daily during the encampment. Offices will be located in the community headquarters just west of the Monument. A postal tent, a broadcasting studio, an auditorium, a telegraph office, a "trading post," a dispensary, a reception tent, four theater tents and short-wave radio headquarters also will be located in this area.

Beard Arrives Wednesday.

Dan Beard, 87-year-old pioneer scout, will have his headquarters near the reception tent. He will arrive Wednesday. Officially the Jamboree will get under way Wednesday night with a great camp fire on the Monument grounds.

A mass convocation will be held Sunday night, July 4. Pageants by various regional groups will be presented on most of the other nights.

One of the biggest thrills of the ten days will come July 8, when thousands of scouts will bank themselves along both sides of Constitution avenue and stand at attention while President Roosevelt rides through their ranks from the Capitol to the White House.

The scouts will be guests of the Washington Baseball Club at one of the games, probably being divided into three shifts.

Synagogue Committee.

As a special courtesy to the Jewish scouts who will be in attendance, the United Synagogue of America has appointed a committee to be in charge of religious services, provide transportation for sight-seeing trips and see that kosher meals are provided. Morris Stein is chairman of the committee, with Col. Julius Peyser as co-chairman. Services will be held at the camp next Friday night.

Nineteen hospitals will be in operation at the camp grounds, one for each 1,250 boys. At each will be three doctors and four hospital orderlies. In addition, there will be several first-aid stations and one dental unit.

Three Robberies Net $22 in Loot

Three armed robberies yesterday netted holdup men a paltry $22.

First victim was Robert Morehead, manager of a shoe store at 1124 Seventh street northwest, who was tied by two men who escaped with $15.

Late last night police said they were holding two white men at the First Precinct Station who had confessed to holding up Morehead. Police also said they confessed to a similar robbery at a shoe store at 803 H street northwest on June 16 when $14.50 was taken. Neither of the men was officially charged with robbery pending investigation.

Thomas J. Callow, 2140 N street northwest, was robbed by a colored man with a gun at 2222 N street northwest.

A third bandit got only a bank book and two worthless deposit slips when he held up Ferris Taylor, 26, of 642 Milwaukee place southeast, at Fourteenth and Corcoran streets northwest.

Firemen Start Safety Drive In Md. Schools

Volunteers Also Will Hire Traveling Drillmaster.

By the Associated Press

Easton, Md., June 24.—Maryland's volunteer firemen decided today to campaign against fire hazards in public schools and to employ a traveling drill master to keep fire-fighting methods in the counties up-to-date.

The firemen reached these decisions at the annual convention of the Maryland Volunteer Firemen's Association, which opened here yesterday.

The drive on school fire hazards will have two phases. Volunteer companies will report all hazards to the fire prevention committee of the State association, this group can then bring pressure to bear to have them eliminated.

Fire Drills Planned.

In addition, each company will make an effort to hold regular fire drills in all places of public assembly, particularly schools. At present the county school boards are responbilbe for fire drills.

The decision to send a traveling drill master to train members of the fire companies was reached by the executive committee. This committee reported that many members could not find time to attend the short course for firemen held each summer at the University of Maryland. The new arrangement will insure that companies in the most remote part of the State will have training as good as that of those nearer the university.

Clean-up Week Asked.

The recommendations for the elimination of school hazards was made by the fire-prevention committeee, which also advised that the week of April 2, 1938, be observed throughout the State as clean-up week. The chairman of the committee was authorized to draft uniform instructions to volunteer fire companies.

A warm debate broke out over the executive committee's proposal that a constitutional provision for a home of the aged firemen be eliminated. The committee is authorized to take money from the relief fund, whenever it reaches more than $35,000, and establish a special fund for the aged.

The committee asked that it be allowed to use this surplus for firemen who are injured at drill. The committee's request was finally rejected by a voice vote.

D. C. Office Workers Vote to Join C. I. O.

Washington Local, United Office and Professional Workers of America, voted last night to affiliate with the Committee for Industrial Organization.

The group is composed of approximately 50 men and women who have been members of lodges affiliated with the American Federation of Labor. Some of them, it was said, are employed in the C. I. O. national office. They said they intended to ask for a charter and to undertake a membership drive.

Rambling Theater Truck Opens Season at Takoma Playground

Production on Wheels Attracts Crowd of Youngsters and Adults; 8 Young Girls Constitute Cast for Fairy Story.

The third season of one of Washington's most interesting theatrical groups opened yesterday at Takoma Park Playgrounds when the Rambling Theater truck pulled under a large oak tree and an impromptu crowd gathered for the first showing of "Silver Tree and Gold Tree."

Eight school girls, between the ages of 9 and 14, made up the cast, their silver, gold and purple costumes providing bright contrast against the forest backdrop.

Boys left their baseball games, girls gave up tennis and many adults came from the swimming pool to watch the original fairy tale unfold. Cheering was spontaneous and sometimes included informal remarks to the young actresses, all of whom were from Ben Murch School.

The idea behind the Rambling Theater project is that the audience does not need to come to the play. The play will come to them. Most of the city's parks and playgrounds will be visited during the season, and usually a new play will be offered. Different groups of children are used in each production.

Players opening the season were Mary Ann Humphrey, Ruth Lane, Nancy Doyle, Rosemary Boal, Janet Ap-Jones, Carolyn Cauley, Barbara Stellwagon and Muriel Warmack. Miss Mary W. Davis directed.

The office of the National Capital Parks and Community Center Department are co-operating in the enterprise, with the former furnishing the specially designed stage truck and the latter providing the actors. Miss Margaret Carmody is supervisor of the project.

The next play will be given at 10:30 a. m., July 8, in Garfield Park. Thereafter a performance will be given each Thursday morning throughout the summer.

Man Faces Charges In Collision Fatal To Wife and Son

Fredericksburg, Va., June 24 (AP).—Frank Lambert, 27, of Richmond, faced charges of manslaughter and driving drunk today as the result of a motor vehicle collision in which his 2-year-old son was killed and his wife and another child were injured.

Arrested last night by State Officer T. H. Henshaw, Lambert was placed in the Fredericksburg jail pending a hearing on the warrants, which were sworn out by the officers.

Lambert's light truck collided with an automobile which Henshaw said was driven by Mrs. Elizabeth Chaplett, of Newington, Conn., 15 miles south of Fredericksburg yesterday.

His son, Frank Lambert, jr., 2, was instantly killed, and Mrs. Lambert and the other child, about 18 months old, were slightly injured.

2 Surprise Pleas End Attack Trial

In a surprise maneuver, defense attorneys representing Alonzo Turner and Elmer Fulk, on trial on an indictment charging them with criminally attacking Mrs. Mary Maier, yesterday brought an abrupt end to the trial when they notified Justice F. Dickinson Letts that Turner would enter a plea of guilty to second-degree murder, while Fulk, previously exonerated of the slaying charge, pleaded guilty to a charge of assault with intent to commit a criminal assault.

Both men were remanded to jail by Jusitce Letts to await the imposition of sentence next week. Turner can be given a sentence of from 30 years to life while Fulk can receive a maximum sentence of from 3 to 15 years.

Both men were indicted for murder and criminal assault, but Justice Letts dismissed the murder charge as to Fulk.

One-Man-Car Ban Assailed By Utility

Dirksen Renews Fight for 7-Cent Bus, Trolley Fare.

Rate Cut Trial Would Mean $2,258,551 Loss, Is Testimony.

E. Barrett Prettyman, former District corporation counsel, now attorney for the Capital Transit Co., yesterday questioned the constitutionality of the Dirksen bill to abolish one-man street car operations in Washington.

Perttyman apepared before a special sub-committee of the House District Committee, which is holding a hearing on the one-man car bill and also on a bill to fix maximum car and bus fares at 7 cents. Representative Dirksen (Republican), of Illinois, is author of both measures.

Stand of Company.

Prettyman contended that the courts had definitely denied the authority of the Public Utilities Commission to issue a blanket prohibition against one-man street cars.

"A bill which would deny in blanket fashion the one-man car operation, regardless of its adequacy," he said, "would be open to constitutional question."

Representative Dirksen did not see it that way.

"I don't believe Congress must consider the effect of legislation it enacts," he said "The Public Utilities Commission is its creature. An authority delegated to it by Congress, Congress can take away."

Answering a statement by Prettyman that Congress cannot legislate one-man cars out of existence without a hearing as to their adequacy, safety and economy, Dirksen said:

"When a utility is sick and showing no return and there is complaint about service, it is the function of the administrative agency or a legislative body to inquire into its affairs."

Loss Estimated.

Meanwhile at hearings before the Public Utilities Commission in the District Building it was testified that a 12-month trial of the proposed 5-cent cash street car fare would result in an approximate loss of $2,258,551 to the Capital Transit Co.

On the other hand, company officials pointed out, the requested increase in token fares from four for 30 cents to four for 35 cents would bring additional revenue amounting to $334,376 a year.

Considerable agitation developed at yesterday's hearing as to what allowance the commission should make for materials and supplies as part of working capital. G. Thomas Dunlop, transit attorney, disagreed with earlier recommendations that the sum be not less than $375,000 and not more than $400,000.

The company claims the allowance for materials and supplies should be $396,714. P. U. C. Chairman Riley E. Elgen said he could not see "where there was much to fight about."

The 5-cent fare issue will be resumed today when William McK. Clayton, Citizens Federation representative, presents the first of an estimated dozen witnesses to renew the battle.

3 Heavy Trucks Missing; Mystery Baffling Police

Detectives last night were investigating a "heavy" case—the apparent larceny of three 5-ton Mack trucks used to haul mixed cement.

John L. Davis, 1422 Carroll street southeast, employe of the Capital Materials Co., 2 S street northwest, said the vehicles were parked with 37 similar trucks in the company's lot Wednesday night. Thursday morning three were gone.

Police were skeptical about the whole affair. They think it improbable anyone should steal such lumbering machines. Reports from local finance firms, however, did not list the trucks as having been repossessed.

Davis said all the trucks were painted a pale green.

Police Quell Reformatory Girls' Melee

8 Colored Inmates Arrested; Reserves Come to Aid of 3 Officers.

A free-for-all fight among 20 or more inmates of the National Training School for Girls, Conduit road and the District line, resulted in a riot call to police last night. The brawl started with a dispute between two girls.

The first three policemen to arrive were having a hard time when they were reinforced by reserves hurried to the scene in a patrol wagon.

Private John Burke, attached to the Seventh Precinct, waded into the combatants, dodged missiles, and then was set upon by several of the girls.

Private J. A. Wheeler went to Burke's help and was knocked down. Private R. W. Davis was trying to rescue him when the reserves arrived and quelled the riot.

Eight colored girls were arrested. One was charged with being drunk. Another was charged with assaulting Policeman Wheeler. No charges were placed against the others.

The National Training School for Girls came into country-wide prominence a year ago when Mrs. Franklin D. Roosevelt visited there. She in turn invited them to the White House.

Dr. Carrie Weaver Smith, superintendent of the school, last night issued the following statement:

"The disturbance was in the nature of race friction. Such occurrences unfortunately have not been uncommon in institutions all over the country, and indicate that there is no problem in America more urgent than understanding and sympathy between the two races, white and colored. Fortunately, no property was destroyed and no one was injured."

Cleaning Strike Spreads to Five More Plants

Company Owners Name Group to Negotiate With Workers.

Five additional cleaning and dyeing plants were affected by a spreading strike yesterday, as plant owners gathered in the Ambassador Hotel to perfect an organization to deal with the strikers. It resulted in the election of a committee of five to represent plant owners in negotiating for an agreement with union officials.

Plant owners said the walkouts had been called without notice or sufficient time to prepare for strikers' demands, which include a minimum wage of $18, a 40-hour week and time and a half for overtime.

Owners of wholesale plants where the strike started said they believed it would be impossible for them to meet the agreement proposed by the union until some arrangement to stabilize prices in the city had been made.

The plants affected yesterday, bringing the total to ten, were the Anacostia Tailoring & Cleaning Co., 1924 Nichols avenue southeast; the Federal Cleaners & Dyers, Inc., 2509 Sheridan road southeast; Globe Dry Cleaners & Dyers, Inc., 1923 Florida avenue northwest; Master Cleaners & Dyers, 607 H street northeast, and Senate Cleaners, 435 R street northwest.

Strikers have decided to picket three other plants today which they believed were taking over the work of strike-bound plants. They also planned to protest to the National Labor Relations Board against possible formation of a company union.

Permanent strike headquarters and a food kitchen were set up at the Murray Casino on U street northwest, and a mass meeting of strikers and sympathizers planned there for today.

Dr. Speyer Not 'Exile.'

In an article on graduation exercises at the District's Public Americanization School, printed yesterday in The Washington Post, it was stated that one of the graduates, Dr. Siegfried Speyer, was an exile from Nazi Germany. Dr. Speyer states that that is incorrect, and that he left Germany of his own accord.

Capper Asks Training for Pedestrians

24 Jaywalkers, Says Official Report to Senate.

Pedestrians must be educated to obey traffic signals and regulations as strictly as motorists if accidents are to be reduced, Senator Capper, of Kansas, ranking minority member of the Senate District Committee, told the Senate yesterday.

Quoting statistics from a report by M. O. Eldridge, assistant director of vehicles and traffic, Senator Capper said that 40 of the 49 persons killed in traffic accidents in Washington this year were pedestrians.

Twenty-four of these, he added, were jaywalking. Twelve were killed at crosswalks, and five of these were walking against a red light.

The record shows that seven out of every ten pedestrians killed died at places where they plainly should not have been—trying to cross streets between crosswalks.

"In light of this record, Mr. President," said the Senator, "I thing it plain that unless the pedestrians in cur cities can be educated or compelled to keep off the streets, except at closswalks, fatalities will continue to increase."

While emphasizing the importance of educating the pedestrians, Senator Capper admitted the hazards of street crossing even at intersections.

"The city authorities owe it to the pedestrian to give him a break at the intersection," he said, adding: "The way it is now a pedestrian who starts across on the green signal is fair game for autoists making right or left turns. Some way must be found to declare a closed season on pedestrian hunting at the street intersection."

Another Man Dies.

Frank Simpson, 24, of 3701 Chesapeake street northwest, died in Georgetown Hospital yesterday. He is the second victim of a three-car collision on the Rockville pike near Bethesda, Md., early Tuesday morning.

Simpson was driving his automobile into Washington when it crashed head-on into a tow truck and another automobile which was being pulled by the truck.

Alphonso Jackson, colored, 3113 Eleventh street northwest, died in Garfield Hospital Wednesday. He was crushed between the truck and his own machine.

Simpson died of head injuries.

Veronica Miller, 25, 499 G street southwest, received cuts and bruises when she was knocked down by an automobile at Seventh and D streets northwest. She was treated at Emergency Hospital.

Meanwhile, a coroner's jury exonerated George Hirsch, 38, 712 Sixth street southwest, a cab driver, after an inquest in the traffic death of John A. Quisenberry, 55, 630 East Capitol street.

Quisenberry died in Casualty Hospital of a fractured skull Monday after being struck on the Capitol Plaza near the Senate wing. Wisnesses testified that Quisenberry walked into the street in front of Hirsch's car.

Ragtime Tunes To Be Revived, Says Director

Fred Waring Espies Trend Toward Bygone Rhythm; Is Making Film.

By the United Press.

Hollywood, June 24.—Ragtime—the hot rhythm of prewar days—is set for a comeback and will succeed "swing" music, according to Fred Waring, maestro of the "Pennsylvanians" and topflight bandleader for more than 15 years.

The wiry, sharp-featured music man delivered the prophecy in an absent moment, while listening to his band rehearse the finale number for "Varsity Show" on the Warner lot.

"We probably won't call it ragtime," he said. "The chances are all in favor of a new name, but it will be the same old stuff—straight and fast.

"You can see the beginnings of the trend right now, in almost any dancing place. People still like to 'swing,' but the minute the band heads into a fast number the whole crowd perks up. In one club I visited recently a fast number brought a cheer from the floor.

"Swing" Music Is Slow.

"Swing is a pretty slow rhythm, you know, although it isn't much different from the syncopation of the 1920's. It's just a matter of accenting the one-two-three-four tom-tom beat. Syncopation accented the off beat—the beat between the steps of a march.

"When ragtime returns I expect that it will be more popular than ever, not because musicians play any better these days, but because recording systems are better now.

"Before electrical recording came in, about 1929, you couldn't register basses and drums on a record. They'd make the needles jump the track. Better recording, along with radio, is responsible for the tremendous popularity of bands today."

The Pennsylvanians were originally almost all Pennsylvania boys. Now they're mostly Californians.

"How Movies Are Made."

Producer Pandro Berman stopped before blonde Joan Fontaine, who was looking very glum on the "Music for Madame" set, and invited to her to confide her troubles.

"Why, Mr. Berman, I have to sing and play with Nino Martini in this picture, and you know I don't do either well," she said.

"Hmmm," replied Berman, "can you dance?"

"Well, not very——"

"That gives me an idea," said Berman. "I think I'll put you in Fred Astaire's next picture."

And it wasn't a joke. Miss Fontaine will probably play the feminine lead in "Damsel in Distress," first picture Astaire has made in years without Ginger Rogers.

Boomerang Joke.

The joke was on Jack Haley when he pulled a phoney faint so he could hear the Braddock-Louis fight. Suspecting Director Otto Preininger would keep the company working after 6 p. m., Haley arranged his faint in advance, and had a stretcher ready to carry him off to a radio. What he didn't know was that Preininger was in on the gag, and purposely kept the company working until 6:15.

If anyone wonders what Jeanette MacDonald has been doing since her marriage to Gene Raymond, she's still working on "Firefly," at Metro, but will be finished in time to sail on her Honolulu honeymoon Saturday. Miss MacDonald, incidentally, has invented a new system for keeping cool through the current heat wave. She wraps ice in chamois skin, and applies it at intervals to pulse and temples.

Selznick Adds Carol Lombard To Star Roster

Hollywood, June 24.—David O. Selznick today added another leading Hollywood star to his talent roster when he signed Carole Lombard to a contract calling for at least one picture a year for three years.

Miss Lombard, now co-starring with Fredric March in Selznick's Technicolor production, "Nothing Sacred," is left free, under the terms of the contract, to fill outside commitments.

The negotiation is in line with Selznick's policy to corral top-rank names for his future productions and is the second such deal completed this year.

Douglas Fairbanks, jr., was recently given a similar, one-film-a-year contract. His first assignment for the producer was "The Prisoner of Zenda," in which he plays young Rupert of Hentzau.

The Selznick drive for established stars imposes no limitations on his perennial search for fresh personalities—a campaign which a few weeks ago yielded star material in the person of 12-year-old Tommy Kelly, of the East Bronx, New York.

Nelson B. Bell About The Showshops

Bright Outlook Confronts Theater Society Patrons With Best of Guild Plays Penciled in for 1937-38

Notable Stars to Open Plays at National Next Season Under Auspices of American Theater Society; Steele to Be Feted; Braddock-Louis Fight Films; "Tovarich" Being Filmed; Amusement Notes.

THE outlook for the legitimate drama, so-called, in Washington next season grows brighter and brighter.

I am indebted to Bess Davis Schreiner, local subscription manager, for the tip thta with an American adaptation of "Madame Bovary," with Constance Cummings; Maxwell Anderson's "The Masque of Kings" and the Lunts' production of "Amphitryon, 38" underlined for probable production here early in the new season by the Theater Guild of New York, there also are agreeable rumors floating about that possibly "High Tor" and even Maurice Evans in "Richard II" may reach the Capital under the auspices of the American Theater Society next season.

BELL.

Whether or not these plays are included in the list of six to be presented on a subscription basis by the Theater Guild and the American Theater Society, it is a surety that whatever ones are will be generously attended, for at the present time there are 2,000 subscribers enrolled on the books of the Society for the National Theater's season of 1937-38.

It is an encouraging sign of the condition of the theater that all five subscription cities of the Theater Guild report new high marks in number of subscriptions—record enrollments never before reached in Boston, Philadelphia, Chicago, Pittsburgh or Washington in any previous year.

Although the National is closed for the summer, the office of the American Theater Society in the mezzainine lobby is open every day from noon to 5 p. m., to accept new subscriptions.

Freddie Steele, world's middleweight champion, will be guest of honor at a special Variety Club luncheon scheduled for 1 p. m., Monday, June 28, in the Willard Hotel. Steele, who will battle Charles "Hobo" Williams in the main bout on the huge boxing card the local showmen, with the sponsorship of The Washington Post, will stage at Griffith Stadium the night of Tuesday, July 20, is expected to arrive here for the week-end. His manager, Dave Miller, himself a West Coast showman, and many notables prominent in Washington's world of sports will be guests of the club.

Speaking of fights and fighters, as somebody seems to have been, Capital ring fans will be given their first opportunity to see the official pictures of the Braddock-Louis bout today from noon to midnight at the Cameo Theater, Thirty-fourth street and Rhode Island avenue, Mount Rainier, Md.

The films were taken at the ringside in Chicago last Tuesday night and show the entire fight round by round and blow by blow. The knockdowns and final knockout are repeated in slow motion. The pictures will be shown every hour, on the hour, in addition to the theater's regular bill. The engagement is for ten days.

Through the courtesy of Sidney B. Lust, operator of the Cameo, The Post's carrier boys will be guests of the management during the run—which ought to make them especially angry at Mr. Lust.

A practically breathless westernunion arrives from Hardie Meakin, manager of RKO-Keith's, stating that so sure is he that he "has something" in "New Faces of 1937," opening on Fifteenth street next Wednesday, that he is unspooling it for the ladies and gentlemen of the press at 11:45 a. m., Monday. This is the picture in which Harriet Hilliard, who visited her husband, Ozzie Nelson, in Washington this week, is the prima donna and a large number of new personalities are introduced to the screen. Ozzie Nelson and his orchestra up to last night were flooding Loew's Capitol Theater with a concord of sweet sound—as you may already have heard.

Since this seems to be fight night, or something, in the column, it might be remarked at this point that Maxie Rosenbloom, former light-heavyweight champion, and one of the most colorful figures in the sport world, has been signed for a part in David O. Selznick's Technicolor production of "Nothing Sacred," costarring Carole Lombard and Frederic March.

Although the fighter has appeared in several other films—"Mr. Broadway," "King for a Night," "Muss 'em Up" and "Don't Pull Your Punches"—"Nothing Sacred" represents his real histrionic debut. He does not appear in a single boxing scene!

It would be interesting to know how Slapsie-Maxie prepares himself for the making of a picture. He used to train for his fights in night clubs when he was champ.

"Tovarich," the Jacques Deval play that has been one of the outstanding hits of the past New York season, goes before the cameras at the Warner Brothers Burbank studios this week and will be given a production cost budget that will make it the most expensive of all productions in the current group. Claudette Colbert, now at the Metropolitan in "I Met Him in Paris," will be cast as the Grand Duchess Tatiana Patrovna, played on the stage with success by Marta Abba. Charles Boyer will appear opposite her in the role created on the boards by John Halliday. Basil Rathbone will complete the stellar trio. Anatol Litvak, noted European director, will have the production in hand. In case you hadn't heard, "Tovarich" means "comrade."

John L. Stewart, director of the Agriculture Players, announces an "Amateur Vaudeville Night," to be staged in the Department of Agriculture's air-cooled auditorium on Tuesday, June 29, at 8 p. m. The Amateur Players are sponsoring the program of amateur acts and the audience will choose the best performers of the evening.

Charles I. Haycraft will lead community singing and Alice Burrie will be the accompanist. Bud Barry, N. B. C. radio announcer, who officiated at the last Junior League "Follies," will act as master of ceremonies. And don't bring any hooks!

Signs of the Times.

Here is another of those precious double-feature bills that add up to tabloid drama:

"VENUS MAKES TROUBLE"
"LEAGUE OF FRIGHTENED MEN"

Contract Bridge

By Mrs. Ely Culbertson.

Bidding Tempo.

Tempo in play is by now a fairly well understood term. Even novices are taught to appreciate the enormous importance of making the proper play at the proper time. It is not so well understood, however, that there is also such a thing as "tempo in bidding." A bid made at one time or, to put it in a different way, at one point in a bidding sequence does not convey the same meaning as the same bid would convey at a different place in the sequence. Let me illustrate my point by means of a hand.

South, dealer.
Neither side vulnerable.

	♠ Q9 ♡ A J 4 3 2 ◇ Q 7 6 3 ♣ 9 6
♠ K 6 5 2 ♡ Q 8 7 ◇ J 9 2 ♣ Q J 5	North West East South	♠ J 8 4 3 ♡ K 10 9 5 ◇ 8 ♣ K 7 4 2
	♠ A 10 7 ♡ 6 ◇ A K 10 5 4 ♣ A 10 8 3

The bidding:

South	West	North	East
1 ◇	Pass	1 ♡	Pass
2 ♣	Pass	2 ◇	Pass
2 N T	Pass	3 N T	Pass
Pass	Pass

It is South's two no trump bid that I wish to bring under discussion. It should be carefully observed that South did not make this bid at an early stage and for that reason North should draw certain negative inferences. South's first rebid is two clubs and only after North makes the perference rebid of two diamonds does South launch into two no trump. This is highly significant, or at least it should be, to players who take the trouble to analyze bidding sequences.

In the one actually given, South undoubtedly is trying to show an excellent hand. Why, North must ask himself, did he not make the simple and direct bid of two no-trump over one heart? The answer is found in South's unwillingness to imply a heart fit. The jump notrump rebid is reserved among good players for hands of balanced distribution which, in itself, guarantees a fit with partner's suit. The fact that South troubles to bid another minor suit over North's heart before mentioning notrump is proof that South is afraid of notrump.

Whether this fear is based on lack of spade strength, lack of a fit with hearts, or both, is unimportant; the vital thing is for North to know that such a fear exists. Obviously, South does not withdraw his advertisement of fear by his subsequent bid of two no trump. He expects partner to remember his previous message and to act accordingly.

It should be noted that if North held nothing in spades, a three notrump bid by him would be very bad. The presence of the spade Queen in addition to the other honors justifies the notrump raise.

In actual play South had little trouble with the hand. As it happened, West opened a spade which insured declarer two spade tricks in addition to the seven sure tricks in the other suits. But no matter what had been opened, careful play would have brought home the contract.

Shifts From Undress to Drama

Louise Hovick, whose languid likeness appears above, is soon to make her dramatic debut on the screen in the Twentieth Century-Fox production of "You Can't Have Everything," now nearing completion on the West Coast. Miss Hovick recently deserted Broadway for Hollywood. You may recognize her more readily as the former Gypsy Rose Lee, "strip-tease" artiste of burlesque and "The Follies."

In Hollywood

With JIMMY FIDDLER

Hollywood, June 24.—on a studio set the other day, I noted representatives of three different races and eight different nationalities, and it suddenly occurred to me that here is the real melting pot of the world. Hollywood fuses all of humanity's antagonistic cultures and isms into one common language that everyone can understand.

PAUL MUNI.

German Aryans rub elbows with German Jews; Chinese and Japanese work side by side; Americans brought up with instinctive distrust of everything foreign exchange thoughts with cosmopolitan adventurers from every port of the Seven Seas. And the natural misunderstandings between various races and nationalities are broken down because everyone is working toward the same end—a good picture.

Look at the Hollywood melting pot from the standpoint of the star—Paul Muni, for instance. In order to give that great characterization in "The Good Earth," he had to learn to think like a Chinese farmer. He lived for a month with a Chinese family, so he could soak up their emotional reactions and mannerisms. I don't believe a man can go through an experience like that without becoming a soundly useful person in this militaristic world.

Pardon me if I seem over-serious today, but I think Hollywood deserves a tribute. And if you will pause and think about the new understanding of "the other fellow" that you have gained by watching some of the great pictures of the past few years, I am sure you will agree.

Met Victor Jory and he told me a revealing story about his pal, Jimmy Cagney, who is not at all the tough mug he pretends to be on screen. It seems that Jimmy invited Vic to spend a week-end on the Cagney yacht and Jory being a red-hot sportsman, arrived carrying a fish spear. Jimmy was horrified when he learned that flying fish were to be speared from the deck of his boat.

"Leave it behind, or you don't go," Cagney ruled. "Flying fish have as much right to live as we have!"

That reminds me of another toughie, Wallace Beery. The other morning he was late on the set and as time dragged on everyone began to worry, for he is usually as punctual as a tax collector. He finally rushed in (just as the director was about to organize a searching party) and offered an explanation. One of his prize bird dogs had welcomed the stork overnight. Wally had sat up with her and lost so much sleep that for once he failed to hear the alarm clock.

Ella Logan, petite dancer and singer, was approached by an advertising agency's representative and asked to indorse a famous cigaret. "How much do I get for the indorsement?" asked Ella, who has not yet reached the top of the financial ladder. $5,000, if the company approves your name," answered the agent. "Boy!" she exclaimed, "for $5,000 I'll even learn to smoke the darned things!"

The Post's New Yorker

By LEONARD LYONS

New York, June 24.

COL. JIM MOLLISON, the transatlantic flier, had arranged to return to America with Jack Doyle on the Normandie. On the night before the sailing, however, Mollison and Doyle fought over the attentions of Beryl Markham. As a result Mollison canceled his passage and switched to the S. S. Paris . . . Walter Wanger assembled the cast of "Fifty-second Street." In response to his call came Leo Carrillo, ZaSu Pitts, Ian Hunter, Jack White, Kenny Baker, Pat Patterson, and hundreds of others. Wanger turned to Silvers and whispered "Any suggestions?" . . . Sid stared at the huge crowd, and answered: "Yes. Change the title—to "116th Street!"

TALULLAH BANKHEAD went to a Long Island party last week-end and participated in a game of chemin de fer. When Talullah was $500 ahead she announced that she would try to lose the money. "I've got a play opening in the fall," she explained, "and I'm superstitious about winning money before the opening. It's bad luck for play." And so Miss Bankhead tried her best to lose . . . She won $2,000.

WHEN FRANK BUCK was last in the Malay jungles to bring 'em back alive, a native runner from Singapore, after five days' travel, reached Buck with the message that America was calling on the telephone. Singapore suggested that the call would have to be received in Java, and so Buck safari'd desperately to a plane, flew to Batavia and got the call . . . It was from a young wealthy Virginian, who explained that he had been in an argument about whether he could lick his weight in wildcats—and would Mr. Buck please bring back 183 pounds of live wildcat?

CARL LAEMMLE, jr., and his attorney, Jack Wildberg, both suffer from hay fever. The other day they learned that Dr. George Piness, hay-fever expert, is in town, and so sent for him to relieve their suffering. "The best thing right now," he advised, "is a boat ride." . . . Wildberg phoned the Personal Bureau at Western Union and asked to hire a boat. They advised him they could get a 55-foot cruiser, manned by eight men, for $550 for the night. Postal Telegram couldn't get them a boat. "Why not try the Staten Island Ferry," the doctor advised.

THEY TOOK THE FERRY RIDE, and Laemmle again tried to hire a boat, in Staten Island. He phoned the navy yard and offered $1,000 to hire a cruiser—without avail . . . The disconsolate sufferers returned to their apartment, where Western Union again phoned, to inform that they had a boat which could be rented for $8 an hour . . . Wildberg and Laemmle took the boat out into the bay, where a sudden gust of wind blew out from shore, carrying the city's pollen right to the trapped victims!

EMILY POST DEPT.: Bea Kalmust, the night-club singer, was married to Cye, the Broadway haberdasher. Milton Berle offered to read aloud the congratulatory telegrams, and asked that they be delivered to him . . . The bridegroom delivered three wires . . . Berle held them behind his back. "Don't tell me," he stated. "Let me guess—they're from the three Ritz Brothers!"

• • • •

FORECAST DEPT.: A noted member of the Stock Exchange wagered $1,000 against $5,000. He bet that Roosevelt would run for President a third time.

• • • •

INVESTMENT DEPT.: More than a year ago Mrs. Natalie Spencer consulted her lawyer upon the advisability of backing a Broadway show. "Yes, do it," he urged, "because you'll take this one licking and learn never to back a show." . . . She invested—in the production of "Dead End," which grossed almost a million dollars . . . In her next venture, she helped Sidney Kingsley's "Ten Million Ghosts," which flopped . . . But Mrs. Spencer decided to risk it again. Her third investment was in "Yes, My Darling Daughter"—one of the season's major hits.

TRAVEL DEPT.: F. P. A. and his wife recently spent three days as guests at the White House . . . Originally, the columnist had been invited for Sunday supper there. He excused himself—explaining that because of the long trip from Connecticut, he'd be "getting too little for so much!"

A WOMAN'S NEW YORK

By Alice Hughes

New York, June 24.

ALICE HUGHES.

THE CASUAL VISITOR this summer is apt to regard our struggling metropolis as a sort of Hollywood without palms and Garbo. For the first time in the town's history, 80 per cent of the sizzling citizenry are wearing smoked glasses — heretofore considered strictly a Hollywood and Miami symptom.

I and my cynical ilk used to sneer at Gothamites who affected the dark lenses. Well I remember the evening I attended a passel of evening pugilistic contests (prizefights to me) and found a dozen half-witted chorus girls wearing such cheaters—and hoping that someone would mistake them for Sylvia Sidney. Naturally, no one did. But the blight remained and festered.

This summer the thing is commonplace, and justified, and with one of those blinding flashes of acuteness which strike even newspaper reporters at times. I have suddenly become aware of the reason. Snow blindness is a well-known medical phenonenon, and while we here can lay no claim to such a happy form, we can boast of what, to coin a scientific term, should be known as Indiana limestone blindness. In short, the rays of Old Sol (there's another nifty!), bouncing off our buildings and our sidewalks, are simply unbearable to the optics.

There is, now and here, a well known disease as a result. The only reason our people have never before assumed dark cheaters is because they didn't want to be conspicuous. The hall mark of the true New York is anonymity. But now good sense has conquered. We wear dark glasses and don't give a rootin' toot whether people think we are imitating Marlene Dietrich or not. So when you drop in this summer, the tenth person wearing colored cheaters will, I dare to presume, be yours faithfully.

• • • •

GIRL ABOUT TOWN—I am sorry to have to report that the Broadway scene this summer is even more dismal than we anticipated. The list of shows has shrunk to a mere dozen, with only one musical show in the lot—which should be bad news for Pop. Incidentally, the cattiest and cutest show in the list, "The Women," has just staged its 200th performance, and will run out the year without a sign of a puff. Clare Boothe's opus still attracts huge hordes—and it should. I hate it, and so will you; but it's a knockout. Incidentally, Betty Lawford, who is the worst beast of the lot in the show, and Ted Husing, the radio announcer, are enjoying one of the most torrid romances of the year. I should not be surprised in the least to hear their wedding bells toll at any given moment.

Today's HEALTH TALK

By Dr. Logan Clendening.

Appendicitis Campaign.

There are a great many campaigns against the prevention of one or another kind of disease before the public—cancer, heart disease, tuberculosis and diphtheria. The one on diphtheria probably is making the most progress.

The appendicitis campaign still depends upon instructing the public that an acute abdominal pain, occurring suddenly in the course of a life of health, is always serious.

Before it was recognized that inflammations in the lower right side of the abdomen were, in most instances, due to inflammation of the appendix, these cases were called perityphlitis. Under the treatment then in vogue, which was vigorous catharsis, they soon turned into peritonitis and nobody knows how high the mortality went.

The appendix is a small piece of intestine lined with lymphoid tissue like the tonsil and very subject to infection, especially in the young. It is the rule as age advances, for the appendix to atrophy, which accounts for the smaller percentage of cases in people after middle age.

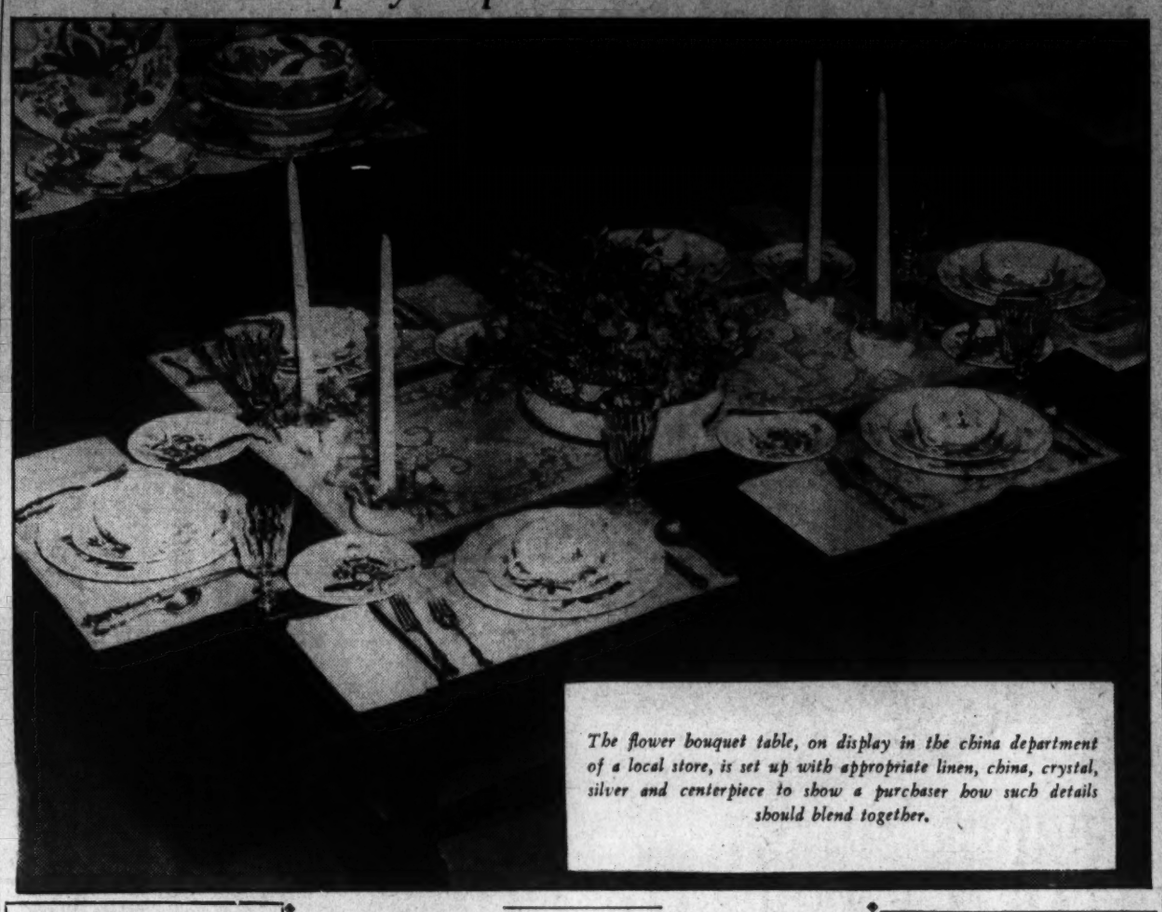
When the lymphoid tissue of the appendix becomes infected with germs, it produces pus. The important thing is to keep the pus inside the appendix, and prevent it from perforating into the peritoneum. The whole difference between an early and a late case, between a simple disease and a disease of great danger, is just this particular matter. Of course, the ideal thing is to remove the appendix with its pus by surgical operation. If this can be done early, while the patient is in good condition, there is no disease that is more easily recovered from, but all too frequently the condition is allowed to run along until it is too late for operation to be safe.

The points in the campaign to reduce the mortality of appendicitis then come down to two things, both of which depend upon the patient's intelligence. One is to recognize the possibility of the disease, and the other is to know what to do after it is recognized. In the first of these, it may be said that any acute pain in the abdomen, no matter where located, accompanied by nausea and fever, should make you suspicious of the possibility of appendicitis. I say "no matter where located," for the pain of appendicitis is not at first anywhere near the anatomical region of the appendix. It usually is first in what is called the pit of the stomach, and only moves to the right-hand side of the abdomen later.

A simple cramp will go away and will not produce nausea and fever, but acute appendicitis usually produces both of these to some degree.

Tomorrow we will discuss what the patient who thinks he has appendicitis should do about treatment.

Table Display Helps Bride in Selection of China



The flower bouquet table, on display in the china department of a local store, is set up with appropriate linen, china, crystal, silver and centerpiece to show a purchaser how such details should blend together.

Pleasant HOMES

By Elizabeth MacRae Boykin.

IT HAD BEEN the family breakfast room, but as the children grew out of high chairs, it was decided that the breakfast room should become the children's dining room. Father and mother wanted to make the room attractive yet didn't want to spend too much in the process—another place where ingenuity would have to play the leading role.

The legs of an old wood top kitchen table were cut down so that the table became a dining table of just the right height for the youngsters. Four small unpainted chairs were bought, three for the family children and an extra chair for company. These and the table were finished in a soft blue. The walls of the breakfast room were already painted a pale yellow so all they needed was a washing down to make them look like new. Father drew a series of scallops on the wall as a border at the top molding and painted them a rich, cocoa brown. The ceiling was also painted brown to make it seem lower.

The one large window was curtained with Dutch type curtains in an amusing chintz, a brown background with saucy, pert faces of kittens as a pattern. These curtains were bound with yellow rick-rack. The same chintz was used to cover chair pads for the small seats and these pads were finished also with the yellow rick-rack.

On one wall of the room a bulletin board, in the form of a black board, was put up as a picture with the frame painted brown. Yellow chalk was used to write down daily reminders and suggestions and here the children were allowed, once a week, to plan a meal they would like to have. Brown paper was used for cutting out several cats that were rubber cemented on the wall directly over the board.

New Glass and China Patterns Enchant Current June Brides

By Rebekah Blake.

LUCKY is the bride of this June—with so many china and glass ware patterns to choose from.

When mother was married it was customary for a bride to select one set of good china for the rest of her lifetime. This habit faded away until women were buying new dishes every other year. Because they were tired of the old ones, because pieces had been broken or because something new was in vogue. They added new dishes until the result was a hodgepodge.

Now the old idea has been renewed and women are again making careful selections of their table ware—choosing articles that will wear well, when carefully handled, and that will not become tiresome or out of date. They are selecting china and glass to fit in with the atmosphere of their homes and of their personalities. Floral designs are prevalent in china as are commercial patterns. But these are rejuvenated too from patterns of many years ago. It seems that the old patterns easily hold their own in modern times.

Pick Pattern Carefully.

When a bride is selecting her new china pattern, it is important for her to do her choosing deliberately and intelligently. In order to save her from confusion one local store has arranged its display to show the different qualities of china and glass. Tables displaying proper set-ups for a bridal breakfast, a garden-luncheon, breakfast for two by the sea, or a sophisticated setting for a summer dinner party all aid the purchaser in making her selection.

Better china in one place, with adequate space for display, and with less expensive ware placed so it may be compared yet not near enough to detract helps to teach the general public the difference in chinaware. Glassware, similarly displayed, illustrates the vast difference between hand blown glass and pressed ware. A new American ware comes in crystal, amber and blue and has a ribbed design which is cooling for summer use. This is inexpensive, probably because it is machine made.

Pottery is much in vogue this season; both painted pottery and pottery with its design molded into it. Besides being useful around the house, and garden, small pieces of pottery are popular as gifts for they may be had in any price.

Trays now are heat proof and alcohol proof and are guaranteed as such. These are in wood and metal with old prints painted on them. One attractive serving tray is shaped like an artist's palette and tiny colored glasses fit into holes especially cut out for them.

Calico Kitchenware.

It seems impossible for kitchenware to be more attractive than it has been for the last few seasons but it is. Bright earthenware with calico painted flowers makes many kitchen dishes. These may be used for baking and serving, thus saving extra pans. Entire sets of kitchen china, including rolling pins, are in some of the gay patterns.

New and different are the little covered dishes that are shaped and colored like lobsters, crabs, clams, apples, tomatoes and onions. Individual servings of food may be baked in these too. French cooking ware is something entirely new for American kitchens but very popular. Besides being ornate, the type of clay used for these pots gives the food an entirely different flavor. These are especially appropriate for baking beans the Boston style.

China ware and glassware also have monograms as have household linens and more personal things. These initials are etched on the china in matching style. They are modern and impressive in appearance but reasonably priced.

Authentic King Edward tableware is one of the most popular styles of the year. It has been such a quick seller that very few pieces are left in the shops and orders are waiting to be filled with American made pieces cast after the King's abdication.

MARY HAWORTH'S MAIL

Confronted With Proposal of Marriage From Illicit Lover, Girl Wonders Whether to Accept.

DEAR MARY HAWORTH: I am 20. I was in love with a boy in high school and we promised we would love each other always and some day would be married. Then business brought father to Washington and I came along. We made a pact to be frank with each other if we ever met another we cared for more. During our three years' separation we corresponded regularly, although we have seen each other only twice, as my work keeps me here and he was in college and at summer camps.

• • • •

Lately he has written that he has been going with another girl but that she could never take my place in his heart. But I have heard from friends that he is deeply in love with her. On hearing this, the bottom dropped out of everything for me and I made up my mind to forget him and write and told him so. He never replied.

• • • •

Now, I had been going with another boy here for whom I cared a great deal, but not as I cared for the other one. In a mood of bitterness, I got tight one night and acceded to his desire. I felt terribly about the whole thing afterward, but continued the affair. He has fallen in love with me and wants to get married. He is a fine boy, handsome, thoughtful, very attentive and has a temporary Government job. Yet, somehow in my heart there is a longing for my first love.

• • • •

Here is my problem: Should I marry this boy, when I am afraid to say I could love him forever, although I care for him very deeply? Or do you think it would be better to give myself more time to meet other men—as my father's work takes us to new cities every few years. Do you think if I were to marry some one else that we could be happy if I admitted this affair? Of course, I blame myself for letting it happen and it would almost kill me to hurt him, as he has been so sweet. It seems so wonderful when we are together and I have never been happier than I am now, but in six months father and I will be leaving for the West Coast. Shall I break this boy's heart or stay and be his wife? Please help me decide.

ANXIOUS.

The Ethical View.

DEAR ANXIOUS: Doesn't the question of ethics or principle concern you at all? Do you really believe that happiness can be found when such considerations are completely ignored? Hasn't it occurred to you that in committing yourself to an affair with the second man (whether for consolation or revenge) which caused him to love and to wish to marry you, that you may have forfeited the moral right to seek further for a husband? Hasn't it occurred to you that sexual intimacy is vicious indulgence, potentially destructive of spiritual fiber, when practised without intentions of permanency and loyalty? The world has long called a man a cad who takes a woman as an opiate, then—with his eye on the main chance—leaves her amidst the fragments of a broken heart. Do you wish to be the feminine counterpart of a bounder?

• • • •

Hasn't it occurred to you that if you don't marry this boy, you will almost inevitably become involved in an indefinite succession of similar affairs? The girl who has once been physically awakened needs the protection of marriage far more than does a girl who has maintained her moral reserve, if she is not to find herself growing increasingly bolder, coarser, less desirable and more promiscuous in her relations with men.

• • • •

Since your paramour is "a fine boy," and since "it seems so wonderful when you are together" and since you "have never been happier in your life" than now, I think you should by all means marry him, with a full-fledged, thoroughgoing determination to make a success of the marriage. This means, of course, that you will have to stop looking over his shoulder, and your own, for hypothetically more suitable marriage partners.

• • • •

Incidentally, your present emotional attitude toward the boy on the immediate scene should give you some understanding of how your "first love" may have felt about that other girl with whom he was reported "deeply in love." In spite of having given yourself to another, you say he still holds first place in your heart. Isn't it logical to assume, therefore, that he, too, may have been telling the simple truth in saying the other girl could never take your place in his heart? When one loves another who, in overt ways, has always justified one's faith, it is reckless and foolish to condemn him on hearsay evidence. However, a tender idyll once roughly handled can never be quite the same again. M. H.

Tomorrow's Problem.

After long correspondence, cousin-by-adoption she met two years ago asks girl to marry him. They won't meet again for two years more, as he has his education to complete, and lives 1,000 miles away. Girl wonders whether or not to become "bindingly" engaged. Her question will be answered tomorrow. This column appears Sunday and daily.

Leftover Sandwiches.

When picnic sandwiches are left over don't discard them. If kept in the humidified atmosphere of the modern ice refrigertaor they will stay fresh and the next day you can brush them with butter and saute for a luncheon dish.

Milk Essential For Balanced Summer Diets

Every Child Should Have a Quart Each Day, Check Shows.

MILK is one of America's most important foods. In some form it might well furnish one-fourth of the total calories used by the average American family. It undoubtedly has more body-building and retaining value than most persons realize.

About one-fifth to one-third of the allowance for food in the family budget should be spent for milk. It is wise to spend as much of the weekly food money for milk, and cheese, if they are used, as for meats, poultry and fish.

The amount of dairy products required by individuals varies. A generous daily allowance is one quart, or its equivalent in dairy products, for every child, one quart for every nursing woman and one pint for every other adult. This includes milk in food preparation as well as a beverage. Every growing child needs, at the very least, a pint a day and an adult at least one-half of a pint.

This food contributes more to good nutrition than does any other single food. It is man's best source of calcium. When taken in sufficient quantities, milk is an excellent source of calcium, phosphorus, protein, Vitamin A and Vitamin G. It also has quantities of other vitamins and minerals. About two-thirds of the solids of milk consist of fat and sugar, which are sources of energy.

Fuel For Body.

Proteins are important building materials. They serve also as fuel for the body. Milk contains two kinds of proteins, casein and lactalbumin. The combination of these proteins is similar to that in the human body. Therefore, they are of special value for tissue building.

Lactose sugar is found in milk. This supplies energy to the body as do cane and beet sugars but has less tendency to irritate the stomach. It also acts as a laxative in many cases.

Butter Fat Important.

Much of the value of milk lies in the butter fat which rises to the top in the form of cream. This has special value due to the presence of Vitamins A and D.

Calcium, phosphorus and iron are found in milk. Phosphorus is needed in the make-up of every living cell. Calcium is the chief mineral constituent of the bones and teeth, and an abundant supply of it is essential for their growth.

Whole milk is one of the important protective foods partly because each of the six vitamins, A, B, C, D, E, and G, is in it.

There are many by-products of milk including cream, skim milk, buttermilk, whey, evaporated milk, condensed milk, dried milk, butter and cheese.

Cream contains the same constituents as milk but in different proportions. It is much richer in fat than milk.

Pellagra Preventative.

Skim or separated milk contains a large proportion of the proteins, sugar, minerals and Vitamins B and G of the milk. In both its fresh and dried form skim milk is of great value in preventing pellagra.

Cheese represents most of the solids of the milk from which it is made with the exception of lactose. Cottage cheese, made from skim milk, is an excellent source of protein, Vitamins B and G and of calcium and other minerals. Hard cured cheeses are usually made of whole milk.

In the preparation of condensed milk, about 18 pounds of sugar are used for every 100 pounds of pure cow's milk and the mixture is evaporated in a vacuum at the temperature similar to that of pasteurization.

Dried Milk Valuable.

Evaporated milk is pure, fresh, cow's milk with much of its water removed by evaporation in vacuum pans. About half of the total weight of the fresh milk is evaporated.

Milk used in the preparation of other foods adds materially to the nutritive value of meals. Evaporated milk and dried milk are as valuable as fresh milk for food preparation. Evaporated milk may be used in its full concentration but diluted with an equal measure of water it is more like fresh milk in food value and consistency.

One and a half cups of cooked prunes added to a quart of partially frozen vanilla ice cream makes a dessert that is economical and different. Half a cup of pecans may be added to the mixture.

Alligator pears, sliced thinly and mixed with chilled French dressing, combine very well with fresh strawberries to be served as a salad.

COOKING HINTS

To vary the flavor and color of summer beverages, freeze fruit juices in a tray in the mechanical refrigerator. Add the frozen cubes to the beverage just before it is served.

Liquid left over from mustard pickles is excellent to mix with chopped meat or fish and use in sandwich fillings.

If cocoanut seems too dry, soak it in milk for five minutes. Then drain it for use in cookies, cakes, frostings or puddings.

Cheese sauce poured over buttered shrimps or tuna fish makes a tasty luncheon, supper or light dinner dish.

Sugar, added in the proportion of a fourth of a teaspoon to two cups of vegetable, will improve the flavor of cooked peas, corn, lima beans or beets. The sugar should be added just before the vegetable is served.

Wedding engagements may be announced by placing small bags of rice at each plate. Each bag should contain the names of the engaged couple.

To keep sandwiches fresh for a day, wrap them in waxed paper and place in a box lined with a damp cloth. Put on the lid and cover the box with a second damp cloth. The sandwiches may then be stored in a refrigerator.

Grapefruit Juice Ice Is Refreshing Treat

Marco Polo gets the credit in some quarters for inventing water ices, and Christopher Columbus rates praise for discovering the proud pomelo. Fame for yourself lies in wait when you combine their ideas and concoct Pomelo Floridian, which is nothing more than grapefruit sherbet, but something more than plain delicious! Just cover two tablespoons bruised mint leaves with two cups sugar; add four cups water, bring to boil and boil 5 minutes. Cool, add four drops green coloring, two cups canned Florida grapefruit juice and one-half cup lemon juice. Strain and freeze, turning slowly. Add whipped egg white when mixture is nearly frozen. Serve with meat. Omit egg and mint and use as plain grapefruit ice in same way.

Secretary and Mrs. Hull Entertain for Van Zeelands

By Hope Ridings Miller,
The Post Society Editor.

Noted figures from two continents and the British Isles were among the guests attending the luncheon given yesterday by the Secretary of State and Mrs. Hull in honor of the Premier of Belgium and Mme. Van Zeeland.

The Carlton Hotel was the scene of the function that began shortly after 1 o'clock and lasted until mid-afternoon. The host and hostess received in the north end of the lobby, decorated with ferns and palms, and huge vases filled with pink gladioli.

Attired in a dark print frock in which green was the predominating color, Mrs. Hull wore, also, a wide-brimmed dark green hat and a pearl choker. Her ensemble and that of the Countess van der Straten-Ponthoz, whose dress was of wood-violet crepe, added almost the only notes of color to the feminine attire. As if by common consent, the majority of the women wore black and white.

The long table at which the luncheon was served in the Carlton Room was decorated with low bowls of ping snapdragons, larkspar, yellow daisies and tiger lilies. The Army Band played while the guests were being received and through the luncheon.

Apparently one of the gayest guests, and certainly one of the centers of attention at the affair, was Viscountess Astor, who probably will always be better known in this country as Lady Astor. She wore a black and white dress and a black hat turned up on the side and trimmed in white.

Twenty-seven Guests Present at Luncheon

Guests in addition to the Premier and Mme. Van Zeeland and Viscountess Astor were the Belgian Ambassador and Countess van der Straten-Ponthoz, the latter wearing a close-fitting black hat trimmed in wood-violets to match her dress; the Attorney General, Mr. Homer S. Cummings; the Secretary of Labor, Miss Frances Perkins, in dark tailored attire; Senator Key Pittman, chairman of the Senate Committee on Foreign Relations, and Mrs. Pittman; Senator Joseph T. Robinson, Representative and Mrs. Hamilton Fish, the Undersecretary of State and Mrs. Sumner Welles, the latter wearing a black and white tailored frock and a white felt hat, circled with a black patent leather band; the Assistant Secretary of State and Mrs. Carr.

Also, the American Ambassador to Belgium and Mrs. Morris; Mrs. Woodrow Wilson, wearing a black and white sheer print and a small black hat, trimmed in white; Mr. and Mrs. James Clement Dunn, Mr. Richard Southgate, Count Guy de Baillet-Lateur, Mrs. Warren Delano Robbins, Mr. Leon H. Dupriez, Count Stanislas de Meeus and Mr. Charles L. van Bellinghen.

Van Zeelands Now Guests at the Belgian Embassy

The Premier and Mme. Van Zeeland, who have been plunged into a round of activity ever since they arrived in the Capital on Wednesday, will be guests at the Belgian Embassy until tomorrow, when they will return to New York.

Yesterday afternoon the Premier's program included a visit to Arlington to lay a wreath on the Tomb of the Unknown Soldier. Last evening he and Mme. Van Zeeland were guests of honor at a dinner given by Mr. and Mrs. James Clement Dunn. A dinner and reception this evening at the Belgian Embassy will be the closing function.

• • • •

But the departure of Premier and Mme. Van Zeeland tomorrow will not indicate that entertaining for noted foreigners is finished. On Sunday, the Ambassador of the Union of Soviet Socialist Republics, escorting the three Soviet transport fliers, Valeri Chkalov, Georgi Baidukov and Alexander Baliakov, will arrive in Washington from the Pacific Coast by train.

The party is coming from San Francisco without stop-overs. On Monday evening the Soviet Ambassador and Mme Troyanovsky will give a large reception at the Embassy in honor of the fliers.

Chinese Minister To Arrive Monday

Dr. H. H. Kung, vice president of the Executive Yuan of the Republic of China and Minister of Finance, will arrive in Washington Monday morning. On Wednesday afternoon, weather permitting, the Chinese Ambassador will be host at a garden party at Twin Oaks, the new Embassy.

• • • •

Meanwhile, Senor Dr. Alberto Ulloe, legal adviser of the foreign office at Lima and former Minister of Foreign Affairs of Peru, who has been here for several days, continues to be guest of honor at a number of functions. The Peruvian Ambassador, Senor Don Manuel de Freyre y Santander, was host at luncheon for him on Wednesday, and the Undersecretary of State and Mrs. Sumner Welles entertained at tea in his honor that afternoon. Senor Dr. Francisco Tudela, president of the Peruvian Boundary Commission in Washington, gave a dinner for him Wednesday evening, and the Director General of the Pan American Union, Dr. Leo S. Rowe, will be host at a luncheon in his honor today in the Pan American annex.

Many duPonts Going to Europe

Anti-New Deal Relatives Start Exodus Before the Wedding.

From Wilmington, Del., comes the report that the approaching wedding of Miss Ethel duPont and Franklin D. Roosevelt, jr., seems to have precipitated a general exodus of anti-New Deal duPonts to Europe.

First to leave was Miss Amy duPont, aunt of the bride-to-be, Her home Dauneport, on the old who is an ardent Republican. Kennet road is the mecca of fem-Republicans," and she has been extremely vehement in her denunciation of the New Deal ever since it came into being. She sailed on June 18 for Europe to remain a month.

Pierre S. duPont, who figured in the famous munitions probe and in the more recent tax investigation conducted by the New Deal Administration, left on Wednesday aboard the Queen Mary for Europe to be with Mr. and Mrs. F. L. Belin, Mrs. duPont's brother and sister-in-law. He denied vigorously that he was sailing to evade an embarrassing situation, explaining that he had made previous business engagements abroad months ago and that he hoped his departure would not be misunderstood.

Alfred Victor duPont, son of the late Alfred I. duPont and Mrs. duPont, and Mrs. duPont will leave the day of the wedding from New York for a trip to Norway and Sweden.

Among other relatives of Miss duPont who will not witness the wedding are Miss Carolyn duPont, who is in Europe for the summer, and her sisters, Miss Patricia duPont and Miss Anne Alexandrine duPont, who left recently for the West. There are many other staunch members of the "Old Guard" who say they will not attend the wedding.

Franklin D. Roosevelt, jr., who left the duPont estate to attend graduation exercises at Harvard will return to Owls' Nest today to remain until after the wedding.

Mrs. Alfred B. Hallowell, of Boston, the former Miss Olivia Morgan, will be a member of the wedding party, it was announced by Miss duPont on Wednesday. Mrs. Hallowell will not take the place vacated by the death of Miss Alyse Hunneman, of Malvern, Pa. Months ago, the former was invited to be a member of the wedding party, but did not know until recently that she would be able to accept.

Skeet Champion Departs Today

Mrs. A. W. Walker Will Participate in Great Eastern Shoot.

Mrs. Albert Wilson Walker will leave today for Bridgeport, Conn., to take part in the ninth Great Eastern skeet championships, sponsored by the Remington Gun Club at Lordship Shooting Grounds this afternoon, tomorrow and Sunday.

This is the biggest eastern skeet event of the year, ranking second only to the nationals, held in September.

Although she participated in her first competitive Shoot only a year ago, Mrs. Walker is favored by many to win the women's championship this year, partly because of the exceptional ability she exhibited in the recent skeet championship for Maryland and the District of Columbia. In the latter contest she not only won the women's championship with a score of 49 out of 50, but also walked away with the individual championship by breaking 98 out of 100 targets, thus surpassing the score of veteran men shooters as well as that of the women participating.

Mrs. William E. Coe is another Washington woman who will leave for Bridgeport today to attend the skeet event.

Mrs. R. G. Vance, of Waban, Mass., winner of the 1936 Great Eastern women's skeet championship, is expected to be one of the strongest contenders for honors in the women's shoot, scheduled for Sunday afternoon.

Society Well Represented At Wedding

Miss Elizabeth Walker Is Married to Mr. Carey.

Given as Bride by Her Father; Sister Is Only Attendant.

Social and official circles in the Capital were well represented in the small gathering that witnessed the marriage of Miss Elizabeth Knowlton Walker and Mr. Joseph Maull Carey 3d, at noon yesterday in St. John's Church.

The bride, who is the daughter of Commander Hugh McLean Walker, U. S. N., and the late Mrs. Elizabeth K. Dodge Walker, was given in marriage by her father. She wore her mother's wedding gown of ivory satin, fashioned on princess lines with a square neckline and short puff sleeves, embroidered with seed pearls. Her veil of tulle, which had an overveil of heirloom lace, was caught at the sides with gardenias. She carried a bouquet of gardenias and lilies of the valley.

Sister Serves As Only Attendant

Miss Carolyn McLean Walker, sister of the bride, was the only attendant. Her frock of brown and white sheer was street length, and was set off with brown accessories. She carried a bouquet of daisies.

Col. Edward Martin Watson, military aide to President Roosevelt, was best man, and several members of the bridegroom's graduating class at Yale served as unofficial ushers. There was no reception following the ceremony since both families are in deep mourning.

After a month's wedding trip Mr. and Mrs. Carey will be at home in Cheyenne, Wyo., where the bridegroom will be engaged in business.

Among the out-of-town guests who attended the wedding were Mrs. Robert P. Carey and Miss Sarah Carey, of Carehurst, Wyo., mother and sister of the bridegroom; Miss Elizabeth Carey and Mrs. Charles Carey, of Cheyenne, Wyo., cousins of the bridegroom, and Mr. and Mrs. Joseph M. Carey 2d, of Philadelphia.

Also Dr. H. J. Hatfield, of Chestnut Hills; Dr. Michael T. Carey, Philadelphia; Mrs. Janet Walker Nixon, aunt of the bride, and Mrs. Eleazar Parmly, 3d, of West Point, cousin of the bride.

Both Principals From Noted Families

The bride is the great-granddaughter of Gen. William H. T. Walker, who resigned as commandant of West Point to enter the Confederacy. On her mother's side, she is the granddaughter of the late Harrison Howell Dodge, who for 52 years was curator of Mount Vernon.

Mr. Carey is the son of the late Senator Robert D. Carey, who was twice Governor of Wyoming, and who died in January of this year. He is the grandson of Joseph Maull Carey, who was also Governor of Wyoming and United States Senator.

Mrs. Grant Ends Service As Club Head

Woman's Army, Navy League President to Leave D. C.

Mrs. Birnie Is Chosen Acting Leader Until Election.

By Jessie Ash Arndt,
The Post Club Editor.

MRS. WALTER S. GRANT, wife of Gen. Grant, commandant of the Army War College, yesterday morning presided for the last time at the meeting of the board of the Woman's Army and Navy League, at the Soldiers, Sailors and Marines Club. She leaves, with Gen. Grant, for New York, July 1, and Mrs. Upton Birnie, wife of Gen. Birnie, will serve as president until an election is held.

The league, in which Mrs. Grant has taken great interest, has made strides this season both in raising funds through its annual rummage sale, for philanthropic work and support of the club for service men, and also in the improvements in the clubhouse. The meeting was held in the room used for parties and sessions of patriotic organizations, which has been redecorated. The whole club shows the effort the women have expended during the spring—new paint, paper, draperies and additions to the furnishings.

Mrs. John C. Kelton, the only surviving charter member of the league, was among those present. She is past 90 but seldom misses a meeting and takes an active interest in all the organization does. The Soldiers, Sailors and Marines Club was started 52 years ago at the time her husband was adjutant general of the Army.

Others present were Mrs. Malin Craig, wife of the chief of staff of the Army; Mrs. Rex Rhoades, treasurer of the league; Herbert A. Rinard, secretary; Mrs. Frederick Benton, assistant secretary; Mrs. Oliver Spaulding, assistant treasurer; Mrs. Consuelo A. Saoane, Mrs. E. S. Kellogg, Mrs. Warren Hannum and Mrs. George R. Spalding.

Proceeds of the party will be used for the committee's welfare work among preschool children.

Among those who have made reservations are Mrs. George Meleny, Mrs. Samuel Stokes, Mrs. Clyde de Binder, Mrs. Evan Condon, Miss Myrtle Isman, Mrs. E. H. Hartnett, Mrs. Eugene E. Stevens, Mrs. J. T. "Madame Chairman" . . .

By Suzanne.

THE AMERICAN LEGION may mean a men's organization to most people, but some of its posts have only women members. Largest among them in Washington is the Jacob Jones Post, the second formed in the District which has a membership of more than 400. The members all did yeomanette service during the war. Washington's other women's posts are the Jane Delano, composed of more than 130 members, who were Army and Navy nurses, many of whom served overseas, and the Belleau Wood Post, composed of women who served with the Marines. The Belleau Wood, smallest of the three, has Miss Emily Carey as its commander.

Miss Jane Cox is commander of Jacob Jones and also editor of its monthly bulletin which contains news of the post's activities and personal items about the members. The fact that summer has come is no reason, in the opinion of the girls of the legion, for stopping work. They are nearly all in business, some in Government service, but still they maintain their welfare activities and regular meetings throughout the season.

August 12, 13 and 14 the department convention of the legion will be held here with sessions at the Mayflower, and delegates then will be chosen for the national convention in New York, September 20 to 23.

Jacob Jones Post will have 40 or 50 members at the convention—no, not all delegates, of course—but a pretty good representation for any post.

* * * *

All of the posts carry on Americanism projects and the Jacob Jones members do regular Braille work at the Red Cross on the first and fourth Tuesdays from November to June, transcribing seven or eight volumes a month. The workers go in all kinds of weather, true to their military training—never shirking duty because of a rain or snow storm.

Jane Delano Post, the first post of nurses in the American Legion, emphasizes welfare work among war nurses and the families of veterans who may need aid because of illness or lack of employment. It also supported a home hygiene class at Opportunity House this spring, in connection with its Americanism program. Miss Eleanor Maynard is commander of the post, which will celebrate its eighteenth anniversary with a meeting on Sunday, July 11. Its real birthday is July 9, but, as the members are employed during the week, the Sunday following was selected for the birthday party to be at the home of Mr. Benjamin T. Maynard in Arlington County, a brother of the commander.

The meetings are held at the official registry of the Graduate Nurses Association.

"YOU'RE A REAL GUY," was the way one of the "junior citizens" of the D. A. R. expressed his admiration for Mrs. Joseph N. Saunders, chairman of the junior citizens' committee, when he learned she was as good a baseball fan as he was.

Not only is the chief of the juniors a fan, but she appreciates how much it means to small boys to see a ball game and wrote a letter about it to Clark Griffith, manager of the Washington Senators. Mr. Griffith, who should know better than 'most anybody the boys' enthusiasm, responded with an invitation for her to bring 15 of them to the big game today when the Senators meet the Chicago White Sox here.

Tomorrow a rally of all the 11 junior citizens' clubs will be held in the old Department of Interior auditorium, at which the children will have opportunity to show each other what work they have been doing during the season. There are 400 members in Washington and about 60,000 over the country.

THE EXECUTIVE BOARD of the Y. W. C. A., which suspends its meetings from June to September, is not satisfied to sever its touch with the "Y" altogether during the summer, so today, the members remaining in town, are having luncheon with the volunteer workers, and Miss Hettie P. Anderson, executive of the "Y", and Miss Irene Dickson, director of Strong Residence. It is to be in the court of Strong Residence which has not been used before for such a gathering of the officers.

BEER DRINKERS LANDSLIDE TO GUNTHER'S AS MANY THOUSANDS DISCOVER ITS DRY BEERY FLAVOR

Gunther Sales Break All-Time Record As Thousands Switch From Sweeter Beers To The Dry Beery Flavor Of This Grand Old Brew!

Even before the weather got warm, real beer drinkers were switching to Gunther's. And now the thousands more who are showing a preference for its dry, beery tang, have broken its all-time sales record

(Above)—These four were caught by the candid cameraman, cooling off the pleasantest way in the world—with dry, beery Gunther's

(Below)—A. K. Cribben, a traveler who crossed the Atlantic eleven times, says that folks in this country are lucky to have a beer like Gunther's that matches the finest beers in Europe

(Left)—Ask any old timer. He'll tell you that Gunther's dry, beery tang is just like the old country brews. That's because it's made with the choicest imported hops and brewed in the manner of the finest Bavarian and Bohemian beers

THE DRY BEERY BEER IS OUTSELLING SWEETER BEERS BY A COUNTRY MILE

An all-time sales record broken! And made by the beer that was already the biggest seller in this part of the country! But it's really not surprising. For Gunther's is a wonderful hot weather beer. Made like the old time brews, its dry, beery flavor and light body is more satisfying than ever when the weather's warm. It doesn't fill you up or spoil your appetite for food like sweeter, heavier type beers. You can drink more of it without feeling as though you had eaten a heavy meal. And in warm weather, when you want to quench your thirst often, that's important.

All over the country the same thing is happening. In St. Louis, Milwaukee, Philadelphia, Pittsburgh, wherever a dry beer like Gunther's is made, it has become the leading seller. Real beer drinkers know good beer is dry and beery. Those sweet concoctions of prohibition days—home brew and needle beer—didn't even deserve the name beer. They were made by adding sugar and raisins to malt and hops. Today, wherever real beer drinkers can get a good, dry, tangy beer like Gunther's, their preference for it is unanimous.

So, if you aren't already a Gunther fan, begin now to enjoy its cool, dry, beery flavor. It will grow on you. Keep some on ice. Call for it at your favorite tavern or restaurant. Be a real beer drinker and cool off with dry, beery Gunther's. Order a case today!

Wherever real beer drinkers gather, you'll find their choice is Gunther's. They know you can drink more of this dry, light-bodied beer without spoiling your appetite. It doesn't fill you up like the sweeter type beers. And in hot weather, when you want to quench your thirst more often, this is important

There was many a close race at Pimlico this spring. But every time, Gunther's won over sweeter beers by a wide margin

Wiffy Cox Leading True Temper Golf Tournament With a Sub-par 69

NATS SWEEP TRIBE SERIES, TAKE FINAL GAME, 8 TO 2

* X WASHINGTON: FRIDAY, JUNE 25, 1937 19

Three Other District Men Finish High

Spencer Has 71; Walper 73; Barnett 74; Tie for Second.

Philadelphia, June 24 (AP).—Wiffy Cox, of Washington, D. C., shot a sub-par late today to lead the field at the end of the first round in the 72-hole true temper open golf championship tournament at the Whitemarsh Valley Country Club.

Cox covered the outward journey in 35 strokes and returned in 34 for his three under par total.

Cliff Spencer, the Beaver Dam professional, was two strokes out of the lead with a 37—34, 71, playing the second nine in two under par. Bob Barnett, of Chevy Chase, in Washington, returned in par after an outgoing 36 for a 74, five strokes out of the lead, a stroke over Leo Walper, who scored 37—36, 73.

Twelve other golfers turned in cards under par and six registered par 72's.

Four tied for the runner-up place with 70's. This group included Harry Cooper, Chicago; Jimmy Hines, Metropolitan Open champion; Frsd Morrison, of Pasadena, Calif., and Bud Lewis, Jeffersonville pro.

Leo Diegel, Philmont, and Billy Burke, Cleveland, came through with 71's to join six other linksmen at this figure.

Babe Didrikson, woman professional golfer, finished far down the list with an 85.

Favored Teams Move Along in Net Tourney

Mitchell-Howard in Finals; Muhleisen-Lynch Gain in Grand National.

By Jack Munhall.

Dooly Mitchell and Bill Howard, favorites, yesterday moved into the finals of the men's doubles in the Grand National tennis tournament at Edgemoor, defeating the highly touted youngsters, Harry Heffner and David Strand Johnson, in a tough four-set match. The scores, 9—7, 6—2, 9—11, 6—4 truly indicate the closeness of the battle and also represent the longest doubles match in the tournament.

Meanwhile the second-favored team of Lieut. Muhleisen and Hugh Lynch continued their sensational pace, downing another strong combination of Tony Latona and Stan McCaskey, 6—3, 3—6, 6—2. The losers had the satisfaction, however, of taking the first set dropped by the winners thus far. In fact, this stellar combination had been loosed from but 2 of 49 games prior to yesterday and on their record will be a better-than-even choice to reach the finals.

Looming in their path is the powerful duo of Buddy Goeltz and Ralph Adair, who are also highly geared and are playing fine tennis. This collision is scheduled for today at 5 p. m. at Edgemoor. Should Muhleisen et Co. emerge victorious, a real natural will materialize for the final round, which is set for 3 p. m. Sunday at Edgemoor.

For these are the first-seeded teams and are synchronizing perfectly. Considering that Hugh Lynch and Lieut. Muhleisen are teaming for the first time, their performance has been remarkable. The late entry of the Army officer caused a revision of the seeded teams in the doubles when officials learned that he was the leading netsman of the United States Army last season, coupled with the fact that he was partnering with Lynch, who is one of the city's finest.

The men's singles semifinals are also scheduled today. In one match Dooly Mitchell, also seeded first in the singles, plays Hugh Lynch, and in the other, Yelverton Garnett, the second-ranking player, crosses racquets with Buddy Goeltz, No. 1 foreign player, the first match being at 4 p. m., with second immediately following.

The finals will be played Sunday at Edgemoor at 3 p. m. between the winner of the Mitchell-Lynch and Garnett-Goeltz matches.

Lewis Works Out For Raddish Bout

John Henry Lewis, world's light-heavyweight champion, who meets Willie Reddish, Philadelphia heavyweight, here Monday at Griffith Stadium, opens training for the fight this afternoon when he works out at 2 p. m. at Turner's Arena with a battery of sparmates.

Lewis, rated as one of the greatest colored fighters of all time, will make his first appearance in a local ring, when he meets Reddish in the 10-round feature of Turner's weekly fight card. It will be a nontitle fight, Reddish being over the class weight of a light-heavyweight.

Two bouts, also between colored boxers, have been added to the card. Ossie Stewart, powerful slugging middleweight from Pittsburgh, has been signed to meet Leo Duncan, of Philadelphia, in an eight rounder and Freddie Wilson, a stablemate of John Henry Lewis, will meet Tiger Smith, of Baltimore, in a six-round engagement.

N.Y. Boxing Commission Will Recognize Louis

Springfield, Mo., June 24 (AP).—Walker Wear, a member of the New York Boxing Commission, said here today "New York will have to recognize Joe Louis as our heavyweight champion."

"There is nothing we can do but reinstate and recognize Louis as champion," Wear said, "and I think that when the time comes the New York commission will approve any heavyweight bout in New York in which either Louis or Braddock is to participate."

Heady Base-Running by Kuhel Averts Double Play for Nats

Joe Kuhel rubs his head in pain after being hit with a ball thrown by Pitcher Earl Whitehill in the seventh inning yesterday. Whitehill made a diving catch of Kuhel's pop bunt and then attempted to catch Buddy Lewis off first base, but the throw hit Kuhel on the conk, bounced into the dugout, and Lewis regained the base safely.

Harvard, Yale Crews In 75th Annual Race

By the Associated Press.

New London, Conn., June 24.—The University of Washington may have demonstrated last Tuesday evening that it has the best 4-mile varsity crew in the country, but you couldn't prove it tonight by the transient and permanent population of this old New England whaling town.

For tomorrow at 6:15 p. m. (E. S. T.), the Yales and the Harvards will step lightly into their sharp-prowed, 60-foot peanut shells to settle a rowing rivalry that was inaugurated on New Hampshire's Lake Winnepesaukee back in 1852 and has been held on the Thames, site of tomorrow's seventy-fifth renewal, since 1878.

Race Upstream.

The 4-mile varsity race will be run upstream in accord with the tide. In the morning, at 9 and 9:30 (Eastern standard time), there will be 2-mile clashes between the Blue and Crimson freshmen and junior varsity eights.

The varsity race, however, has drawn the largest fleet of spectator yachts ever, and has caused all local hotels to be sold out days in advance.

Rarely, in their rivalry, have the crews come up to the eve of the race with less to choose between them. Yale, winner of the Carnegie and Blackwell cups during the sprint season, went undefeated against Columbia, Pennsylvania, Cornell and Princeton. Harvard, while defeating those same four as well as M. I. T., Syracuse and Rutgers, lost only to Navy, winner of the Eastern sprint championship and runner-up to Washington at Poughkeepsie.

Five Seniors.

In each boat, barring unexpected changes, there will be five seniors, including both coxswains, Harvard's being Capt. Edward H. Bennett, jr., the Melrose, Mass., 125-pounder who steered the Crimson to its 5½-length triumph last year. The Crimson also has the same stroke as last year, 190-pound James F. Chace, of New York, while Lewis Johnson 2d, of Morristown, N. J., ineligible in 1936, will set the beat for the Elis, with Capt. Harcourt F. Schulz, of Hartford, Conn., manning the No. 7 oar right behind him.

Tom Bolles, Al Ulbrickson's freshman coach at Washington for nine years before succeeding Charley Whiteside at Cambridge this season, grants the veteran Ed Leader's sweep-haulers the edge in both the freshman race, won last year by Harvard, and the Jayvee, in which Yale scored its lone victory, but rates the four-mile test a toss-up. Leader maintained his customary silence after shocking the veteran hangers-on by sending his varsity over the full course in a final workout last night, just 48 hours before getaway time.

All-Army Net Play Advances To Semifinals

Capt. Andrew Downs Capt. Merritt in Upset; Finals Are Tomorrow.

The All-Army Tennis Tournament marched into the semifinal round yesterday when Capt. Andrew, unseeded, became the fourth player to reach that round after scoring a two-set upset over Capt. Merritt, seeded No. 6, 6—3, 6—3, on the Army-Navy Country Club courts.

Both players were consistent with their volley from the baseline, and it was just a matter of the winner outsteadying his favored opponent. Andrew scored timely placements at the net and was the winner all the way.

Col. Bear defeated Col. Hawkins, 6—1, 6—0, to advance in the veterans' play.

Lieut. Muehleisen, defending champion, meets Lieut. Robertson, seeded No. 8, in the first semifinal match today at 10:30 a. m., and Lieut. Robinson, seeded No. 2, opposes Capt. Andrew, unseeded, at 2 p. m.

Finalists will meet tomorrow afternoon for the championship of the eleventh All-Army Tournament.

DOUBLES RESULTS.

First round—Christenberry-Wade defeated Brown-Riddle, 6—3, 6—2.

Second round—Muehleisen-Robertson defeated Wooleridge-Lange, 6—0, 6—1. Powell-Guiney defeated Wilcox-Erkenbeck, 6—2, 7—5. Andrew-O'Connell defeated Rumbough-Hatch, 1—6, 6—4, 6—4. Quesada-Newcomer defeated Hawkins-Collins, 6—1, 6—3. Robinson-Bell defeated Newman-Bayer, 6—2, 6—3.

Third round—Muehleisen-Robertson defeated Powell-Guiney, 6—1, 6—0.

Two Upsets Mark College Net Play

Haverford, Pa., June 24 (AP).—Two stunning upsets marked the parade of four players into the semifinals of the national intercollegiate tennis singles championships today on the turf courts of the Merion Cricket Club.

Lewis Wetherell, of Southern California, second in the seeding, was eliminated by Julius Heldman, of the University of California, at Los Angeles, 3—6, 6—2, 10—8, and Robert Kamrath, of the University of Texas, was blasted off the court by the unheralded Gerin Cameron, of Tulsa University, 6—4, 6—1.

But Ernest Sutter, defending champion from Tulane, and Richard Bennett, of the University of California, who were seeded No. 1 and No. 3, won in straight sets.

Ryder Cup Golfers Try Strange Links

Southport, England, June 24 (AP).—America's Ryder Cup golfers limbered up on the Ainsdale Course today, experimenting leisurely with the smaller 1.62 ball in preparation for the international series with Great Britain's picked professionals next Tuesday and Wednesday.

Ralph Guldahl showed a small gallery why he is American Open champion by shooting eight birdies on his first round, but a pick-up at one hole prevented his posting a spectacular score. The best complete round was Tony Manero's 70. Walter Hagen, non-playing captain, went to Coventry with Joe Kirkwood, but was to arrive in Southport tonight.

Louis Offered $75,000 For Battle in England

By William Weekes,
Associated Press Staff Writer.

Chicago, June 24.—Joe Louis' first actual cash offer to defend his world heavyweight crown arrived from London today as Mike Jacobs started jockeying to bring Max Schmeling into line for a bout with the Brown Bomber this fall.

The London proposition was an offer of 42½ per cent of the gate receipts, with a guarantee of 15,000 pounds, about $75,000, for Louis to meet Jack Doyle or Len Harvey in Wembley Stadium any time after the second week in August. Back of it appeared Jacobs' first move to do something about the "championship" battle between Schmeling and Tommy Farr, British titleholder, at London's White City arena, tentatively set today for August 9.

Jacobs, who had planned a joint promotion with Gen. A. C. Critchley, of the White City group, to have been staged after the Louis-Braddock title match Tuesday night, only to learn that the British promoter had lined up Schmeling and Farr on his own hook, started negotiations yesterday with A. Arthur Elvin for a rival attraction. The result was today's offer.

The idea appeared to be that an appearance by Louis in London within a few days of the Schmeling-Farr match would chill interest in the latter affair, with the result that Schmeling might decide to pass it up, coming to America instead to try to repeat his triumph of last summer over Louis. Which is just what Jacobs and Louis want.

Although Jacobs said the Wembley offer was considered seriously, he admitted it carried a big catch. Elvin's cablegram today stipulated Louis should pay British government taxes out of his purse. British government taxes being what they are, the idea did not appeal to Jacobs or Louis' comanagers, John Roxborough and Julian Black.

The bout with Harvey or Doyle, should it be made, looked like a swell chance for a nice boat ride and easy money for Louis, for neither has done anything to indicate he would come within a country mile of beating the champion.

Budge Victor Over Boussus At Wimbledon

Readhead Now Considered 'Cinch' to Capture the Championship.

By the Associated Press.

Wimbledon, Eng., June 24.—It began to look tonight as if Don Budge could give any player in the field "fifteen" and still win this Wimbledon championship with a few sets to spare.

Several of England's most-respected tennis critics gave it as their solemn opinion that he could after watching the Oakland, Calif., redhead blast Christian Boussus, French left-hander, off the courts in the third round today, 6—1, 6—4, 6—2.

The only one of his rivals they thought possibly might be excepted was Baron Gottfried von Cramm, of Germany, and they were not at all sure about that. The baron had to play all the tennis he knew how to get past Jiro Yamagishi, 6—4, 6—4, 3—6, 6—4, and the Japanese probably isn't as good as Boussus.

The fact that Budge's Davis Cup teammates, Bryan M. (Bitsy) Grant, of Atlanta; Frankie Parker, of Milwaukee, and Gene Mako, of Los Angeles, all advanced with him to the fourth round—the round of 16—was lost sight of in the brilliant performance Don gave in subduing Boussus.

Budge most of the time made the Frenchman look like a novice. The redhead was simply terrific and Boussus might just as well have been wielding a feather fan.

Budge's convincing victory climaxed another uneventful day in which such favorites as Heinrich Henkel, second ranking German; Vivian McGrath and Jack Crawford, of Australia, Ladislaus Hecht, of Czechoslovakia and H. W. (Bunny) Austin, of England, advanced. Austin had quite a tussle on his hands

Griffmen Get 14 Hits Off 3 Indian Hurlers

Increase Winning Streak to 5 Straight; Weaver's Line Single Puts Home Team Ahead and Erases Lloyd Brown.

By Shirley Povich.

Nourished by 14 run-building base hits, that tender little winning streak the Nats have been nursing reached the robust proportions of five straight yesterday at Griffith Stadium. Coincidentally, the losing streak of the Cleveland Indians also thrived.

The Nats beat the Indians, 8 to 2, because Monte Weaver, who was not content with pitching some tolerable baseball, stepped up to the plate in the fourth inning and with his funny batting swing knocked over the tying and winning runs.

Weaver, the thin man of the Nats' staff, recorded his seventh victory of the season and ushered the Nats to their longest string of triumphs in two seasons, with an eight-hit pitching performance. But it was that nick-of-time hit off his bat that actually beat the Injuns.

The Washington athletes weren't doing so well at the time. Weaver had gotten himself mixed up with a pair of triples off the bats of Bruce Campbell and Earl Averill, and the Indians had rolled up a nice 2-0 lead for Lefty Lloyd Brown in those first four innings.

Then Freddie Sington, whose recent slugging exploits have won him new favor with Griffith Stadium fans, belted a line-drive two-bagger to left field to commence proceedings against Brown. And then Cecil Travis bashed a single to left to put Sington on third. The situation took on a nice outlook when Brown walked Mihalic to fill the bases with none as yet out and the Nats got a run back when Rick Ferrell bashed a long fly to Weatherly.

But one run appeared to be all that the Nats would get out of the inning, what with the unterrifying figure of Weaver now in the batter's box—especially when Brown slipped two strikes past Monte. But he never got that third strike across, because Monte whaled it over second base for a single and Travis and Mihalic, who had moved up a base on Ferrell's fly, clattered home with the runs that put the Nats in front, 3-2.

Something happened to Monte after that, apparently. Anyway, he reformed out there on the pitching mound, and the Indians got only four hits off him after that fourth inning. Not only that, but not an Injun saw second base after that fourth. Monte was hanging on to his lead with all the grimness he could muster from his spare-ribbed frame.

Earl Whitehill, the old left hander, came in to stop the Nats' uprising in that fourth. He came in after Weaver made his devastating hit. Apparently Manager Steve O'Neill figured that if Weaver could make a hit off Brown, the possibilities were limitless, so he called Whitehill into the box.

Whitehill got by for two innings, then Buddy Lewis opened the seventh with a cheap single to left and with two out, the veteran Whitehill (for shame!) committed a balk that put Lewis on second. Then this same Sington whammed a single to right and the Nats' lead was now 4-2.

As a precautionary measure, or perhaps just for the hell of it, the Nats went out and got four more runs in the eighth. Wallis Hudlin, the Injuns' leading pitcher, was in the box. They got only two hits off Hudlin—singles by Rick Ferrell and Lewis—but Trosky mussed up Weaver's sacrifice bunt, Hudlin walked three batters to force one run in and Weaver scored from third while the Cleveland infield was inspecting the stitches on the ball.

But the ninth inning was not without its thrill. Roy Weatherly hit a ball toward Anacostia and had reached third base only to be informed that Jesse Hill had ankled over there from 50 yards away and got it with the sprint he learned at Southern California. You should have seen that catch.

Highland Song Wins Charles Town Purse

By Walter Haight,
A Staff Correspondent.

Charles Town, W. Va., June 24.—Highland Song, making the second start of her racing career, led all the way in the running of the Morgan Purse, feature race of today's program at the Charles Town Jockey Club's turf plant. The trim filly, whose sire was either Gallant Knight or Strolling Player, broke out of the No. 1 post position and, after a keen struggle, emerged the winner by a half length margin over Edith Walker. Third money in the group of six went to Sylvia G.

Owned by C. E. George, of Washington, D. C., Highland Song was given a good ride by Jockey Garrett and recorded time of 1:16 4-5, three fifths of a second off the track record for the "Charles Town" route.

The program was conducted under bright skies and over a fast track. A better-than-average Thursday crowd of 4,500 witnessed the sport.

Hesitating for a brief moment before breaking, Highland Song then bounded to the front and began a dog-eat-dog battle with Edith Walker which lasted all the way. After opening a length lead on her rival in the opening quarter, Highland Song had her foe up to her saddle cloth for the remainder of the route, but she stuck to her running guns gamely. Sylvia G. showed a good race to close in for third money.

Daily double players participated in wagering that produced a $43.60 pay-off on the combination of three and four. Monologue began the transaction with Soupcon putting on the finishing touches.

Lady Windsor, owned by Mrs. F. E. James, of Washington, scored a surprise win in the first race when the filly came from behind to defeat Morely Firth by a length in a 4½-furlong dash. Aella was third in the limit field of eight. Lady Windsor was capably handled by Jockey A. Tryon and paid a $43.20 mutuel.

Another longshot came marching home in the second race when Monologue, under Jockey Leon Garrett's handling, downed, among others, Topsie H. and Tuleyries Ruby. Monologue ran Tuleyries Ruby into defeat and had enough left to take care of Topsie H.'s closing bid.

Jockey F. Cusimano, of Washington, brought Soupcon, an ancient campaigner, to the wire for the favorite players in the third race. The big gelding was given a stiff battle by Sea Finn, one that he defeated by a neck margin. Au Foin was a like distance off Sea Finn and Lady Gurzil was nosed out of the money. Soupcon paid a $3.80 mutuel.

Bromide came from behind to win the fourth event, getting up in the closing strides to take care of Sun Belle and Fredalva, a pair that finished noses apart. Bromide paid a $7 mutuel and turned in the creditable time of 1:17 1-5.

LADY WINDSOR, off alertly, dropped back, came to outside with a rush entering the stretch and disposed of MORLEY FIRTH to win going away. MORLEY FIRTH showed high speed to take a short lead going to far turn, drew out on swing to stretch, but could not resist the winner. AELLA went evenly, but could not seriously threaten. PAGEANTRY had no excuses. The others were not prominent.

MONOLOGUE, closest to the pace of TULEYRIES RUBY from start, took command on backstretch and held TOPSIE H. safe in final drive. TOPSIE H. worked her way up on outside, but hung in closing stages. TULEYRIES RUBY set a good early pace, but weakened gradually. CROSSED WIRES, a forward factor from start, could not better position in stretch.

THIRD RACE—Seven furlongs. Purse, $400; claiming. For 3-year-olds and upward. Start good from stall gates. Won driving; place same. Went to post at 3:33. Off at 3:34. Winner, D. P. Brown's ch. g. Two-dollar mutuels paid—SOUPCON, $3.80, $3.00, $2.80; SEA FINN, $3.40, $2.80; AU FOIN, $5.80.

SOUPCON, off alertly, saved ground while racing with SEA FINN, drew out, but barely lasted while weakening in final 30 yards. SEA FINN, closest to the pace throughout, showed an excellent effort and was wearing down winner gradually at end. AU FOIN, poorly handled, came with good courage in closing drive. LADY GURZIL, also poorly handled, finished on own courage. CORA KAY dropped out of it, saved ground and came with a rush on inside.

FOURTH RACE—Charles Town course. Purse, $500; claiming. For 3-year-olds and upward. Start good from stall gates. Won driving; place same. Went to post at 4:04. Off at 4:05. Winner, R. B. BROMIDE, steadied along behind the pacemakers to the stretch turn, came around horses to improve position when called upon and outgamed SUN BELLE. The latter raced ALAHAD into submission and weakened slightly nearing end. FREDALVA, away slowly, was blocked swinging for stretch, saved ground and closed with a rush on inside. ALAHAD stopped after setting and pressing pace. AGREEABLE could not keep up.

FIFTH RACE—Charles Town course. Purse, $600. For 3-year-olds and upward. Start good from stall gates. Won driving; place same. Went to post at 4:32½. Off at 4:33. Winner, C. E. George's b. f. Dettweiler and Shea Join Baltimore Duo in Middle Atlantic Semifinals

Yoder, Pitt, McCarthys' Are Beaten

Shea Continues Sub-Par Golf in Double Triumph.

By Merrell W. Whittlesey.

Billy Shea and Billy Dettweiler, campus cronies at Georgetown University and members of the host club, Congressional, entered the semifinals of the Middle Atlantic championship yesterday, with a pair of side-kicks from Baltimore, Spencer S. Overton, Rolling Road, and Donald McPhail, of the Baltimore Country Club.

Former champions were rudely brushed aside by the march of today's semifinalists. Dettweiler was the only one not accounting for a previous titleholder.

Medalist Shea again produced subpar golf in ousting defending champion Levi Yoder in the morning and was 1 under perfect figures in the afternoon as he trounced Martin F. McCarthy, 6 and 5. Dettweiler was near par figures in scoring a pair of one-sided triumphs.

Two Under Par.

Overton, playing the best golf of the invaders, was 2 under par in recording triumphs over Parker Nolan and Morton McCarthy, while McPhail fired a 70 at Harry Pitt in the morning and was too good for Gene Pittman in the second round, defeating the transplanted Texan 4 and 2.

In the fetaure match card, Shea was down in two occasions to Yoder, losing the first two holes, but squared the issue at 6, only to go 1 down as late as the twelfth hole to the champion's deuce. A birdie 4 on the next hole and par birdie on the next two erased Yoder's advantage and Shea assumed a 2-up margin, which he maintained through the seventeenth hole.

In the afternoon Dettweiler, playing the finest golf of his 18 years, turned 3 up on Beaver Dam's "Iron Man," Martin McCarthy, and won 11 through 13 for the victory.

Not Extended.

Dettweiler was not extended in brushing aside Bernard Dennell and W. W. Wagner, jr., the third Baltimore participant in the championship flight. Priming for the intercollegiate, scheduled next week at Oakmont, Billy was even par in the morning, playing the first nine in 35 and holding a 4-up lead.

Wagner, who went 21 holes to defeat Maury Fitzgerald in the morning round, lost his touch against Bill and lost 6 and 5, the winner ending the match with a birdie on the thirteenth.

Overton was 4 up after 13 holes against Parker Nolan, but averted a final hole match by halving the seventeenth after the host club champion had chopped two strokes off his lead. The recent runner-up in the Maryland State tourney scored 71.

Harry Pitt, who has had the misfortune of meeting "hot" players in recent tournaments, watched McPhail burn up the second nine in 53, the lowest round of the event and bowed 2 and 1.

Entering his second round as under-dog against McCarthy, the nationally known star from Virginia, Overton continued his deadly putting streak and won 3 and 1, aided by four birdies, two in a row at a crucial point of the match on the second nine.

This Morning

WITH SHIRLEY POVICH

The property rights in the Washington Ball Team which this department was almost beginning to believe it possessed have vanished rather remarkably during the past five days. It isn't my ball team any more.

It used to be. Back there a couple of weeks ago when the Nats couldn't win a ball game with a 40-0 lead, when they were in that dizzy descent toward last place, I suddenly acquired the Washington Ball Club.

POVICH.

It was conferred upon me. Leastwise it seemed so. Nobody else wanted it, although I do not mean that this department, personally, was keen about the club either. But the same guys who at the start of the season were saying our ball team looked great, were disclaiming all association with it.

* * * *

They didn't want nothin' to do wid it, as they say in our set. And somehow, they got the idea that I did. Anyway, they weren't asking simply "What is the matter with the Washington ball team?" No, indeedy. They weren't putting it that way. When they did ask, they were saying, "What is the matter with your Washington ball team?"

* * * *

Thus, without consulting Mr. C. C. Griffith they gave me the ball club, and darned if I didn't begin to believe that I had property rights in it. But that delusion has vanished now, as I was saying. My fickle friends have changed their tune and tone.

Once again, it's the Washington ball club—their team. Folks don't ask any more what's the matter with "your Washington team." They've reclaimed it and the reason is as plain as the nose on the mug of that guy up above there in the picture.

Those five straight wins of the Nats are responsible. All has been forgiven and they are regarding the Washington Club now with the same fondness which is reserved for rich uncles who are in an early stage of rigor mortis.

* * * *

And the truth is that the Nats have been looking swell, indeed, ever since they came out of the West with a woeful record of seven defeats in ten starts on the trip. You've got to like a team that shakes itself out of the doldrums like the Nats did.

* * * *

Joe Kuhel, who couldn't hit the ground with a shovel in the West, led the team out of its batting slump. And base hits began to rocket off the bat of Buddy Lewis, too. Freddie Sington, who had been aching for the chance, got a regular outfield job and started to hit in big league style. Johnny Mihalic tightened the infield defense.

They've been lucky, too, but luck always goes hand in hand with winning. When the Nats were losing, their line drives were being caught and the other team was benefiting from those cheap hits over the infield. For the past week it has been the Nats who have been getting those good breaks.

But, boiled down, the prime reason for the Nats' about-face is, in fact, two reasons—Rick and Wes Ferrell. They are the lads who gave the team the needed shot in the arm that transformed a bunch of dullards into an explosive gang of athletes.

Wes Ferrell did something to the entire club. When he was out there pitching matters seemed secure. The Nats, who had seen big leads vanish almost daily with some of their second-rate pitching on the premises, always had a feeling that they were always in the ball game with big Wes out there. Whether he was ahead or behind, there was always the comforting and inspiring thought that he would make a couple of runs stand up nicely.

* * * *

And it isn't strange, either, that the form reversal of other Washington pitchers dates from the day that Brother Rick put on a Washington uniform and squatted behind the plate. The fellow always has been one-two-three among big league catchers ever since he came up with the Browns and Washington pitchers for the first time since 1933 have not only a target behind the plate but a guy who can help 'em with their thinking.

He's no drawback to the Nats' batting punch down there in the lower end of the order, either. But it is significant that Monte Weaver, who has always been troubled by wildness, did not walk a single hitter yesterday. Rick may have had nothing to do with that, but I wouldn't wager on that possibility.

* * * *

This Cleveland Club which the Nats slapped down three straight times this week is the same club that took three out of four games from 'em the last time they met. But the Washington Club isn't the same. Somewhere it got some gumption and if you don't think that can be translated into base-hits, then you don't have to say it with a smile when you address me, Stranger.

Is it really a Breathless Moment?

Tests show that VINTAGE TOBACCO is at least 25% easier on your breath than all other 5¢ cigars tested . . .

BE kind to your friends. Avoid offending. Enjoy the fragrance and aroma of a good cigar . . . but be sure it leaves no long-lingering odor to taint your breath.

New scientific discoveries have shown that White Owl's Vintage tobacco is exceptionally low in the substances that cause unpleasant tobacco breath. Tests with a delicate osmoscope prove that this tobacco leaves less odor.

White Owl is a better cigar because it always has a Vintage-tobacco filler. Nature—not factory processing—made this tobacco exceptionally mild, mellow.

We maintain a vast crop-inspection system—the only known organization of its kind—to locate Vintage tobacco. Even in Vintage years, we classify all filler tobacco into seven grades—and buy only tobacco of the quality of the top three for use in White Owls.

Once you've switched to White Owls, you'll know a new joy in smoking. Try one today.

THE METALLIC NOSE KNOWS

Scientists use a sensitive osmoscope to measure odor . . . to record its intensity and lasting power. Ten different brands of 5¢ cigars were tested by this machine. White Owl was at least 25% easier on the breath than all the others. After 30 minutes, all trace of tobacco odor disappeared from the breath of White Owl smokers.

New York, June 24.—Bump Hadley allowed the St. Louis Browns six runs in the first three innings today and then pitched one-hit ball the rest of the way as the Yankees came from way behind to club out a 9-to-6 victory.

The win boosted the Yanks American League first-place margin to three full games over the second-place Detroit Tigers, who were defeated in Boston.

Post Notes on Fishin' . . . . By Bill Ackerman

ACKERMAN

Channel bass continue to run good for surfcasters at Fox Hill Levels and for the boats out of Wachaprague. At Chincoteague, large rays have spoiled the fishing for several days, unless one happens to like the type of fun these winged fellows can supply. Do you know how to move them when they cup themselves to the bottom? Try ringing a large blue crab with a small wire loop and let it slip down your line. The action is immediate and furious.

Two honest fishermen—Edgar Baum and Jack Schrivener, who report their inability to catch but one out of every three fish that struck their lures, trolling between buoys 14 and 16 on the Middles, from the boat of Capt. Brady McKay.

But don't let it get you down, fellows, for that is the one fly in the ointment when trolling weakfish. Their tender mouths are unable to stand the take-up after the strike. The fact that you took 32, up to 4 pounds in weight, is good enough—all you could possibly use and give away, too.

In all likelihood these fish will stay in this three-mile stretch for many weeks to come, and should, if they are not taken by seiners, supply a lot of sport. Use a 1½ Huntington drone.

Our managing editor, Alexander F. Jones, who, by his own admission, is in the novitiate class when it comes to angling, was at the last minute prevented from joining the fishing editors on the Eastern Air Lines trip to southern Florida for three days' sail and tarpon fishing. It is to be regretted, for he would have really been in fast company (from a fishing standpoint) and there is little doubt that he would rate expert angling after three days close contact with Don Carpenter, Irving Castell, Laddie Clark and Hammond Brown, of Baltimore.

We are awaiting with interest news of this first contingent, while another got off on Wednesday and still another to leave on Sunday.

The first tuna of the season has been taken off the north Jersey coast—only 31 pounds to be sure—but a start. Capt. Spriggs, of Piney Point, has discontinued to report catches of rock, so in all probability they have stopped biting for a while. Capt. Joe Lore, of Solomons, has sent in his first unsolicited report, so there is no further doubt but what the daily catches are running good down his way.

Weakfish, fluke or summer flounder, seabass and porgies seem to be actually waiting to grab the angler's bait no sooner than it touches the bottom, not only in scattered sections, but everywhere along the coast. Mackerel have hit at Montauk and so thick that it is solely up to the angler just what the catch will be. No reports at all from Oregon Inlet, but then that is to be expected. After July 1 the blues and channel bass should return and stay until cold weather.

At Gloucester Point, Va., Capt. T. S. Clopton reports their initial run of blues as having moved on, but that another can be expected shortly. In the meantime, catches of cabio are from two to six a trip and from 18 to 60 pounds.

Capt. T. E. Jones is back at his old stand—the pier at Chesapeake Beach. He is within reach of several good fishing grounds. To be safe, get your bait here in the city and keep in mind that here the charge is so much per head for so many hours of fishing.

Tarpon tournaments everywhere on the west coast of Florida. One at Tampa, with an imposing list of prizes. The eleventh annual at Sarasota, which is about to close. Another at Venice and Nokomis, but called a Tarpon Derby. One at Boca Grande, and right here note this fact—there have been 2,100 tarpon caught in Boca Grande Pass this season. Practically every record for numbers caught has been broken this year at this place, but the Florida record for size continues to stand at 242 pounds, caught by Ed Trainer in the St. Lucie River, on the east coast.

Budge Is Victor Over Boussus

before he could eliminate young Jack Bromwich, of Australia, 6—2, 4—6, 6—0, 8—6.

Parker, Mako and Grant all won without much trouble although Grant took a bad tumble in the latter part of his match with E. R. Avory, of Great Britain, which the tiny Georgian won, 6—3, 6—4, 2—6, 6—2. Hard Luck Bitsy's ankle was twisted slightly, but he said it did not bother him.

Parker whipped M. D. Deloford, of Great Britain, 6—0, 6—1, 5—7, 8—6, and Mako put out the Chinese Davis Cup player, S. K. Kho, 3—6, 6—1, 6—2, 6—4.

Crawford, McGrath and Henkel all defeated Yugoslavian opponents. Crawford defeated Franz Kukuljevic, 6—3, 6—2, 10—8; McGrath disposed of Josip Pallada, 4—6, 6—3, 7—5, 6—2, and Henkel tripped Ferenc Puncec, 6—2, 6—2, 6—1. Hecht's victim was the Briton, C. M. Jones, 8—6, 6—4, 6—3.

American combinations did little better than hold their own in doubles play. Helen Jacobs and Mme. Hilda Krahwinkel Sperling, of Germany, won a first round match from Mrs. A. H. Mellows and Mrs. K. J. Underwood, of Great Britain, 8—6, 6—2, and Mrs. Dorothy Andrus, of New York, and Mme. Sylvia Henrotin, of France, defeated Anita Lizana, of Chile, and Margaret Scriven, of England, 6—2, 9—7, but Alice Marble and Katherine Winthrop, playing a center court match with Queen Mary an interested spectator, were soundly beaten by Mme. Rene Mathieu, of France, and Billy Yorke, of England, 6—2, 6—4.

Cubs Score 10-5 Victory Over Giants

Come From Behind to Win; Herman and Hartnett Star.

By the Associated Press.

Chicago, June 24.—The Cubs outlasted a sudden display of power by the Giants' new clouting trio and put on considerable extra-base walloping themselves to whip the New Yorkers 10 to 5 today and take the "crucial" series two games to one.

Wally Berger, with a homer and two singles; Mel Ott, with a homer, two doubles and a single, and Sambo Leslie with a run-producing single sent the Giants off in front. But the Giant pitchers, led off by Hal Schumacher, didn't have a chance once Billy Herman and Gabby Hartnett found the range.

Dusek Pins Cox; Lenihan Arrested

Rudy Dusek, the leader of the "riot squad," threw Bad Boy Joe Cox last night in the feature event of the first outdoor wrestling show of the season that offered 1,500 spectators the usual assortment of rough-and-ready tactics, both within and without the ring.

Cox bowed to Dusek after 34 minutes of puffing and groaning and, for the first time, Cox, long considered a villain by weekly followers, became the hero. He was taken to their hearts after Dusek had pinned him with a body slam.

George Lenihan, a preliminary performer, was arrested when he became engaged in a brawl with a spectator following his victory over Bob Roberts in the opening event. He posted $5 collateral at the Second Precinct Station.

In another feature event Reb Russell threw Wee Willie Davis with a crotch hold in 21½ minutes. In other preliminary matches Jack Kennedy threw Joe Maynard in 12½ minutes with a dropkick and body press, and Nick Campofreda was awarded a 30-minute decision over Jack Hader.

McGroary Wins Night Clubbers With His Smile

Rainbow Room's Maitre d'Hotel Is True Son of Old Erin.

By Chanticleer

Introducing Patrick McGroary, maitre d'hotel of the rainbow room at the Hamilton Hotel. Say, hello, and now a bit about this man. A wee bit more Irish than the Blarney Stone, with the traditional yen for corned beef and cabbage, Mac now is rounding out his third year at the hotel. Always ready with a beaming smile, this son of Erin has become one of Washington's better known maitres.

As much as Milton Davis' music, as much as the air-conditioning and the far-famed Tom Collins, Patrick has come to be a featured part of the make-up of the rainbow room. His courtesy, his cheerful smile and genuine friendliness bring him many new friends.

The little blue-eyed scout of this department has stationed himself behind wooded areas of the Richmond highway and has been checking the traffic. He wants to know the reason for the increase in the number of vehicles that have been infesting this stretch of the road. His findings seem to indicate that the Washington night lifers are beating a path to the new Nightingale Club in great hordes. Bet he even counted us as we passed by the other evening. Thus, both from the findings of the scout and from personal findings, we are able to make the unqualified statement that this spot deserves the attention of those who like good food, good dance music and service.

Strickland Leads Band.

Add familiar sights on Fourteenth street . . . the Lotus Night Club's doorman . . . always on the alert for approaching cars to deliver the guests . . . he has a real police whistle that he toots for passing cabs . . . upstairs, in that really cool room . . . there's lunch served . . . and a floor show at 1 p. m. . . . then there is a dinner served . . . and a floor show at 7:30 p. m. . . . and a late supper . . . and another floor show at 11:30 p. m. . . .

Bill Strickland, as you know, is the band leader . . . the wine and liquor list is complete . . . and there never is a cover charge . . . the entertainment bill is up to standard . . . with Sonya and Romero . . . as features . . . in a comedy skit . . . that is extremely well done . . . Betty Dean in an Egyptian acrobatic . . . Pat Binson . . . calls his bit . . . "Jazz Revel" . . . Marion Dawn . . . sings your favorite hit tunes with the orchestra . . . emcee Al "the Lotus" Norton . . . adds his personal charm to the bill . . . and a good time will be had by all . . .

Life at the Shoreham Terrace is made extra pleasant with the three Yates sisters entertaining with their dancing. Yes, suh, these lassies are Southerners, too. And they are sisters, what's more. This past winter they toured their homeland and per-formed at some of Dixie's best places. Without a doubt, Jerry Lynn and Carol art three of the cutest performers appearing this season.

The Terrace season is now at its height. Barnee is in swing with the latest tunes. The grassy plateau beyond the dance floor is smooth and thick as plush. What with this moon hanging overhead these nights . . . ahhhh.

Next week, "Gwynne," the magician, will head the night program. More later on this gentleman.

There has been a decided drop in temperature inside the Hi-Hat Club. All last week, an air-conditioning engineer spent his spare moments tinkering 'round with the machinery and the net result is a cool atmosphere. Incidentally, the mint juleps at the Hi-Hat must be good judging from the number of feverish noses we discovered buried in fragrant mint leaves.

Here is one of the worst dilemmas in the world . . . to the ever-present query of "how's business?" . . . business is very good . . . so good in fact, that there isn't enough room for the patrons . . . and that makes me feel none too good . . . when you see people who would like to come and stay awhile, but haven't place because your place is already filled . . . that hurts . . . and so John Melrose, manager of the Cork and Bottle, announces that the place will be made larger to accommodate more people.

Sunday Last Dance Night.

Otis Manning, the little man who performs those big tricks of the ultra modern magic at the Mayfair, is closing at this spot after a successful engagement. Otis is off to Philadelphia . . . to the Walron Roof. Bye, Otis, and good luck . . . come back and see us sometime.

Those of you who like Sunday night dancing are given this opportunity to get in the last of it, come Sunday night. The Madrillon makes this Sunday the last until next fall, for dancing. So there.

Carl Gunther and his boys make the hot nights like so much nothing. Sounds rather dumb, at first, but a trip to Brinkley's will convince you that nary a thing could stop you from dancing to their music . . . not even the weather.

On taking a ride down to the Boulevard Farms, where chicken dinners are the specialty, we find that the show will boast this week no less personages than those of Lee and Coty O'Neill. They do tap dancing both in solo and in team. Retained for a second week is Dorothy Lewis . . . with hula dancing and a rhythmic rhumba.

Coast Guard Lends Boat for Carrying Swimmers to Pool

A 35-foot boat lent by the United States Coast Guard will be used for ferry service across Washington Channel to the new East Potomac swimming pool, C. Marshall Finnan, superintendent of National Capital Parks, announced yesterday.

He said he hopes to have the motor installed and other arrangements completed in time to begin operating the line early next week. The craft is to be brought here from Baltimore in a day or two.

With a capicity of 25 persons, the ferry boat has an 8-foot beam and is in good repair, Finnan said. According to tentative plans, it will shuttle daily, mornings and afternoons, between the Harbor Police wharf and the swimming pool across the channel for the special benefit of southwest youngsters who now have no access to the recreation center.

Three Accused Of Using Mails In Fraud Plot

Eye-Cure Scheme to Rob Woman, 83, of $1,875 Is Charged.

The District Grand Jury yesterday indicted J. Douglas Conner, Lawrence B. Holtkamp and Charles Weaver on charges of using the mails in a scheme to defraud Mrs. Jesse W. Wood, 83, of Danville, Va., of $1,875 in an alleged eye-cure racket.

Two of the men, Conner and Holtkamp, are said to have visited Mrs. Wood, who was persuaded to undergo an operation to cure an eye ailment. For that she was charged $875.

A month later the same two again visited Mrs. Wood and told her, it was charged, they had a belt that would aid in curing her eye trouble. The belt, it was represented, was so valuable she would have to put up $1,000 to guarantee its safe return and a check for that amount was given. The check was sent to Weaver, who forwarded it here through a Hot Springs bank for payment, it was alleged. The banking transaction, which involved the use of the mails, brought about the charge.

Others indicted were: William C. Ringgold, nonsupport; Jesse R. McDonald, Chauncey Ashton, William Jenkins, Harry Bells, and Matthew Lee Davis, housebreaking; Willie E. Johnson, Virgil B. Peyton and Preston Owens, grand larceny; John Davis and Walter Brown, larceny from the United States; Daniel C. Dixon, robbery; John Puckett and Louis Solomon, assault with a dangerous weapon; Ralph D. Shurtz, forgery and uttering; Curtis L. Anderson, embezzlement; Georgianna White, Herbert E. Miller, Mary Walker and Dorothy H. McKethan, violation of section 73, title 18, U. S. code.

Chicago, June 24 (AP).—The season's most extensive heat wave moved eastward today on the wings of wilting winds.

Ten heat deaths were reported, including three in Chicago and suburbs.

Record temperatures were registered at many points as a mass of hot air over the Western prairies expanded rapidly to envelop a broad belt stretching from Texas to the Great Lakes.

Readings beyond the 100-degree mark were numerous. In Oklahoma, Hollis reported 105, Lawton 104 and Ponca City and El Reno 102.

It was 99 in Springfield and Kewanee, Ill., 98 in Davenport, Iowa, and Ottawa, Ill.; 97 in Chicago, St. Louis and Centralia, Ill.

2 Bills Offered To Bring Sugar 'Compromise'

Measures Change Quotas in Move to Break Deadlock.

By the Associated Press.

Congressional advocates of sugar legislation recommended by President Roosevelt offered "compromise" proposals yesterday in an attempt to break down a deadlock over division of the domestic market.

The measures were drawn, sponsors said, to bring the domestic, offshore and foreign producers and refiners into agreement.

Introduced by Chairman Jones (Democrat), of Texas, of the House Agriculture Committee, and Senators Adams (Democrat), of Colorado, and O'Mahoney (Democrat), of Wyoming, they would give producing areas the following market quotas, based on an annual consumption of 6,682,670 short tons:

Quotas Outlined.

Domestic beet, 1,550,000 tons (Jones bill), and 1,600,000 (Adams-O'Mahoney bill); domestic cane, 420,000 (Jones bill), and 390,000 (Adams-O'Mahoney); Hawaii, 938,000; Puerto Rico, 798,000; Virgin Islands, 8,916; Cuba, 1,911,000; Philippines, 1,029,781, of which 970,000 would be duty free under terms of the independence act, and other foreign, approximately 27,000.

The Jones quotas would give domestic cane producers 60,000 tons more, Hawaii and Puerto Rico each 10,000 tons less and Cuba 11,000 tons less than recommended by the Agriculture, State and Interior departments.

Offshore Quotas Cut.

Both bills would cut offshore refined quotas considerably below recommendations of the departments. Hawaii would be reduced from 300,000 to 29,616 short tons; Puerto Rico, 250,000 to 126,033, and Cuba, 423,000 to 375,000.

However, the bills would grant a demand of Hawaii and Puerto Rico that they be placed on an equal basis with American beet and cane producers in contributing to consumption in excess of the basic figure.

Both the "compromise" measures would levy a tax of 50 cents a 100 pounds on manufactured sugar to reward domestic producers, at the rate of 60 cents a 100 pounds of raw sugar produced, for complying with production quotas. President Roosevelt recommended a tax of 75 cents and a benefit payment rate of 70 cents.

Forbush Faces Trial On 8 Robbery Counts

Eight robbery charges were lodged against Walter H. Forbush, 24-year-old member of the "blackface" gang, yesterday as police prepared to present the cases before United States Commissioner Needham C. Turnage this morning.

Forbush was captured in Baltimore last Sunday after police shot and killed a comrade, James Walsh. Nine persons identified Forbush at a line-up Tuesday night.

On the Air Today

From Chicago, where the fifteenth annual session of the National Association of Broadcasters is now in progress, cames the news that John Elmer, president of WCMB, Baltimore, was elected president of N. A. B. by a vote of 147 to 52 for Ed Craney, of KGIR, Butte, Mont. Elmer succeeds Charles Meyers, of KOIN, Portland, Oreg. Elected to the board of directors are Harry Butcher, WJSV, Washington, and Frank Russell, WRC and WMAL, Washington. This is the second term for Butcher . . . incidentally Harry Butcher won the Broadcaster's Golf Tournament the other day.

Plans for a National Radio Week were strongly opposed and a resolution on this subject was killed. The N. A. B. resolved to fight for the Celler bill providing for a Federal broadcasting station. It also resolved to pick one member from each State to fight for copyright legislation.

Asked as to the truth in the report that N. A. B. would split into two camps, the networks and the independents, the newly elected chairman said he thought this very unlikely, stating that many more important problems are confronting the organization at this time.

Vince Callahan, new general manager of WWL, of New Orleans, and former commercial director for N. B. C. here in Washington, is the most sought after man at the convention. The station representatives are hot on his heels, since his WWL has no station representative. Callahan has let it be known that he is mildly interested in an agent for his station and now he's sorry . . . he has no peace.

The National Labor Relations Board has received a claim from the American Radio Telegraphists Association, C. I. O. member, charging anti-union activity by C. B. S. Mrs. Eleanore M. Herrick, who is regional director for the board, made the announcement yesterday. The complaint charged C. B. S. with discriminating against the A. R. T. A. members and accusing the company of attempting to intimidate some of C. B. S.'s engineers. Singled out in the complaint was Henry Grossman, chief engineer of the eastern division of C. B. S. It has been reported that WJSV, a C. B. S. owned and operated station, has dissolved the company union and will join the A. R. T. A.

Dropped into the Madrillon the other p. m., and wouldn't have believed it if our own eyes hadn't witnessed it. The orchestra, under Chonnie Shaw, was a'swinging and little lass, Helen Forrest, all prettied-up with a new coiffure, was pouring her song into the "mike." Everything was as it should be . . . some couples sittin'-this-one-out and others dancing over the floor . . . when . . . flash . . . just like that . . . a dancing pair stopped twirling . . . and dashed over to where Helen stood . . . pulled up a chair . . . a couple of 'em . . . and remained spell-bound 'til Miss Forrest completed her song. She sure had some affect on this couple. Gosh.

Wheat Coasts From New High For This Year

Weather and Crop Advices Dominating Factors in Market.

By the Associated Press.

Chicago, June 24.—With weather and crop advices dominating sentiment, wheat put on a typical weather market performance today, gaining more than a cent a bushel to a new peak on the current upturn and then falling back even lower than 24 hours earlier.

The market fluctuated with the ebb and flow of buying that found encouragement in high grain belt temperatures, better than three cents upturn in Liverpool wheat and reports of the failure of wheat in parts of southwestern Saskatchewan and in stretches of the domestic Northwest. Black rust advices were numerous.

Wheat closed unchanged to ⅜ lower compared with yesterday's finish, July, 1.13⅜@½; September, 1.13⅜@1.14; December, 1.15¼@1.15⅝; corn was ⅝ off to 2 cents higher; July new, 1.19¼@1.19½; December, 78¾@79; oats were ⅛ off to ¼ up; July, 40⅜@40½; rye lost ½ to 1, July 85¾, and provisions were 15 to 20 cents higher.

Excess Reserves Rise $60,000,000

By the Associated Press.

The Federal Reserve Board said last evening that excess reserves of member banks increased $60,000,000 in the week ended June 23. The banks had reserves totaling $6,854,000,000, of which $810,000,000 was in excess of requirements, at the end of the week.

Reserves grew because of decreases of $21,000,000 in money in circulation, $99,000,000 in Treasury deposits and an increase of $2,000,000 in Treasury currency. Deposits of non-member banks increased $57,000,000 to $587,000,000 during the week.

The reserve banks made no change in their net holdings of Government securities, which remained at $2,526,000,000 after purchase of $2,000,000 Treasury notes to replace the same amount of Treasury bills. Gold stocks increased $50,000,000 to a total of $12,270,000,000.

Bank Clearings Turn Upward After Declines

Week's Total Is 11.4 Per Cent Above Volume of Year Ago.

By the Associated Press.

New York, June 24.—Volume of bank clearings during the latest period registered an increase over the corresponding week of 1936 for the first time in four weeks. The gain was due largely to the rather severe drop in the total during this week last year rather than to any general rise in the current figures.

Clearings for 22 leading cities of the United States for the week ended June 23 aggregated $6,207,107,000, as compared with $5,572,681,000 for the like week of 1936, or a rise of 11.4 per cent, according to Dun & Bradstreet. In the year-to-year comparison for the week preceding, a loss of 4.4 per cent was shown.

Clearings this week showed a gain of $47,874,000 over the total of the week preceding. Between the two similar weeks of 1936 there was a decrease of $867,050,000.

Bank clearings at leading cities, together with percentage gains and losses, compared with those of 1936, follow:

The Market

By Carlton A. Shively, A Special Correspondent.

Stocks Pulled Upward by Steel in Dull Trading; Francs Attract Bears.

New York, June 24.—Stocks improved in price without much change in volume of trading, which again was around half a million shares. Steels and metals led the advance. Government bonds were little changed. The advance in grains halted. September wheat closed a quarter of a cent lower at 113⅞ cents a bushel.

Financial markets tried to make out as cheerful a case as possible from the more warlike developments along the Spanish front and the strike situation. Too much optimism probably was felt over the fact that the Government is going through the motions of investigating the charge that the C. I. O. tampered with the mails. That is no guarantee that the Administration is going to insist that Lewis and his followers observe the law. Hope in that direction lies with the public, and it may be true, as Wall Street is trying to make itself believe, that the public is growing tired of violence to the fundamental liberties of citizens who do not wish to join strikes and go on public relief.

Strike Resistance.

The day brought the usual batch of factory closing and reopenings and in the meantime the principal strike—that at the Republic Steel mills—continued with little sign of peace in sight. The interruption to business which the steel strike is bringing is doing nothing to help the price of stocks, but undoubtedly sentiment is vastly better because of the sturdy resistance of the management to the demands of the C. I. O., backed as the Lewis organization is by the Administration, than it would be were a meek surrender, as happened in some other parts of the steel industry, to take place. Late news that troops were removed from Johnstown had a good effect.

Aside from the unfavorable turn of affairs with regard to Spain, the French situation looked no brighter on the financial side. It is difficult to guess what plans the present or any likely future government may devise to avert a first-class break in the franc. The quotation today was little changed, but the French markets began active preparations for what they believed would be the inevitable, namely, inflation. Shares on the Paris bourse were pushed forward rapidly and an active demand for foreign securities was reported.

Bank of France.

This week's statement of the Bank of France showed no change in the gold reserve, but since the French stabilization fund has run out of gold the bank will be obliged to supply another large sum, to be used in a futile effort to support a currency which is falling under the weight of an unbalanced budget. The Bank of England's statement was interesting for the rise in currency circulation to a new peak nad an increase in gold holdings to the largest sum in the history of the institution. Both were closely related to the flight of funds from France, as the gold was added to support the notes given to satisfy those wishing to get rid of francs.

Further strength in the metal and mining stocks helped the tone of the market. A higher quotation for copper on the foreign market and the improvement in the gold mining outlook encouraged traders to re-enter the bull lists. Kennecott, Anaconda and a few others rose a point or so. Silvers joined the movement.

Steel stocks also hardened. U. S. Steel was a trifle weak near the start, but it then advanced and held its ground, closing near its best at around 100. Most of the other steel issues moved narrowly. Oil shares were active in spots, but gained little. Socony and Pure Oil attracted the most business.

Chrysler stood out among the motor shares. Western Union, which almost upset the market yesterday, sold at a new low price for the year and then recovered part of its loss. Postel Telegraph preferred was down and the bonds lost 1 to 5 loss. Postal Telegraph preferred was shoved up to a new high price for the year. Buying of General Electric continued and the stock more than made up the dividend.

Railroad men expect the wage negotiations will drag for several months. The immediate talks are with the office help and a strike vote by the five brotherhoods has been called for July 26. Even if at that time a strike be voted the purpose will be, it is said, to give the unions an ace in the hole on wage negotiations rather than to bring an immediate strike. It will nevertheless be difficult for the roads to stave off higher pay rolls, and the answer to that will be lower earnings, unless business recovers considerably, for higher freight rates or passenger fares won't necessarily solve the problem. Trucks and buses will take care of that.

C. & E. I.

Chicago & Eastern Illinois, control of which was obtained by the late Van Sweringens in an idle moment, seems to be a mystery line. Few expect that the new owners of Alleghany will include it in their consolidation plans for Nickel Plate, Erie, Chesapeake & Ohio and Pere Marquette. It might round out the Missouri Pacific symtem, but the trouble there is that locomotion with two crutches isn't much easier than it is with one. An independent buyer of the C. & E. I. would need to be a hardy adventurer and a genuine optimist.

Corporation Surplus.

One or two small weather vanes point to another attempt by the Government to give business another needling. Treasury officials are quoted as saying that a tax scheme should be adopted to tax corporations on surplus built up before the undistributed profits tax of 1936 went into effect. Something may be done this autumn, by reducing deductions on current earnings before calculation of the possible business slump, the accumulated surplus looks inviting to the economic managers. Such measures, while possibly stimulating for a while, would in the end greatly weaken the financial position of corporations.

Undistributed Profits.

The current uncertainties over the future of business ought to give rise to some second thinking on the undistributed profits tax. It looked splendid last autumn when the flood of extra dividends rolled into the country's most active spending pool, but now, with possible needs of cash for rainy days ahead, and with disappointing tax collections, the affair can be seen with the rainbow mist removed.

Gold.

Hardening of the gold share market in London and "Joburg" followed the reassurance given by Gen. Jan Smuts. The noted South African statessman said that the fear of a failing gold market had been dispelled by authoritative statements and that gold was in no danger now or in the immediate future. It probably won't be many months until the markets begin worrying about another increase in the gold price, for right now we simply are not living in a deflationary world.

Engineering Awards At Six-Year Peak

New York, June 24 (AP).—Engineering construction awards for the week ended Tuesday totaled $115,530,000, the highest weekly figure since March, 1931, "Engineering News Record" reported today. It was a gain of 44 per cent over the preceding week and 144 per cent over the like period of 1936. Contracts aggregating $55,000,000 for new plants for the Carnegie-Illinois Steel Co. at Braddock and Clairton, Pa., helped swell the total.

Haas, Union Trust Co., and Charles K. West, Security Savings & Commercial Bank.

In the election of Mrs. Sharpe to chairmanship of this section a precedent was established in that she is the first woman to occupy the office of chairman of any of the sections of the District of Columbia Bankers Association. She has been associated with the Bank of Commerce & Savings for a number of years and at the recent convention of the bankers association, made an address on safe deposit operations and procedure.

Downey Elected.

Harry L. Downey, newly elected chairman of the auditors section of the District of Columbia Bankers Association, has been an employe of the Washington Loan & Trust Co., since 1917. He was born in Pennsylvania in 1898, and came to Washington in 1916, graduating from Stewart's Business College and the Pace School of Accountancy.

He entered the service of Washington Loan & Trust Co. as a bookkeeper, later becoming a receiving teller and head bookkeeper. He is now chief of the accounting division. Mr. Downey became associated with the auditors section of the bankers association in 1931, and was elected a member of its executive council in 1933. He served as secretary and treasurer in 1935, and became vice chairman in 1936.

Six Times President.

Ord Preston, recently elected second vice president of the District of Columbia Bankers Association, is now serving his sixth term as president of Union Trust Co., to which position he was named following retirement of the late Edward J. Stellwagen.

Mr. Preston, who was president of the Washington Gas Light Co. for many years, was born in San Francisco and came East to obtain his education at Andover Academy and Yale University, from which he was graduated with a bachelor of arts degree in 1899. He entered the financial business in New York.

He came to Washington in 1911, and became a director of Washington Gas Light Co., and in 1923 was elected vice president of the company. A year later, he was elected to the presidency. When elected as chief executive of Union Trust Co., he had served on the board of that institution for approximately 20 years, much of the period as a member of its executive committee.

As third vice president and as a committee chairman of the bankers association, he rendered fine service to the organization and was highly commended by President Robert V. Fleming, of Riggs National Bank, a past president of both local and national bankers associations, who placed Mr. Preston in nomination for his present office at this year's convention of the District Bankers group.

Hecht Named Delegate.

President Tom K. Smith, of the American Bankers Association, has appointed Rudolph S. Hecht, chairman of the board of directors of the Hibernia National Bank in New Orleans and former president of the national bankers organization, as chairman of the latter's delegation to the ninth general meeting of the International Chamber of Commerce which will be held in Berlin, June 28 to July 3.

Thomas J. Watson, president of the International Business Machines Corporation, will be chairman of the American section at this general meeting of the chamber, at which there will be representatives of 32 countries who will exchange ideas regarding world economic problems. The conferees will endeavor to improve economic relations between the different nations and formulate international policies.

Lyne a Former Major.

Richard G. Lyne, in charge of the recently opened local branch of Shields & Co., New York Stock Exchange firm, was born near Orange, Va. He is a graduate of the Virginia Military Institute, class of 1916, and saw active service in France as a major in the Coast Artillery. He has been in the investment business since 1920, with various firms, for the most part in New York City, and for the last three and a half years was manager of the Washington office of the First Boston Corporation. Mr. Lyne is a member of the Belle Haven Country and Washington Bond clubs.

Liberty National Dividend.

At a regular meeting of the board of directors of Liberty National Bank held this week a dividend of $2.50 per share was declared, payable July 15, to stockholders of record at the close of business July 7. Transfer books will not be closed.

50th Anniversary.

Odell S. Smith, secretary and treasurer of the Norfolk & Washington Steamboat Co., attended the fiftieth anniversary of his class at Wesleyan University, held recently at Middletown, Conn. The university held its 105th graduation at which time was also celebrated the 100th anniversary of the Mystical Seven, a class society to which Mr. Smith belonged.

Foreign Markets.

By the Associated Press.

London, June 24.—Trading in today's stock market was on a larger scale and prices closed steady. Tobacco, steel and shipping issues were in good demand and sold higher. Oils were active and strong and the transatlantic section also advanced. German bonds continued strong and gold mining securities finished above Wednesday's close.

Paris—Government bonds closed strong in the bourse today, rentes gaining 1.85 to 275 centimes. Suez Canal issue moved up 315 francs, Royal Dutch gained 156 francs and Bank of France gained 310 francs.

Liverpool—Wheat futures advanced sharply, closing 2⅝d to 2¾d net higher. There was a better demand for Manitoba wheat, flour trade improved and Argentine exports were smaller. Cotton futures closed 5 to 8 points higher on complaints of boll weevil activity from the United States and reports of unfavorable weather for the Chinese cotton crop. The market reacted partially at the close under Bombay selling.

Railroads See Earnings Gain For This Year

Substantial Increase in Wheat Crops Is a Favorable Factor.

New York, June 24.—In spite of the admitted uncertainties as to traffic, wages, rates and pensions, there appears good reason to look for a marked improvement in railroad earnings this year, the Standard Statistics Co. says today.

Although strikes in steel and other industries, which have reduced railroad traffic in recent weeks, may extend into the second half year, prospects for railroad traffic generally are not unfavorable. The level of traffic through the remainder of the year will depend largely on the two factors of industrial labor relations and farm crops.

As to the labor situation, it is obviously too early to tell how soon a settlement can be reached, but there may well be a release of dammed-up business when production is resumed in strike-bound plants, and there is reason to hope for a considerable increase in movement of industrial raw materials and manufactured products later in the year. It is significant that, despite the effect of strikes, traffic thus far in June has held above 1936 levels.

The Federal Crop Reporting Board looks for a 25 per cent increase in winter wheat this year, while private estimates point to a gain of nearly 100 per cent in spring wheat. Other crops are generally in correspondingly improved condition, although the outlook can change substantially before crops are harvested.

Because the margin of improvement in traffic in May and June was less favorable than in earlier months of the year, while several important roads have expanded maintenance programs, the gain in net income for the first half year may be close to that indicated for the first four months of 1937. For that period, surplus after charges (partly estimated) was about $18,600,000, against a deficit of over $30,000,000 a year ago, indicating an improvement of better than $48,000,000.

For the second half, an estimate of net income around $80,000,000 better than a year ago appears entirely reasonable. This would make the improvement for the year some $130,000,000, raising full year net to about $300,000,000, as compared with $169,000,000 in 1936.

Lloyd, Writer, Dies at Home In Maryland

Publisher, Contributor on Political Affairs Was 54 Years Old.

Demarest Lloyd, a leading figure in political writing since the World War, died unexpectedly yesterday at his country home, Pennyfield, near Great Falls, Md. He was 54 years old.

Until his death he was a contributor to several periodicals, in addition to publishing the Washington weekly review, Affairs. For several years he was on the staff of the Christian Science Monitor, serving as special European correspondent, cable editor and later as Washington correspondent. Until 1930 he was vice chairman of the American Coalition of Patriotic Societies, becoming publisher of Affairs that same year. During 1932-33 he was executive secretary of the Taxpayers' Union.

The son of Henry Demarest and Jessie Lloyd, Mr. Lloyd was a native of Chicago. His father was a prominent liberal, and the author of "Wealth versus Commonwealth." After graduation from Harvard in 1904, a classmate of President Roosevelt, Demarest Lloyd proclaimed his sympathy for socialism.

Joined Liberty League.

Later, when he became identified with the American Liberty League, he would explain his change of political philosophy as follows: "A young man who believes in socialism has a soft heart; an old man who believes in socialism has a soft head."

At the close of the World war he joined the staff of the Christian Science Monitor, and after a few years in Europe, came to Washington. Boys' Club Work Praised by Lodge

Praise for the work being done in the Police Boys' Club, and a plea for aid in its drive to raise $75,000 for maintenance and expansion were sounded yesterday by Thomas E. Lodge, president of the Federation of Citizens' Associations.

"The work is a fine community investment from any standpoint, and I consider it one of the finest and most important of our civic enterprises in the District of Columbia," Lodge said in an address over Station WRC. He traced the growth of the club idea from 1934, when Brown studied police records and learned that District policemen were having too many associations with boys "in an unpleasant way."

Teams reporting in the financial drive yesterday showed that $41,506.66 of the $75,000 has been realized. The campaign will continue for several days, with various civic and patriotic groups co-operating.

Who Pays For Crime?

Crime costs America the almost unbelievable sum of $15,000,000,000 a year.

At this moment there are 150,000 killers roaming free in America. It is estimated that 200,000 persons now living ordinary lives will become murderers before they die.

What does this crime condition mean? Bernard Coffin, in a special article Sunday, tells the story in The Washington Post.

Packing Plant Strikers Spurn 10% Pay Boost

1,000 Shout Down Offer in Demand for 40 Cents Hourly.

By the Associated Press.

Cambridge, Md., June 24.—Strikers at the Phillips Packing Co. plants shouted down today a proposal that they go back to work for a 10 per cent wage increase during a 30-day period for negotiation of a permanent pay agreement.

A meeting of approximately 1,000 strikers in a field near the plants roared "no" to a tentative agreement negotiated by a committee with officials of the company.

The committee had sought an agreement for a flat 10 cents an hour increase for unskilled workers, but accepted a proposal for a 10 per cent increase, which would amount to only a little more than 2½ cents an hour.

Miss Anna Neary, an American Federation of Labor organizer, explained the agreement and asked the assembled strikers:

"Do you want to go back to work?"

"No," they roared back.

Flying Boat Soars East in Overland Flight for Record

San Diego, Calif., June 24 (AP).—Lifting his 27,000-pound ship gracefully off the waters of the bay here, Richard Archbold started the first transcontinental flight of a flying boat at 4:51 p. m. today.

He expected to land at North Beach Airport, New York, within 17 or 18 hours.

Observes of the National Aeronautical Association timed the takeoff for Archbold's assault upon several national aviation records.

William Van Dusen, an assocaition observer, said Archbold, a research associate of the American Museum of Natural History, hopes to be the first to make a transcontinental flight in a flying boat, and also to set a record for planes of that weight.

Archbold is expected to remain in New York until fall, then return to the Pacific Coast for a transpacific flight on an exploration trip to New Guinea.

'Mary Magdalene' Denies Seduction

Los Angeles, June 24 (AP).—Delight Jewett's story she was seduced as the prospective mother of a "new redeemer" was attacked today by Mrs. Agnes Gardner, silver-haired "Mary Magdalene" of Father Divine's West Coast followers.

Mrs. Gardner, with John Hunt and two other followers of the Harlem colored man, are on trial in Federal court accused of bringing the 17-year-old schoolgirl from Denver to Beverly Hills for immoral purposes.

Miss Jewett testified yesterday Hunt, self-styled "revelator," had been intimate with her on several occasions after telling her she was to become a modern "Virgin Mary." Mrs. Gardner, testifying in her own defense, said she had no knowledge of illicit relations between Hunt and the girl, and that she heard no conversation en route to California about Miss Jewett "having a child."

Speculation Seen In Franc Prices

New York, June 24 (AP).—A widening discount on forward deliveries of the French franc marked foreign exchange dealings today as the new government in Paris strove to solve its financial crisis.

The currency unit was quoted for 90-day deliveries at 4.14⅝ cents, a discount of .31 of a cent from the spot rate at 4.45⅝ cents. Yesterday the discount was .24½ of a cent.

Bankers pointed out the 90-day rate was far below the legal limit of 4.35 cents to which the government may devalue under present laws, and expressed the opinion speculative selling was involved.

Word received in exchange circles from abroad indicated heavy selling of francs in Paris, with sellers buying the British pound for hoarding purposes. The spot market here was quiet, with the rate about unchanged from yesterday's closing level.

Suspect Is Shot, Companion Flees

Dinwiddie Courthouse, Va., June 24 (AP).—After wounding one man in a search for thieves who entered a store and stole an automobile at Chester Sunday, a posse of State and local officers continued its hunt today for a second man who they said they believed was Wayne Ward, 22, of Chester, an escaped State convict.

State Officer E. T. Miller and Chesterfield County Officer I. E. Bowman said the wounded man was shot in the head, back and leg when he ignored possemen's orders to halt after they found him beside a stolen automobile in a wooded section near here.

The officers said the man was Sylvia Handsome, 21, alias Hansen, of Powhatan, who was known to have been an associate of Ward.

Jury Upholds Nolan's Claim to Own Estate

A jury in District Court, before Justice Jennings Bailey, yesterday returned a verdict holding that William J. Nolan, former head of the Nolan Motor Co., which is now in bankruptcy, was not a personal bankrupt and that his personal estate was not subject to seizure by creditors of the company.

Creditors of the company had sought to obtain a court ruling that would subject Nolan's personal estate to the debts of the company. However, through Attorneys A. L. Newmyer and David G. Bress, the former motor magnate, who recently served a short sentence for bribery, he contended that his personal worth was not subject to the corporation debts.

The Dairy Cow Has Made Millions for the American Farmer

The two wonderful dairy and grain farms owned by one of the best farmers in the splendid State of Maryland, Mr. W. H. Zepp, of New Windsor, Maryland,

WILL BE SOLD AT AUCTION
SATURDAY, JUNE 26, 1937

On the farms located at Pike Creek Church, Carroll County, 3½ miles from New Windsor, Maryland, on the State road from Union Town to Linwood. Follow the arrow to the farms.

NO. 1, HOMESTEAD FARM, CONTAINING 209 ACRES, nearly all tillable, balance in timber, the growing crops consist of 68 acres of wheat, 11 acres of barley, 28 acres of hay, about 18 acres of meadow pasture, of which there is nothing superior, no worry about dry weather. You have always plenty of pasture, a stream of pure water running through the meadow worth thousands of dollars to the dairyman, plenty of large shade trees. The balance of this very desirable farm is in grass and pasture.

ATTRACTIVE BUILDINGS. House is colonial structure, brick, surrounded by nice shade trees, well kept lawn, and a garden that is pleasing to look at. This home has 14 rooms, large cellar, drinking water the best, large portico, the view from which one could never expect a blue Monday. It overlooks the ever attractive meadow and the superior herd of Guernsey cattle, large dairy barn 45x75, basement, machinery, sheds, tool house, corn houses, poultry houses, 7-room tenant house.

Inspection of this money making farm will satisfy those who are interested.

NO. 2 IS ANOTHER 104-ACRE FARM

And adjoining No. 1, which is just as rich in fertility. The growing crops are 32 acres of wheat, 28 acres of yellow corn, 32 in hay and 11 of barley. The desirable meadow is a continuation of the No. 1 farm, never failing stream of water, plenty of shade, and pasture second to none, about 15 acres.

NINE-ROOM BRICK HOUSE. Location ideal. Large dairy barn 45x75, basement. Machinery shed, poultry house, tool house, corn houses, other small buildings. The layout of the above buildings on farm No. 2 make a good home for the average family.

The opportunity here should never be overlooked from an investment standpoint. Owned and managed by two of Carroll County's most respected citizens, Mr. and Mrs. W. H. Zepp, who, have made these two productive farms their bank. Mr. and Mrs. Zepp have arrived at the age where they desire to be relieved of managing any property, so here is the opportunity. We don't know of just another privilege like the two Zepp farms. SEND FOR BOOKLET.

Conditions: 10% of the purchase price is to be paid when the property is bid off, balance and final settlement is to be made on or before 60 days from date of sale. Mr. Blackson, the present tenant who is one of the best, can be retained to manage the farms until the new purchaser makes other arrangements. There is no encumbrance against the property. Mr. and Mrs. Zepp will make the terms very reasonable. The farms will be sold as a whole or separate.

Gov. Earle Lifts Military Rule In Johnstown

Asserts Steel Plants May Reopen; Union Plans Resistance.

Two Dynamite Blasts.

Warren, Ohio, June 25 (Friday) (AP).—Two blasts rocked this steel strike center early today, one of them described by a National Guard official as an apparent attempt to blow up a patrol car of troops in a "campaign of terrorism."

A highway bridge 2 miles from the Republic Steel Corporation plant was damaged early today in what the police believed was an attempt to dynamite the bridge.

The charge exploded only 50 feet away from where a National Guard truck was parked, the police department reported.

A suspect was arrested by National Guardsmen and held at the city jail on open charges, pending completion of an investigation.

By the Associated Press.

Harrisburg, Pa., June 24.—Gov. George H. Earle today lifted martial law in the Johnstown strike zone, effective at 7 a. m. tomorrow.

"Apparently the emergency in Johnstown has passed," the Governor said. "I therefore decree an end of martial law at 7 a. m. Friday morning."

Gov. Earle placed the strike district under martial law Saturday and ordered closing of the Bethlehem Steel mill, where a strike had been declared by the Committee for Industrial Organization.

The Governor said Col. A. S. Janeway, his personal representative, and Maj. Lynn C. Adams, superintendent of the State police, and all forces of the State police and highway patrol will be ordered out of Cambria County, except 200 State police under command of Capt. William A. Clark.

Union to Resist Reopening.

Johnstown, Pa., June 24 (AP).—James Marks, head of the striking steel workers at the Bethlehem Steel Corporation's Cambria works, said today the union "will resist to the best of our ability" any attempt to reopen the mills tomorrow.

Marks declared pickets will be organized about the mill in the morning to prevent resumption of operations.

He made this statement after being informed Gov. Earle announced martial law will be lifted and that the plants might reopen at 7 a. m.

Marks, who succeeded David Watkins as leader of the steel workers here when Watkins went to Cleveland to attend the steel mediation conference, asserted:

"We feel this is a mistake on the part of the Governor. We feel it is to the best interests of all concerned he should continue it (martial law) until a settlement is reached. We are going to resist reopening to the best of our ability."

Reports trickled in from nearby union headquarters of the United Mine Workers of America tonight that miners might march into Johnstown to bolster picket lines.

Marks said, "I wouldn't be surprised to see the miners put on that march to Johnstown now, just to show the folks who have been calling it a hoax."

Election Plan Rejected.

Cleveland, June 24 (AP).—President Roosevelt's Steel Mediation Board disclosed tonight four strike-affected steel companies had rejected a proposal union elections be held in their plants to decide the contract issue.

It suggested that company and union executives meet with the board in a "man-to-man discussion" as the only means of settling the strike.

Under the mediators' proposal the Committee for Industrial Organization steel union and the four independent steel companies would sign an agreement to "become effective only if the union wins an election."

First, the 29-day-old strike would be called off. The 100,000 idle men in seven States would return to work.

Secret Vote Proposed.

Then a secret ballot would be held in the plants of Republic, Bethlehem, Inland and Youngstown Sheet & Tube companies, "the agreement to go into effect if the union wins, and to be torn up if the union loses."

The board urged the antagonists "either to accept the terms of settlement which we have proposed or to work out other terms by mutual agreement in joint conference."

The mediators said they felt the only hope of settlement lay in such a joint meeting to allay "the bitterness and suspicion which separate the two sides."

Earlier in the day officials of the four companies quit the conference with the assertion "the C. I. O. has placed itself above the law of the land."

In a joint statement, the steel executives said the conference today was "understood to be the final one."

Confer With Murray.

Chairman Charles P. Taft 2d and his two aides, Lloyd K. Garrison and Assistant Secretary of Labor Edward F. McGrady, called in Philip Murray, head of the C. I. O. Steel Workers Organizing Committee, soon after the steel men departed.

"The board told me that the steel corporations refused to enter into any agreement of any description with the S. W. O. C.," Murray said later.

Earlier, Murray had made a "public offer" on behalf of the S. W. O. C. to accept President Roosevelt as the "final arbiter" in the seven-State strike dispute.

The joint statement by the four steel firms—Republic, Bethlehem, Inland Steel and Youngstown Sheet & Tube—emphasized once more their unqualified refusal to sign contracts with the C. I. O.

Sympathy Strike Collapses.

Warren, Ohio, June 24 (AP).—A C. I. O.-fostered general sympathy strike collapsed today, while at Youngstown a new back-to-work movement gained impetus with a telegraphic appeal to President Roosevelt asking aid to reopen strike-bound mills.

Girdler Calls Murray Liar, C. I. O. Communists; Won't Sign Contract Unless Forced by Law

Republic Steel's Chairman Clashes With Guffey and McKellar.

what he would question him about. He said he would put it up to the committee Monday.

"The Senator thinks he's running this committee, and I'll tell him here and now that he's not," said McKellar. "I'm getting tired of his blowing hot one minute and cold the next."

C. I. O. Force Charged.

Last witness before the committee was Harry E. Grimm, of Valley City, Ohio, representing the Employes Central Committee of the Republic Steel Corporation, not affiliated with C. I. O. Grimm denied his group was a company union, charged C. I. O. organizers with intimidating steel workers into membership, and said 90 per cent of steel workers would return to the plants if they were protected. Grimm said a rifle bullet splintered the windshield of his car and just missed him as he was driving home from work recently.

Girdler was called before the committee to answer statements by Murray and Guffey at a recent Postoffice Committee hearing. Republic was accused by Murray of storing arms and hiring "thugs" to use against strikers. Bridges reminded Girdler Murray said the only issue at stake in the strike was reducing an oral agreement to writing.

Blasts Murray, Guffey.

"Mr. Murray is a liar to the best of my knowledge and belief and always has been," retorted Girdler. "Senator Guffey doesn't know what he's talking about."

Chairman McKellar remonstrated. After all, he observed, Guffey is a Senator, and as such "entitled to respect." He said Girdler's remark was "uncalled for" and suggested he withdraw it.

As the steel official remained silent, Guffey, who is not a member of the committee, arose. He asked if it were "all right with him," if he could ask a few questions. McKellar assented.

When Guffey asked if Republic salaries weren't about 10 per cent lower than in the Carnegie-Illinois labor contract, Girdler seethed:

"That's about the most untrue one I ever heard."

"It has been commonly rumored around the clubs and steel mills in Allegheny County that your resignation from the Jones & Laughlin Co. in 1929 was asked for because you gave confidential information of your company to the company you are now with," said Guffey.

"That's a lie, and whoever told you that is a liar," Girdler shouted. "I never furnished any confidential company information to anybody in my life."

Guffey told Girdler that while he was talking about "irresponsible union officials," he thought "maybe that's one reason your employes don't want a verbal agreement with you, feeling that if you would give confidential information you aren't responsible either."

Asks to "Speak Freely."

Protesting immediately, Girdler told the committee Guffey's questioning wasn't "decent."

"I suppose I am forbidden from answering you as I would like," Girdler shot back. "Can I speak freely?" he asked McKellar. "I don't want to be in contempt of this committee, but if the chairman will remove the ban I'll answer that as it ought to be answered."

McKellar said he thought "enough" had been said, and Guffey sat down.

In his opening statement, the steel company board chairman said "the basic issue of this strike is the right of American citizens to work free from molestation by a labor organization whose apparent policy is either to rule or ruin American industry." He said a contract with the C. I. O. "is not worth the paper it is written on."

Denies Arms Charges.

Girdler denied charges Republic has massed arms in its plants to be used against strikers. He said the regular company police force had not been increased; that they were armed with pistols and night sticks, as usual, but there were no machine guns or rifles stored. In turn, he charged the pickets were armed with "everything but cannons and elephant guns." He filed with the committee pictures he said were taken by Chicago police of weapons seized from labor demonstrators.

"This is not a strike in the sense that a large body of our employes quit work because of grievances against the company," said the witness. "What has happened is that an invading army descended upon our plants and forced many of our employes from their jobs."

He said there is no agreement with workers, oral or otherwise, but terms of employment have been reduced to writing in the form of posted notices.

Charges C. I. O. With Greed.

He declared the C. I. O. "is not at all interested in working men, but in dues and money that flows into their treasury." He charged the C. I. O. denies to citizens "who refuse to pay tribute the right to work"; that it "encourages and promotes violence and disregard of law," and that it is "associated with communism."

Girdler was questioned closely by Senator Theodore F. Green (Democrat), Rhode Island, who asked if he would sign a contract with a responsible labor organization.

"I'll cross that bridge when I come to it," said the witness. "The Wagner act does not require a contract. We'll deal with anyone, even the irresponsible C. I. O., but signing a contract is a different matter."

Accused of Evasion.

Green later pressed Girdler on how much he thought the Government should spend to assure men "an opportunity to work," and accused the witness of evading when he said he would not spend a "disproportionate" sum. Girdler said the Government should relieve suffering and privation "to the best of its ability."

It was Senator Allen J. Ellender (Democrat), Louisiana, who asked what he would do if the steel mediation board ordered an election among employes and they voted for C. I. O.

"We still wouldn't sign a contract," said Girdler. "I wouldn't care what they ruled, because that isn't the law."

He said that whenever the law said he must sign a contract, and it was upheld by the courts, he would sign one.

He declared the company's other organized workers had warned they would strike if he signed a C. I. O. contract. He said he would "do anything reasonable" his own employes asked him to do.

Once McKellar lashed at Girdler when the witness said he thought the Postoffice Department had not "done its duty" in refusing to carry mail into the plants.

Calls Girdler "Prejudiced."

"I do," said McKellar. "You're a very much prejudiced witness, Mr. Girdler, and I am not."

As testimony turned to the Chicago steel riots, Daly, Chicago's assistant corporation counsel, presented a long file of police affidavits on the Memorial Day clash in which ten were killed or fatally wounded. He read two, by Policemen Lambert M. Rermond and J. C. Wood. They related that some 2,000 labor marchers had advanced on the plant guarded by 200 policemen; they charged marchers were armed with bricks, bolts, concrete, clubs and broken bottles, and said these had been hurled before police firing started.

McKellar observed they made no mention of the "murders." Daly said they showed only events leading up to the tragedy. The city counsel insisted machines bearing Red Cross labels had arrived in advance, and those in them said "we are here to take care of our injured." Daly then read from the Illinois code, which, he said, gave police authority to "meet force with force." Questioned by McKellar, he said 67 marchers were arrested, that only 14 of these were company employes, and that 40 policemen were wounded, but none of them mortally.

"You say you were protecting life and property," said McKellar. "You certainly protected those ten men who were killed. They are at peace in their graves."

Captain Defends Action.

Capt. Mooney, who said he was "supervisor" of the police squadron, defended the action of his men, but insisted he gave no orders to shoot. His voice rose to a shout as he told of the conflict.

"They came over the prairie singing the Communist song," he said. "I've heard it before. I recognized Communists from all over town. They said, 'We're going in that plant and get those finks out.' If they had got through our lines and into that plant there would have been 300 more killed.

"We saw what ought to be done, and we did it. And they call it 'police murders.' They were not murders. We are not killers. Fifty our men are legionnaires. Chicago's a law-abiding town. Police don't ever kill anybody unnecessarily."

Girdler Called "Heel."

Tom Girdler was nominated as "All-American Heel for 1937-38" last night by Heywood Broun, newspaper columnist and official of the C. I. O. Broun made the nomination in a speech at an organization meeting of members of the Rochdale Restaurant, 1735 F street northwest.
